The marriage of Miss Gilberta Tetreault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orias Tetreault of South A street and Joseph Sevignac, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sevignac of Lisbon took place Monday morning at 8 o'clock at Sacred Heart church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, the pastor, who also celebrated the nuptial high mass which followed. Miss Yvonne Sevignac sister of the groom, was maid of honor and Orias Tetreault, Jr., brother of the bride, was best man.

The bride wore an attractive gown of white georgette with tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and rose buds. Her maid wore pink crepe satin and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and roses.

A reception and wedding breakfast followed the church ceremony, many relatives and friends attending. The bride received many gifts. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Sevignac left on a wedding trip and upon their return will take up their residence with the bride's parents.

Thomas F. and Anthony J. Murphy of Catholic university, Washington, D. C., are spending the Christmas recess at the home of their mother, Mrs. Abbie Murphy of Merchants avenue.

Blair Cormier of New Bedford, spent the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Cormier of Norwich avenue.

FIRST METHODIST SCHOOL HAS CHRISTMAS TREE

The annual Christmas celebration of the First Methodist Sunday school was held Christmas eve at 7 o'clock. The program was as follows: Song, There is Music in the Air, by school; prayer by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Whitten; Merry Christmas, Walter Kelly; Helping Santa Claus, Robert Ringland; I'm a Christmas Flower, May Ivah Smith; Good Night, Mary Waters, Norma Rose, Norma Wilkinson, Arlene Wilkinson; Thanking Santa Claus, Willard Wilbur; Christmas Dolls, Margery Dorothy Brailsford, Betty Yetke, Mary Scoville, Jeanet Fargo; Her Secret, Edna Alquist; Why She Was Happy, Marion Cripps; A Christmas Wish, Freddie Miller; No Wonder, Clarence Smith; recitation, Israel Chapman; Ye-is The Most Blessed; Baby, Dolly Haughton; Santa Coming, John Yetke; Joy, Marion and Ruth Miller; While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night, Claude Stanton; Hanging Up an Extra Stocking, Mildred Carter, Muriel Rose, Florence Kimball, Arthur Bennett, Clayton Rose.

Following the exercises the Christmas tree was enjoyed. Santa arrived just in time to distribute the gifts. Doris Rose, Muriel Rose and Isabell Kimball assisted him. The committee in charge were Mrs. Albert Miner and Mrs. Richard Carter.

Lewis Aldrich acted as Santa.

GROTON PHYSICIAN IS GIVEN $114 JUDGMENT

A number of motions were acted on at the session of the court of common pleas in New London Monday. Judge Charles E. Waller ordered a default entered against the defendants in the case of Shaletts Cleaning and Dyeing Co. against Camillo Santacrose, et al. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe appeared for the plaintiff.

Judgment in the amount of $114.50 was entered for Dr. Frank W. Hewes of Groton, against Russell Coon, formerly of Groton. The judgment was in accordance with a sworn bill of particulars. Attorney Perry J. Hollandsky represented the physician.

Termination of continuance and judgment were entered against Margaret W. Habryl in the case of Libaire & Co. against Louis L. Habryl, et al.

A nisi order was vacated, and default entered against Amos Keeney, W. Bolton, and Mary Bolton, defendants in a suit instituted by the city of New London in 1918 when the late William J. Brennan was corporation counsel. Director of Law Thomas E. Troland represented the city.

Slush Halts Skating

Frederick Krohn, superintendent of Mohegan park was at the skating pond Monday for the purpose of arranging to clear off the snow and make the pond available for skating. His trip went for nothing however when it was found that a coating of slush was under the snow, ruining the surface of the ice. Warm weather, followed by another cold wave will be needed to put the ice back into smooth condition.

It is doubtful whether any other pond in the city can be put into shape for the benefit of skaters.

The mid-week gathering of the Central Baptist church is to be held Friday at 8 instead of Thursday and will be the last opportunity this year for the singing of Christmas carols. Following the service the young people will serve refreshments and will remain for a watch-night service.

POSTPONE MANSLAUGHTER HEARING TO AWAIT FINDING OF CORONER

As Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond has not yet made an official finding in the accident which resulted in the death of Miss Irene Wasemiller, 17 year old Bacon academy senior, at Colchester early this month, the manslaughter case against Miss Monica M. Cahey of New London, driver of the machine which killed the girl, has been postponed until January 10th. Miss Cahey was to have appeared in the Colchester town court Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock for hearing before Justice of the Peace F. E. Baker.

The fatal accident occurred December 2 as the Wasemiller girl and her sister, Fannie, 14, were on their way home from school. The younger sister is still confined to St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, suffering from injuries to her legs.

Miss Cahey, who is a nurse at a private hospital in New London and who resides at No. 55 Colman St., that city, was taken into custody after the accident on a technical charge of manslaughter and was released under bonds of $1,000 to await the result of the hearing state police of the Groton barracks, investigated the accident and arranged for Miss Cahey's arraignment as a matter of form.

NORWICH MAN TELLS OF VISIT IN FLORIDA

Wilfred A. Park of Norwich and Arthur Johnston of Woodstock who left Norwich, Dec. 9, have arrived in Florida and on Dec. 24 were at Coral Gables. Writing to The Bulletin from Coral Gables, Mr. Park describes some of their experiences in the southern state as follows:

It is so warm one would hardly realize it is Christmas. We, Arthur Johnston of Woodstock, and myself, have just got back from Cape Sable, the northern end of the state. It is 65 miles from the nearest village, Homestead. One goes over a little narrow road, which would be a very poor imitation of a cart path or trail. When one gets within five miles of the tip, then one must walk the rest of the way.

On either side of the road the dense tropical vegetation reaches nearly to the center and there are swamps on both sides. If it should sprinkle, the road, which is a sort of white clay for the last 25 miles, is so slippery that it cannot be traveled.

At Cape Sable there are a couple of fishermen's shacks and as many cocoanut trees. The fishermen take their catches to Key West, 90 miles distant. And when they go to town they go to Homestead by boat—that is hardly once a year. We were covered with mosquito bites as large as dimes.

It is excellent hunting for ducks and marsh birds. Bears, panthers and turkeys are also found in that vicinity. We saw several hunters.

When we were coming back the last 20 miles a machine was driven ahead of us and kept setting fires so that they blew across the front of the machine but we drove through them. It was the only thing we could do or be trapped. About a mile from town a machine stopped in the middle of the road and four armed men jumped out to stop us. We turned out and passed them. They followed us to town but left us when we got there. There are numerous crimes here at Miami every day.

B'NAI BRITH HELD MEETING AT BUCKINGHAM MEMORIAL

Rose of New England lodge No. 398 and Ladies' auxiliary, No. 40, Independent Order of B'nai Brith held the final social of the year, at Buckingham Memorial hall, Sunday evening. At 7:30 p. m. supper was served to about 100 members and their guests. The menu consisted of cold meats, frankfurters, potato salad, pickles, cold slaw, home made pastries and tea. The supper was prepared and served by a committee of the following ladies: Mrs. A. H. Manes chairman, Mrs. R. Alexander, Mrs. H. Schwartz, Mrs. F. Bronowine, Mrs. H. Rosoff, Mrs. H. Bruckner, Miss Augusta Bruckner and Miss Marchia Bruckner.

After the supper the gathering was entertained by volunteer home talent. Mrs. Alex H. Manes greatly amused by reading a skit in which she mentioned most of the members with friendly knocks. Solomon Weckler of Jewett City introduced a novelty called the "Bolshewiki March" which produced hearty laughter. Mrs. Anna Linter who plays in Keiths vaudeville, one of the guests, sang several pleasing songs and was roundly applauded for her fine singing.

The social was intended to culminate the fraternal activities of the organization for 1926 and it more than accomplished the purpose for which it was intended. For friendliness and good natured fellowship the evening was never surpassed by any entertainment held by the organization during the year. Several guests from New London, Colchester, Bozrahville and Jewett City were present and greatly enjoyed Norwich hospitality. George Gulle rendered several musical selections accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Lucille Williams. The members displayed delight in welcoming and extending congratulations to Mrs. Simon Mandell, the treasurer of the auxiliary, who had recently recovered from a very serious illness.

The organization is indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Alex M. Pasnik for the valuable assistance they rendered to make the social such a success.

CHRISTMAS SERVICE AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Most of the chairs in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. were occupied at the special service Sunday afternoon.

After the scripture reading and prayer and hymn, Hugh Kinder rendered a vocal solo with ability. The air real feature moving picture, "The Christ Child" was shown with splendid effect, and the portrayal was exceedingly true to the scripture story. Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk, and he spoke in part as follows:

There have been many notable events that have happened during our lifetime, and several of them have had as their purpose freedom for the best things of life. The event which we celebrate at the Christmas season was the greatest event in the history of the world. Over nineteen hundred years ago, Jesus was born, and his coming into the world and taking on human flesh was Gods greatest present to this old world. Alas too many of us have departed from the real purpose of the Christmas season, and we seem to have forgotten its real meaning. I trust that all of us will enter fully into the purpose of the celebration and that we will one and all give ourselves anew to the great Christ who gave himself fully for us.

Name Was Omitted

The name of Horace Corning, bass soloist, was unintentionally omitted in the account of the Christmas day musical program at St. Mary's Memorial church under the direction of Mrs. M. J. Farrell. Mr. Corning sang in his usual creditable manner.

When you confide in a married woman you are probably confiding in her husband also.

SON OF MAN CAME TO SEEK AND SAVE

The Son of Man Came To Seek and to Save, was the topic of the Christmas sermon preached Sunday morning by Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D. D., at Park Congregational church. In part Rev. Dr. Howe said:

We hear much of man's search for God, but the Incarnation is God's search for man. Here are four distinct asseverations:

1. The son of man. Jesus speaks of Himself as the son of man. His followers speak of him as the son of God. Why does He use this term exclusively: Son of man? I think for full identification with humanity, His clientele. We have known some human characters so beautiful, so pure, so spiritual, so etherialised that we almost regarded them as visitors from other worlds. They were exotics, fit for translation. Jesus Christ was the supreme example. He did not seem to belong to our time-sphere. His purities were those of the white snows of the untrodden Alpine peaks. His apartness from humanity impressed beholders. But He was humanity raised to its highest power, an example of what redeemed humanity is to become. So, He used an expression which closely identified him with humanity. For He was humanity's organ, its sponsor, its mediator, its atoner, and for this work He must share the nature of God and man. Humanity's great sin-bearer, advocate, intercessor, redeemer who taketh away the sin of the world, who saves to the uttermost all who come unto Him.

2. This might Being came. Came into the world from without the world. Did not spring up out of the world, autochthonous, as the Greeks contended for their race. He was no product of evolution. No outbirth of His time, but one from without. He came from supernal spaces. Before Abraham was, I am, up out of the eternities, breaking into history from without, a supernatural being for supernatural work. Nature did not produce him. He did not come by natural processes. His birth was supernatural. His career was supernatural, inimitable, uncopyable. "O Angelo we cannot copy thee" was the despairing cry of the old artists.

This modern attempt to expunge the virgin birth and exploit the denials of the old skeptics of the second and third centuries is a travesty. It is intellectual pathos. The attempt to account for the advent of Jesus Christ by natural processes of racial transmission is stark vulgarity and should be driven out of modern thinking by the flaming scourges of Christian indignation. The time for the coming of the infidel sciolist is over-due. Who will fling this degrading naturalism to the discard. How contrastive the crystalline purity and beauty of the evangelical narrative.

We need at this time to remind ourselves that our new testament is not a batch of legends. Our Christianity is a historical religion, built up on facts and data historically provable and verified by Christian experience and does not rest on legendary fabrications.

The denial of the virgin birth brings a train of denials. The denial of the resurrection and of the miracles and the majestic affirmations of Jesus when He called Himself the light of the world, the way the truth and the life, the resurrection and the life, the judge of all men—leaving a thin residuum of exemplieship which the natural man can copy. But His example no man can repeat. Imitate His spirit of endurance of reviling. His spirit of compassion we may, but His career—who can catch the stride of His redeemership and repeat his works of power. Who can strike His pace, who can copy the work of a redeemer of the race, who can send his influence into the whole cosmos as does He, who can girdle the earth with His regenerative power?

3. For what did He come?

The answer is to reveal God. He came for self-revelation. Nature does not exhaustively reveal God. His power, it may. His wisdom, yes. His general beneficence, yes. But what fathomless depths of the divine nature remain undisclosed. Test this by yourself. How little of yourself have you used. How few of these universal experiences have you shared. How many human relationships have you taken. What if you had been born to affluence or what if you had been born an artist, a poet, an inventor, a statesman, a scientist, an adventurer in undiscovered lands—and yet the germs of these are uncoiled latencies in you but undeveloped. Think then of the bidden latencies in God's nature awaiting revelation. What new windows looking Godward has Jesus Christ broken open through which we look into the heart of God.

The incarnation and the after career of Jesus Christ were necessary unto the fuller revelation of God which nature or unfallen creation could not furnish, at the heart of which is the sacrificial nature of God. His love, His redeeming power, His desire for the love and loyalty of beings whom He had created and had lost.

4. Then the Son of Man came seeking. Other religions represent man's search for God. In the Christian religion God is seeking man. And this makes the universe new. The fixed order of the world seems to be putting God away from us. Its last word is depart, go into the outer darkness. This is the plain meaning of sin. It separates, it opens uncrossable abysses, it divides, it shuts all the gates of happiness, it excludes from the banquet hall. Man has been convinced that he is a wanderer in inextricable wilds. He has lost an unrecoverable good. His is a lost paradise. But the incarnation is the arrival of help. It is the movement of a divine seeker manwards. He comes. He creeps into humanity by lowliest doors, comes in such lowly guise that no poor lost child can doubt his sincerity and meaningfulness. The Son of Man is seeking the lost. His is seeking love. He goes full-length in search, into the far wilderness to find the lost jewels from His crown. He pursues the fleeing fugitive down the precipitous abysses into which souls have fallen, seeking till He finds.

Then lastly the Son of Man comes seeking to save. Save, safety, salvation are redemptive terms and they are strong words suggestive of rescue of risk, exposure. He came for a very definite rescue. A sinful condition is a dangerous condition. He came to rescue from positive danger. And dangerous exposure is not averted by unguents and soft speeches. He drags men out of the mouth of hell. Men are rushing to the precipices and Jesus Christ is here to stop the fatal stampede. He turns men back. He came not to flatter human nature, not to tell men dripping with foulness that they are divine, that they are sons of God by nature and may rest secure. He came to give men option of sonship and the life eternal, to give men power to become, yes, to become the sons of God.

And we need the mission of saving, of salvation. We are pursued by the swift Eumenides with swords of flame, but He stands resistingly in the way of our pursuers. He saves wasting and wasted lives, finds great uses for perverted faculties and recovers men to new loyalties and new destinies. He gives us an option on eternal life but we must take the great venture and choose life.

NAME FOUR STREETS FOR SLIDING TONIGHT

Through the efforts of the recreation commission, W. J. Fitzgerald, chairman, and the cooperation of the local police department, four streets in the city are to be set aside for coasting purposes this (Tuesday) evening from 7 until 9 o'clock. This news will be received with pleasure by hundreds of young people in the city, who will now have a chance to slide on streets which will be well policed and the danger of accidents greatly lessened.

Four streets have been set aside for the coasters, Union street, Boswell avenue on the north end, from Seventh street to the Point saloon, Fox Hill on the East Side and Elizabeth street on the West Side.

Coasting has been exceptionally fine during the past two days and hundreds of young people have been enjoying coasting. The recreation commission, with a view to making coasting safe for young people in the evening, asked for the cooperation of the police department Tuesday night and this was granted.

While the coasting hours are being enjoyed, Broadway will become a two-way street, Union street being closed to traffic.

MERCHANTS WARNED AGAINST FAKE SOLICITING AGENT

That there is a man, traveling under the name of F. E. Miller, who is soliciting advertising to be published in a magazine for the benefit of the American Legion, department of Connecticut, was discovered recently and a bulletin sent out from the state department. The local post has been apprised that the man is an imposter. Merchants are warned against a visit by the imposter.

The bulletin stated that receipts for money have been signed by a Frank S. Baker and in the name of the American Legion, which makes the man liable for getting money under false pretenses. Danbury was the first city in which the imposter did business.

NORWICH TOWN

Christmas Sunday, at the morning worship at the First Congregational church, there was not as large a congregation as usual because of the storm. An excellent sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, on "Following the Gleam," Matthew 2:9. The special program of music arranged by Organist Herbert L. Yerrington as published in The Bulletin was successfully carried out.

The church was attractively decorated by the flower committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society. Small cedar trees were arranged about the pulpit and on the platform, while evergreen was twined around the pillars on either side. The electrical fixtures on both sides were adorned with hemlocks. The session of the church school was omitted on account of the storm. Prior to morning worship Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, conducted a religious service at 9:30 at Norwich State hospital.

At Sacred Heart church, Christmas day, the first mass was celebrated at 6:30 o'clock followed by mass at 8 o'clock. During the high mass at ten Conconea mass was sung by the senior choir, which also provided the music at the first mass, with Miss Mary Buckley and Henry Jarvis sustaining the solo parts. At the eight o'clock mass the junior choir sang the Christmas hymns very sweetly. The music was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy.

Rev. Edward J. Quinn, pastor of the church, read the gospel of the day from the second chapter of St. Luke, after which preceding his sermon, he wished his parishioners a happy and joyous Christmas. Rev. Father Quinn dwelt in particular on the birth of the Saviour, humbly born in a stable and by His example teaching us humility.

The altar decorations consisted of roses, carnations, poinsettias and evergreen wreaths, while in the sanctuary were potted palms. At the epistle side of the altar was a reproduction of the Christ Child's birth. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the last mass. All three masses were attended by large congregations.

The family at the Johnson Home had a fine time Christmas day. The household was showered with cards and gifts from relatives and friends.

At noon under the supervision of Mrs. May Rollins, matron, an excellent chicken dinner was served. The chickens were raised at the home and the celery was also grown on the place besides mine and pumpkin pie. The members had oranges, apples, bananas and candy. The oranges as usual were donated by Miss Mary Porteous.

Very pretty desk calendars were provided each member of the home, by the Sunshine class of the First Baptist Sunday school. Norwich. From Home chapter of The King's Daughters, each woman received a new bill enclosed in a bank folder. The helpers at the home also received the same gift from Home chapter of which Mrs. William E. Manning is leader.

The company of thirteen, under Mrs. Rollins' care, as well as others in the home, have greatly enjoyed the elaborately decorated Community Christmas tree, which has been brilliantly lighted for several evenings. The festivities on the green Christmas night, concluded a happy holiday for the family.

Ever Ready circle of The King's Daughters is to have a Christmas tree party this (Tuesday) evening, at the home of Miss J. G. Bonney, of Harland road. The Christmas service at the Almshouse scheduled to take place Sunday afternoon, under the direction of this circle, was called off owing to the storm. It had been planned that Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, would accompany the members and give an address at this institution. This will be carried out at a future date. Following an annual custom, the circle presented every member of the home a dainty Christmas box filled with candy and an orange, accompanied by a gift for each one. These were distributed Sunday.

At the December meeting of this circle held at the Sheltering Arms, with the matron, Mrs. Rosie Bodkwith, the following were elected to office for 1927: Leader, Mrs. Philip B. Whaley; vice-leader, Mrs. Walter Heath; treasurer, (re-elected) Miss Mary Waffles, secretary, Mrs. Charles P. Learned.

Men may come and men may go, but the lent-umbrella joke goes on forever.

BROTHER OF NEW MIKADO HAS ARRIVED IN NEW YORK

Prince Yasuhito Chichiby Was Taken Off the Fog Bound Liner Majestic at Quarantine by Coast Guard Cutter Raritan—Booming of a 21 Gun Salute, Fired at Governor's Island, Was the Only Formal Gesture Marking the Arrival of the Japanses Prince—The Prime Minister of Australia, Stanley M. Bruce, Also Was Taken Off the Majestic.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Prince Yasuhito Chichibu, of Japan, brother of the new mikado, called from his studies in Oxford because of the fatal illness of his father, and Stanley M. Bruce, prime minister of Australia, arrived here today under conditions which never before marked the arrival of two such distinguished men. The booming of a 21-gun salute, fired at Governor's Island, was practically the only formal gesture marking their arrival. Under the direction of J. Wilbur Wright, assistant secretary of state, they were taken off the Majestic at quarantine by the coast guard cutter Raritan, a heavy fog having kept the liner from continuing to her pier.

Proceeding up the bay, the Raritan was forced, because of the heavy pall of fog, to keep within 100 to 200 feet of the pierheads. The trip up the bay was accompanied with many hazards, the cutter dodging in and out of the heavy river traffic and passing larger craft which did not recognize the Raritan's importance or give her due consideration as the bearer of royalty, or of a foreign government dignitary.

At pier 59, where the Raritan docked, the prince was met by a group of notable Japanese from Washington and New York and Prime Minister Bruce by a delegation of Australians and Englishmen. Under a police motorcycle escort, the prince was driven to the Plaza hotel and Mr. Bruce to the Hotel Biltmore.

Prince Yasuhito had prepared a statement, written on fine linen, bordered with a black margin and bearing the imperial seal of Japan. The statement read:

"I am hurrying home this time under a most painful circumstance, and I have no occasion, therefore, to have the pleasure of meeting the people of this country, the country which has had a very important relation toward my own during the last 70 years in bringing it to the position we now enjoy.

"It would be a pleasure to me if, in the near future, I could have an opportunity of visiting the states under a happier circumstance."

He indicated indirectly the deep emotion he felt at the death of his father. His aides requested newspapermen not to ask any questions about the obsequies. He and his aides, as well as the Japanese delegation which met his party, were in deep mourning.

The prince, who is second in line to the Japanese throne, will pay his respects in person to President Coolidge but his visit to the white house will be a quiet one. He is to sail from San Francisco for Tokyo on Jan. 8. His trip to the Pacific coast port will not be attended by social engagements. Hugh Wilson, former counsellor to the American embassy in Japan, will accompany him to San Francisco.

In a brief conversation with reporters, the prince, after giving out his statement, expressed a keen interest in sports, showed his knowledge of this country's baseball players and mentioned Babe Ruth. The only wish he expressed was to be allowed to see a five and ten cent store, explaining he was interested in the magnitude of the business and its immense variety.

It was learned that the prince who is 24 years old had vowed in one of the Oxford shells but when this topic was brought up, the Japanese ambassador, who was in the delegation that met him, interposed and no further reference was made to it.

HOODED MEN FLOGGED AN ATTORNEY IN ATLANTA, GA.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The flogging of Wimberly E. Brown, an attorney, by a band of hooded men near Lyons, Ga., Friday night brought from Governor Clifford Walker today a warning that martial law will be declared "if the regular processes of the courts fail to curb these outrages." Nathan Bedford Forrest, head of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia, issued a statement terming the incident "an unspeakable outrage."

Those in the band "wore robes in imitation of the Klan regalia, but were not in any sense Klansmen," Mr. Forrest said, and added that the Klan will offer a reward for the apprehension of those involved.

Declaring in a formal statement that "mobs with heads covered with flour sacks shall not rule in Georgia," Gov. Walker offered a special reward of $1,000 for the first conviction of a member of the masked band.

Judge E. N. Hardman at Louisville, Ga., called the Toombs county superior court and grand jury into special session beginning Jan. 17 to investigate the whipping.

19 PER CENT LIQUOR MADE FROM DENATURED ALCOHOL

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Ninety-nine per cent. of the 26,000 samples of seized liquor analyzed during the past year by the prohibition authorities in New York were made from denatured alcohol, says a report of Major Chester P. Mills, prohibition director, made public tonight.

The alcohols used, the report asserts were either "completely denatured" or wood alcohol or specially denatured types prepared by the addition of poisonous or noxious compounds. Of the samples examined by J. W. Quillin, government chemist attached to the New York prohibition staff, 51 per cent are said to have shown that they had been prepared from wood alcohol and 48 per cent from denatured alcohols.

COLDER WEATHER MAY STEM FLOODS IN WEST

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Forecasts of colder weather tonight and clear skies tomorrow supported hopes tonight that relief was in sight for flooded areas of several states where continuous rains have brought about flood situations.

General rains of last night and today were followed by renewed rising of streams in the basin of the lower Ohio and the Mississippi rivers and more extensive inundation along smaller streams.

Chief interest tonight centered on Cumberland and Tennessee rivers which have overflowed at many places bringing distress to Nashville and Chattanooga and to inhabitants of Bottom country in Tennessee and Kentucky.

While these two tributaries of the Ohio continued to rise gradually late today, their crests were expected to move downstream through tomorrow and Thursday. The lower Ohio was rising and in Indiana and Kentucky had overflowed low grounds in both states and caused farmers to move livestock and equipment to safer places.

Relief measures were being carried on in Nashville where the greatest distress prevailed. Several score blocks in the Tennessee capital remained under water. Police and sanitary officials provided shelter for refugees and set up safeguards against diseases.

The total of fatalities attributed to the southern floods stood tonight at 13, while property damage could not be estimated.

High waters in Arkansas were still receding tonight and the menace of floods which have damaged crops and highways was believed to have passed.

HEAVY RAIN AND THAW COVERED CONNECTICUT

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 28.— (AP) —A heavy rain and thawing temperature during the day had left Connecticut in a bedraggled state tonight. City streets and country highways resembled lakes or placid rivers and in some places mountain torrents as water rushed down deep ruts cut by automobiles in the snow and ice left by Sunday's storm.

The rain had virtually ceased tonight, but the weather man had promised a lower temperature for tomorrow which was expected to turn the slush now covering the state into an ice sheet.

Pedestrians, autoists and trolleymen were discommoded by the rain and slushy footing. The pedestrians suffered the most for almost every street intersection could be crossed only by wading. The autoist came in for his share of trouble when water splashed from passing cars or underneath by his own machine got to wires and caused the engine to stop. Trolleys were running on any time except scheduled time.

GERMANY AND ITALY TO SIGN FRIENDSHIP TREATY

ROME, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Representatives of Germany and Italy will sign a treaty of friendship and arbitration at the foreign office tomorrow.

The treaty of amity and arbitration between Italy and Germany represents another step in Mussolini's foreign policy, which embodies closer relations with the other nations.

Italy, by virtue of the Locarno treaty of mutual guarantee jointly with Great Britain already is a guarantor of the peace and security of central Europe.

The new pact was negotiated in Geneva during the league of nations council session early this month.

Germany is already linked by arbitration treaties with France, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, these pacts being arranged simultaneously with the Locarno security convention.

CHARGE MADE AGAINST DILLON, READ & CO.

TOLEDO Ohio, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dillon, Read and Company, New York, was charged in federal court here today with being the instigator of a recent stockholder's suit to prevent F. A. Seiberling and his associates from voting a common stock trusteeship in the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

The charges were made by attorneys for Seiberling in support of a motion before Judge John M. Killits to quash summons in the suit. They also declared that Mrs. Katherine D. Benedict of New York in whose name the action was brought owns but 100 shares of the 850,000 shares of common stock in the company and that she acquired these only a few days before the suit was filed.

Seiberling's counsel asked leave to subpoena witnesses to support the contention that Dillon, Read and Company backed the suit. The court took the request under advisement.

Petition for a writ of mandamus requiring Judge Killits to agree to the assignment of another judge to hear the litigation was filed in United States court of appeals in Cincinnati yesterday.

Judge Killits recently dismissed an affidavit of prejudice filed by the defense asking him to relinquish the case.

HELEN B. GILMAN DONATES $160 TO SOCIALIST PARTY

HARTFORD, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The contribution of $160 by Helen B. Gilman to the campaign fund of the socialist party which, by naming her as its candidate for secretary of the state, made her the only woman candidate for a major state office in the last campaign, was more than sufficient to pay all the socialist state organization expenses, according to the report of William J. Morgan, party treasurer, on file at the office of the secretary of the state. The total expenses of the party, according to the report were $156.84, with some bills outstanding, and a balance of $59.16 on hand. The workers party which did not have a state ticket in the field, but had one candidate for state senator collected $80.50 and spent the same amount.

Mrs. Morgan, who was the socialist candidate for attorney general gave $20, $2 was contributed by persons not candidates and $33.50 was received from

SERVED TRAFFIC SUMMONS ON GIRL HOME FOR VACATION

NEWTON, Mass., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Traffic Officer Lawrence O'Donnell's perseverance in perusing the society columns in the newspapers was rewarded today. Last September he obtained a court summons for Miss Rosamond Tucker of Brookline, charging that she was speeding and driving an automobile without a license, but when he tried to serve it found she had returned to her studies at Vassar college. Turning to the society page of his paper the other day, O'Donnell read "Miss Rosamond Tucker is home for the holidays." Served with the summons Miss Tucker appeared in district court today and paid a fine of $10.

Refundi[illegally] Collected Fed. Taxes

During Fiscal Year Ending June 30, $174,120,177 Was Returned to 287,000 Taxpayers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon advised congress today that the treasury during the fiscal year ended last June 30 refunded $174,120,177 in illegally collected federal taxes. The refunds covering collections for several years went to approximately 287,000 taxpayers and ranged from one cent to millions of dollars.

An appropriation of about the same amount monthly was requested by President Coolidge to cover refunds which the treasury is making during this fiscal year, the names of those receiving them to be made later.

The list made public today, which includes many large business concerns and prominent persons, is topped by the E. I. Dupont De Nemours corporation, of Wilmington, Del., with a refund of $6,790,282. Alfred I. Dupont recovered $2,036,618 while the Du Pont Fabrikoid corporation received $341,153.

The Rockefeller family is represented in the list of John D. Sr., with two refunds totaling $76,475 while the Ford Motor company of Detroit, was returned $106. Refund of one cent each were made to Tom Bounds, of Orange, Texas, and A. J. Harris of Houston.

William G. McAdoo appeared in the list with a credit of $7,711 but there was no notation to indicate whether the repayment was made to the former secretary of the treasury. Rudyard Kipling, the British writer was credited with $93,90 to be paid to Stephens Van Wyck of New York.

Names of several justices of the supreme court were in the list as due refunds under the court's decision last year that salaries of members of the federal judiciary were non-taxable. The refunds, in many cases representing accumulation of several years, were headed by Chief Justice Taft, with $8,798 and Associate Justices Sutherland $5,488; Butler $4,901; Sanford $1,721, and McReynolds $4.10.

NEWEST ASPIRANT FROM THE WEST FOR OPERATIC HONORS

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Emma Chladek Janousek, widow and mother of two grown children, has arrived in New York from Omaha, Nebr., as the newest aspirant from the west for operatic honors. An audition for her will be arranged immediately, Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opear company, announced here today. At Mr. Kahn's invitation Mrs. Janousek came east to capitalize years of hard study for a professional career.

Mrs. Janousek, credited with having a mezzo-contralto voice of exceptional power and tonal qualities, is a former member of an Omaha church choir. She is the daughter of a wealth Czech farmer. Mrs. Janousek began studying music when a young girl and was well on her way to a professional debut when her marriage to an Omaha attorney led her to sacrifice her desire for concert work. After the death of her husband in 1918, she resumed her professional studies.

Mr. Kahn said Mrs. Janousek was recommended to him by a prominent Omaha attorney.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT SELF WHILE CLEANING PISTOL

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Frank Fucci's preparedness for an emergency has obtained for him a hospital bed.

Fucci today had an argument with a "friend" over an automobile during which the "friend" threatened Fucci because he refused to pay for repairs which were necessary following an accident while Fucci had the car.

Fearing an attempt on his life, Fucci told police, he thought he had better prepare for an emergency and went to his home where he started cleaning a .25 calibre revolver. While in the process, he accidentally pulled the trigger and a bullet lodge in his hip.

Taken to Grace hospital, an X-ray was taken to locate the bullet which is to be extracted tomorrow. Fucci's condition is not serious.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY BUCKSHOT FROM HIS OWN GUN

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Ernest E. Hunt, 17, of this town was instantly killed today by a charge of buckshot from his own gun which was accidentally discharged while the boy was playing with his hunting dog. The shot struck the boy in the throat.

The boy had been in the woods with a companion, Benjamin S. Clifford, on a rabbit hunting expedition. The youths were walking along looking for quarry, with Hunt occasionally halting to frolic with his dog. Clifford who was leading the way heard a shot and when he turned about saw his friend lying on the ground. Hunt's neck was almost severed and he died instantly.

APPROVE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Plans for the preparation of an American encyclopedia of social sciences through the cooperative enterprise of seven national organizations at a cost of $650,000 were approved by the executive council of the American Historical association which opened its 41st annual convention here today.

The work, considered a mammoth task of American scholarship, will occupy six years with the results to be embodied in 10 volumes each containing some 800,000 words. Five sixths of the cost is assured, it was said, and Dr. Edwin R. A. Seligman, McVickar professor of political economy at Columbia university has been selected as editor-in-chief.

The association council, in summarizing the scope of the proposed work, said it would include all those sciences which are either primarily social in character and content or which have no social connections.

Policy of U. S. Action in Nicaraguan Affairs

Protection of American Life and Property — Taking No Hand Between the Warring Factions.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The trouble in Nicaragua aroused new reverberations in Washington today, stirring the white house to make public explanation of its policy and bringing into sharper definition the points of controversy between the administration and its critics.

Replying directly to some of the protests against the landing of American forces on Nicaraguan soil, the white house spokesman declared the United States had no other object than the protection of American life and property, and was taking no hand as between the two Nicaraguan factions who are contending for control of the country.

Later in the day Secretary Kellogg of the state department and Secreary Wilbur of the navy went hurriedly to the white house where they remained closeted for a long time with President Coolidge. The development set in motion many reports of important developments in the embattled little Central American republic, but when the conference was over the white house and Mr. Wilbur remained silent while Secretary Kellogg said the conversation had related to China.

Meantime the envoy here of the unrecognized Sacasa government at Puerto Cabezas sent to the state department a formal protest against the operations of the American forces landed in the Puerto Cabezas district. Among other things the protest accused Rear Admiral Latimer, the American naval commander in Nicaraguan waters, of setting up a censorship in violation of the international law. Both the state and navy department denied that they knew of any such a step.

One of those who looked upon the day's developments with particular curiosity was Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee. The administration policy in Nicaragua has not appealed to him very strongly, but he is withholding a decision. Despite assurances given him repeatedly in talks he has had with Secretary Kellogg, Mr. Borah is making a personal investigation and until it is completed he will not decide whether to ask congress to go into the whole subject after the holidays.

The white house pronouncement today was directed at charges emanating from Central America and elsewhere that the real purpose of the American landing force was to strengthen the hand of President Diaz, who has been recognized by the United States as constitutional ruler of that country, and to cripple the activities of the Sacasa group, recognized by Mexico.

The spokesman for the president said that in making the landing Admiral Latimer had followed the usual policy of the United States in Central America, making his contacts with shore at such points and in such a manner as to prevent harm to American life and property by either of the combatants. It was denied specifically that the American marines and bluejackets at Puerto Cabezas had interfered with the liberal leader, Cacasa, or the members of his cabinet. Sacasa has been given a house for his own use by the Braggmans Bluff Lumber company, an American hardwood concern in the Puerto Cabezas district, the white house has been told, and he and his lieutenants are at liberty to carry on there as they see fit.

400 NICARAGUAN SOLDIERS EITHER KILLED OR CAPTURED

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 28—(S")—Of 400 soldiers of the conservative government forces covering the retreat in the three days fighting with the liberals at Las Perlas, on the east coast, many were killed, while the others were surrounded and captured.

Advices received here tell of the fierce battle which 1,000 conservative troops fought against 1,500 liberals, 300 of whom are alleged to have been Mexican soldiers and officers.

Finding themselves hard pressed, a retreat was ordered, and 600 of the conservatives retired to El Bluff, leaving the others to cover the retirement. The covering forces disputed every inch of the way, but could not withstand the skillfully directed attacks of the liberals.

The conservatives ran short of ammunition, even before their retreat, and their machine gun fire was no match for the twelve pieces of light artillery brought into play by their opponents.

The conservative troop are now at El Bluff and will be disarmed by the American naval forces, as El Bluff is a neutral zone.

The liberals gained access to the Scondido river, capturing Fruta de Pan, situated on the river, and began an attack on Monkey ridge, an important strategic point, which, if taken would give them control of the river, where the American Fruit companies operate.

Other contingents from the liberals are proceeding to Rama, which is held by a small conservative detachment.

SOME STATE WATERS HAVE BEEN TOO HOT FOR TROUT

HARTFORD, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Some of the waters of the state of Connecticut have become literally too hot for trout, according to the report of Supt. John W. Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game. Many of the streams which were once teaming with trout, he says, now warm to such high temperatures in summer that they they are not congenial for trout, due to deforestation and particularly the clearing off of shade bushes and trees along stream bank.

Streams which were once plentifully stocked with trout now range during the summer from a temperature of 60 to 70 in the early morning to 80 to 90, the maximum being too high for trout which are forced during hot dry weather to seek springholes and smaller tributary streams, if they are available. One stream survey showed a gain of ten degrees in the temperature during half a mile of its course through a meadow from which all brush had been removed.

TO PURGE N. Y. OF SALACIOUS THEATRICAL PRODUCTIONS

Mayor Walker Has Instructed Producers That Should They Fail to Take Corrective Action the Official Censor Would Apply the Legal Scrubbing Brush—While Real Artistic Shows on Broadway Are Starving to Death, the Immoral Productions Are Selling Out Nightly—Many Complaints Have Been Received About the Undressed Conditions of Some of the Musical Shows.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—Theatrical producers of the great White Way were told today that if their stages were not immediately cleansed of immorality with a theatrical broom they would be scoured spotless with a legal scrubbing brush.

Summoned to city hall by Mayor Walker the producers were told of numerous complaints received concerning current attractions and were instructed that they themselves could take the corrective action necessary, if they acted quickly.

Otherwise, they were informed, the official censor would become an actuality to stalk the playhouses with a critical eye and with the power of the law behind him.

All the prominent producers called in by the mayor attended the conference except Sam H. Harris, who is in Connecticut.

After the producers had left, Mayor Walker admitted newspapermen and told them of his plans.

"If they don't do something themselves," he said of the producers, "censorship will follow, much as I am opposed to that.

"I understand that the real artistic shows on Broadway are starving to death and that some fly-by-night salacious productions are selling out nightly. Many of the complaints are about the undressed condition of some of the musical shows.

"I don't want to assume an alarming attitude, but something must be done. They are dumping in New York shows that could not get bookings on the road."

Mayor Walker expressed the opinion that it is impossible to obtain convictions where police officers make arrests of individuals on the ground that their performances are salacious. The play goes on, he said, and the players are usually acquitted.

Juries, he decided, refused to act as censors and so the only recourse if the producers refused to "see the light" he believed to be legislation creating an official censor. Such legislation he said he would have enacted if the producers did not act.

"But how about the citizens play juries appointed by District Attorney Banton as an unofficial adjunct of his office?" a reporter asked. "Have they proved a flat failure?"

WOODROW WILSON PRIZE PRESENTED ELIHU ROOT

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—Elihu Root, former secretary of state, received the Woodrow Wilson foundation peace prize for 1926 at a dinner at the Hotel Astor tonight on the seventieth anniversary of the birth of the war time president.

The presentation was made by Norman H. Davis, president of the foundation, and marked the recognition of Mr. Root's work in 1920 in the creation of the permanent court of international justice.

"The growing prestige of the world court and its success in preserving peace through the settlement of international questions of a justifiable character has demonstrated the importance of the services Mr. Root rendered in 1920," said Mr. Davis.

The Woodrow Wilson award medal accompanies a cash prize of $25,000. Mr. Root is the second person to receive the 1924 prize, Viscount Cecil is Great Britain's chief representative to the league of nations.

ILL. GANG LEADER BIRGER SURRENDERED TO SHERIFFS

HARRISBURG, Ills., Dec. 28—(AP)—After a peaceful surrender to two Saline county deputy sheriffs, Charles Birger, southern Illinois gang leader, tonight was under arrest at his home here on a warrant charging the murder of Joe Adams, mayor of West City, in Franklin county. Plans were to take him to Benton, county seat of Franklin county, some time after midnight.

Adams was shot and killed two weeks ago at his front doorway by two unidentified gunmen who lured him out of the house on the pretense of delivering a letter.

The sheriff and his deputies granted Birger the privilege of allowing six or seven of his followers to accompany him to Benton. They said they set the late hour for the trip and allowed the company of the Birger men to safeguard the party against any possible trouble with parties of Birger's enemies along the road.

The gang leader announced that he would try to raise bond at Benton tomorrow, if the state's attorney would grant it.

THANS-ATLANTIC CABLE $75 FOR FIRST THREE MINUTES

LONDON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Trans-Atlantic telephone service which is to be available to the public early in January, will cost 15 pounds (about $75) for the first three minutes of a call and $5 for each additional minute, it was announced today by the postmaster general.

Wrong numbers won't count, however, and unless the London "hello girl" gets the particular person asked for in the New York area to which the service is limited at present, the charge will be $5 for making the attempt. Calls will be limited to 12 minutes when others are waiting to talk across the ocean.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO SPEAK AT TRENTON TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—President Coolidge will make a quick trip to Trenton, N. J., to deliver a speech tomorrow night at the sesqui-centennial celebrations of the Battle of Trenton. The governors of the thirteen states have been invited to attend the banquet at which he will speak.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, the president will arrive in Trenton just before the banquet and will board his train immediately afterward for an overnight trip back to Washington.

His speech will be broadcast by station WOR of Newark, N. J.

CONDITION OF ALBERT B. FALL IS "VERY GOOD"

EL PASO, Texas, Dec 28—(AP)—The condition of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who has been ill at his home here since Sunday, was described as "very good" in a bulletin issued tonight by Dr. H. T. Safford.

The physician said disease "in all probability is an influenza pneumonia which has a rather indefinite course".

Mr. Fall appeared to offer "good resistance" and it was hoped he would be out of danger within a few days, the bulletin said.

JAIL SENTENCE AND $1,500 FINE FOR LOTTERY MAN

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 28—(AP)—Clifford J. (Connie) Lewis, 39, local sportsman and proprietor of a bowling alley in this city facing a four months term in the county jail for conducting a treasury balance lottery, had "nothing to say" relative to the disposition of his case this morning before Judge Alfred C. Baldwin in the criminal superior court. Lewis spent the afternoon at his establishment busily engaged in straightening his affairs preparatory to his entrance to the county jail on next Friday night, when he will start his sentence.

Lewis pleaded guilty to one count of operating a lottery and to 14 counts of having sold lottery tickets. He was fined $100 on each of the 15 counts and sentenced to jail for one month on each of the counts, the sentence being suspended in all of the counts with the exception of the first four.

Other than to state that Lewis' decision was one that had been given grave consideration, his counsel, Attorney Clifford B. Wilson, refused to discuss the case.

MAN WHO INSPIRED POEM FOUND HALF STARVED

DANVERS, Mass., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A half starved old man, a gardener by trade and a vetetarian by diet, lies seriously ill in the state hospital here while neighbors recalled the gossip which named him model for the tribute to boyhood by John Greenleaf Whittier, that ran, you remember:

"Blessings on thee, little man,
Barefoot boy, with cheek of tan;
With thy turned up pantaloons,
And thy merry whistled tunes,
With red lip, redder still
Kissed by strawberries on the hill;
With the sunshine on thy face
Through thy torn brim's jaunty grace
From my heart I give thee joy;
I was once a barefoot boy!"

Frankie Marston is the name of the gray-whiskered man whom neighbors assisted from his lonely cottage after he had been found weak from lack of food. These neighbors recalled the poem, that it was attributed to his inspiration, and that he had worked here on an estate where Whittier had lived. They recalled also that the gardener shunned meats and subsisted largely on fruits, nuts and berries.

COLONIAL AIR TRANSPORT, INC., TO INCREASE STOCK

HARTFORD, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Stockholders of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., holders of the air mail contract on the New York-Boston route, on which Hartford is the mid-way stopping point, meeting here this morning, voted to increase the preferred stock of the company from $330,000 to $2,000,000 and the number of shares of no par value common stock from 6,600 to 30,000.

Acting of the Colonial stockholders today was preparatory to filing of bids by that company with the government for operation of two lines from New York to Chicago, which are to be turned over to the private operation by the government. One of these lines is the overnight route, leaving New York at 9.30 p. m., and arriving in Chicago at 5.15 a. m., the next morning and the other the eastern end of the trans-continental route, leaving New York at 11.30 a. m., and delivering the cargo in San Francisco 34 hours later, Chicago being one of the intermediary stopping points.

NECESSITY FOR WIDELY DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Whether wealth is widely distributed or instead concentrated in the hands of the few is a matter of great significance from a political standpoint, Willford I. King, of the national bureau of economic research, told the American Statistical association in convention here today. He said:

"Those who possess the wealth of the nation are, often times, its real rulers. The fact is generally recognized that the country in which most of the wealth is in the hands of the few, while the great majority of the people are propertyless, is one in which it is easy to incite the inhabitants to revolution, for under such circumstances, the masses feel that they have little to lose through any political upheaval that may occur."

MAN IN PUTNAM HOSPITAL KNOWN IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 28—George Morley of Hartford who has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital after being found unconscious at Dayville last Thursday has a reputation for giving the police of this section considerable investigation work throughout the past year. Morley is a World war veteran who was gassed overseas. He told State Policeman Irving elson and others who questioned him that he was a coast artillery man at Fort Hancock, N. Y., and had come to Putnam to buy an automobile. Peculiar happenings are not new in Morley's life. The Christmas incident at Danielson, the fourth within the year in which he has played a part. During the Christmas week of 1925 a man who was picked out of a snowbank in West Hartford was not identified until three days later, at that time being identified as Morley. On Nov. 1 of this year a man was picked up unconscious on the highway just outside the city of Rockville and after receiving medical attention he told a story of being beaten and robbed. He could not remember his name but a broadcast of the description of him eventually revealed his identity. Last Armistice day night Officer Roderick Lariviere of the local police department picked up an unconscious man from the gutter on Jackson street, and took him to St. Joseph's hospital. The man said he had been struck by an automobile although there were no marks on his body. He was held for observation and two days later said he was George Britt of 10 Hills avenue, Jersey City, N. J., and claimed that he was a World war veteran and had been gassed. After being identified as Morley he was discharged from the local hospital.

Local talent again appeared on the program at the weekly luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel at noon Tuesday when John R. Pickett, manager of the Gem theatre and John C. Frazier, manager of the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company were introduced as the speakers. Mayor John C. Tracy, chairman of the Community Service committee was in charge of the entertainment, the meeting being turned over to him by President James P. Bath. Guests at the meeting were, Harry Cleveland of Torrington, "Jim" Starkweather, "Syd" P. Morland and Secretary Burdette C. Hopkins of the Danielson Rotary club and John E. Brick of this city. Mr. Pickett told the story of film making and of the difference between the motion picture reels thirty years ago when they were first shown and today. He then gave interesting figures giving estimates of the value of the motion picture industry in this city. Mr. Frazier reviewed the development of the neighborhood or pay station telephone from the time of its invention by William Gray. Both speakers were accorded a vote of thanks.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Bosworth were held at 506 Main street at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon with Rev. David Winslow Lovett of the Baptist church officiating. The body was placed in the receiving vault at the Willimantic cemetery.

A holiday dance for the entertainment of college students visiting at their homes here was given in the Congregational church house Monday evening by the Thimble club of which Mrs. Harvey Bronson is leader. The affair was a decided success. Mrs. Arthur S. Wheelock was chairman of the arrangements committee and Mrs. Jay E. Grant of the decorations.

A light snow fall which fell early Tuesday morning and then turned into a steady rain again made traveling by foot or in automobiles hazardous. The rain washed snow and sand away leaving a layer of ice exposed on sidewalk and street. While the rain continued sand could not be spread to cover this. Street Superintendent Irvin M. Ford called his men from the work of carting snow from the streets of the business section and set to applying sand wherever it would remain. Several minor accidents happened during the day.

The funeral services for Mrs. Eva R. Chappell were held at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Congregational church house at South Chaplin. Rev. Walter E Lanphear officiated. During the service a duet composed of Mrs. George Chandler and Miss Shugrue rendered selections, with Mrs. Adelbert Trowbridge as accompanist. Burial was in the Chewink cemetery, Chaplin. The bearers were James Lewis, Alfred Hall, Edward Belec and William Roberts. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

North Windham will soon witness the dedication of its new fire department quarters and the event is being anticipated by both the firemen and the community with great enthusiasm. The structure which has been under process of construction for several weeks is a two-story affair which will house a Reo combination hose and chemical truck. A new chassis was purchased and the body is being constructed by Wilbur G. Stevens. The building will be ready for occupancy about the twentieth of January when a dedication ceremony will take place.

Joseph Ellis, engineer at the town building is suffering from a badly lacerated forefinger and a torn middle finger of the left hand sustained Tuesday morning while he was assisting Captain of Police Frank McLean in repacking street traffic signals into boxes in the police station lobby. The heavy signal was being lowered into the box when Engineer Ellis' hand became wedged against the box. The flesh of the middle finger was torn from the first joint to the tip. A physician was called to dress the wounds.

JEWETT CITY

SHELDON TELLS COMMISSION OF OPEN SEASON ON DEER

Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 28.—Byron Sheldon, woodsman and trapper of Griswold, with 40 years' experience with rod and gun, and to whom all the mysteries of forest and stream are an open book, was called, and duly appeared, before the state fish and game commission at Hartford a few days ago. Wishing to benefit in their future recommendations, by the actual knowledge of local hunting conditions Mr. Sheldon was questioned relative to his views regarding six days of open season, next year, when deer may be killed in Connecticut.

Mr. Sheldon favors such a law being enacted at the next session of the state legislature. Said he, "All our sister states have a six-day open season on deer. The damage they do each year to young trees and growing crops is up on the hundreds of dollars. At present there are probably close to 100 wild deer that find a winter home and comfort in the great wooded districts of Griswold, off to the south and east of this borough. Mr. Sheldon declares that there is plenty of evidence that deer are even now hard hunted, by those who find a way to keep clear of the law. Several cases are now on record of hunters and fishermen who have come upon wounded deer in the woods. Mr. Sheldon is not in favor of hunting them with a rifle, and believes that the revenue received from a six-day open season on deer, would help to stock the streams and lakes with trout and bass, also help to defray the expense of enforcing the game laws.

He says, if there is to be a close season on quail or grouse, keep the hunters out of the woods altogether, adding, "Today it is open season on deer all the year round to the farmer on his own land!"

It is not too late now to join our 1927 Christmas Club. Jewett City Savings Bank.—adv.

The number of memberships received by Jewett City chapter, American Red Cross, in the 1926 roll call is 714. There was $11.75 contributed, the whole amount received being $725.75; $357 was sent to headquarters at Washington Tuesday. This year $139.96 was sent to headquarters for Florida relief, through the treasurer of the chapter, so that $865.71 has been the total amount received by the chapter this year. Of this amount $496.96 has been sent to headquarters for relief work. The chairman of the roll call, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, was ably assisted by John LeClaire, grand knight of the local K. of C. in securing the canvassers. The districts were covered by Thomas Barnett, Homer Gagnon, Edward Blake, John LeClaire, Edward Blanchard, Erne Raney, Ralph Kingsley, John Davis, Ben Kolburn, William Marshall, Edward Faust, Jr., Theodore Davis, Edmond Dudkowski, Ovilla Dugas, Leo Robinson, Edward Walsh, John Tracy, Walter Benjamin, Irving Thornton, Andrew McNicol, Tyler Gilbert, Alex McNicol, Lena Wolf, John McElligott, Jr., Everett Thornton, Mrs. F. W. Chase, Edward Thornton, Delwyn Martin, Earl Nichols, Theodore Boule, George Wilcox, Adelbert Babcock, William McGovern, Walter Hebert, Joseph Gilbert, John McCarthy, Francis McLaughlin, Bernard Wechsler, John Harris, Walter Hyde, George Robertson, Anna and Josephine Ruszenas, Josephine Ambot, Clara Hyde, Mrs. Ellen Young, Ethel Rood, Bertha Lewis, Mrs. Benjamin Gallup, Mrs. Edward Clarke, Margaret Tanner, Gladys Jeffers, Ora Trudeau, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gardiner, George Frink, Harold and David Goldstein, Mary Wilkinson, George Norman, Mrs. Ranson Young and Mrs. William Phillips.

The publicity pamphlets were distributed by airplane by Aviator Robert Kamm, assisted by Oscar Lamieux and Fred L'Homme. The supper served the canvassers was in charge of Miss M. A. Burdick, chairman of the chapter executive board. The committee who assisted in the arrangements for the roll call included Miss Burdick, Rosanna DesJardins, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Margaret Driscoll, Mrs. Alice Anthony, Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Margery Leyden, Mrs. F. I. Ray, Catherine Barnett, Ida Foster, Bertha Lewis, Dr. G. H. Jennings, D. L. Phillips, all members of the executive board and Alice Brennan, May Driscoll, Elsie Lord, Ethel Rood, Mrs. Chase, Josephine Ambot and Anna Ruszenas. The chairman has expressed appreciation of the assistance rendered by all those mentioned, as it all went to make the roll call a success.

Bill Davis, employed in Finn Bros.' store, received a letter a week ago from the police department of Bridgeport. Bill opened the letter with no little wonder, which was increased to consternation when he read in cold hard characters: You will forthwith be present in the 9 a. m. session of the city court, in said city of Bridgeport, Tuesday morning, Dec. 28, to answer for violation of the traffic regulation of said city.

The letter contained also a correct copy of Bill's registration numbers, stating the day and date that said violations occurred, in said city of Bridgeport. Bill was struck with horror, for on the day of the accusation he worked hard at his counter all day, and his machine was in the garage, unable to move on account of a ruptured diaphragm. Everybody knows Bill, and everybody is anxious to do him a good turn if possible. Deputy Sheriff J. T. Dolan and Prosecuting Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski took the matter up with the Bridgeport officials by wire and mail, and were unable, as late as Monday evening to establish an alibi for Davis. The traffic czar that reported Bill's number, possibly overlooked the letter that precedes the figures, in that part of the state.

Tuesday morning the state road department's big scraper pushed the hundreds of tons of snow off the state road into the gutters. All the afternoon a warm rain fell, with the result that the walks were impassable and many Main street cellers were flooded. John McKiernan, in charge of the street cleaning gang, did a very fine piece of work. He had the main thoroughfare gutters shoveled out in short order, where the need was the most.

Mrs. G. A. Prior, run down and painfully injured by an automobile Saturday evening was comfortable at her home Tuesday evening and considered on the road to recovery.

Joe Walsh had some friends visiting him for a few days at his home and they were old-time baseball players. They got talking over what each used to do on the diamond. Walsh is a great player himself, so he went into the attic to find a baseball picture. Instead, he came across a trunk and in it was a violin which his great-grandfather had, an instrument 125 years old. One member of the party offered $50 for it but Mr. Walsh said money could not buy it.

Noank Nuggets played the Bulldogs from Mystic in the town hall Monday night before a handful of people. The game was slow, Nuggets using the second team most of the game and when the smoke cleared up and the battle was over, Noank swamped the Bulldogs tying a knot in his tail with the largest score yet, 74 to 20. Brazel got 14 field goals while Creagon for Mystic got 12 points. Steward worked hard for his team but could not do it all. The fans got tired watching the ball drop through the hoop. The team was outclassed from the start.

DANIELSON

FEW LEGISLATIVE MATTERS TO ORIGINATE IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 28—Inquiry on Tuesday appeared to indicate that few legislature matters originating in this town before the 1927 session of the legislature. Senator E. L. Darbie said that there is demand here for a bill providing for an open season for hunting deer each fall, but any measure providing for such an open season is likely to come from the fish and game commission, at least that is the understanding at the present time. There is a widespread demand in Connecticut for such an open season and some believe that a bill providing for it will be passed the coming session. Increase in the number of deer and the great amount of damage they do are the impelling considerations for seeking the open season. Massachusetts, it is pointed out, allows the hunting of deer for one week each fall.

Thursday evening at the state armory field artillerymen making up the Service battery stationed here and those of the general public who are interested will have an opportunity to view a showing of motion pictures having to do with field artillery work and practices. The assurance is that these pictures are very interesting. Captain F. O. Armington of the battery will welcome all interested to view the showing.

Some owners who were caught out in Tuesday's sleet storm abandoned their machines by the roadside, temporarily, of course, rather than hazard operating them without chains. Most of these instances came to pass in hilly sections east or west of here. It is worthy of mention that no serious accidents have occurred on the steep hills in this territory this season up to Tuesday. Sanding of the grades and familiarity of the majority of the drivers that ride over them with the bad and dangerous places has served to keep the accident record down. Again, there are those who will not travel the hilly routes when there is icy going.

Crews of workers were engaged Tuesday morning in removing piles of snow from all along the sides of Main street in the business section, and for the work being done business men expressed their appreciation.

Frank Hollo, resident east of here near the Rhode Island border was in the town court Tuesday morning to answer to a violation of the motor vehicle for which he had no registration. He was fined $1.00 and costs of prosecution, a total of $11.75.

The fight for control of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company goes merrily on, a matter of special interest because the corporation has a textile plant in this town, at Goodyear. Contemplating the legal proceedings, the impression gained here is that the position of the company is so strong that it is little wonder that divergent interests would like to control it.

Another sleet storm that came Tuesday morning added to the weather discomforts of the past few days. This particular storm had not endured very long before motor traffic began to slow up because of the accumulation of ice on windshields and the slippery condition of the highways. However, by early afternoon a slight rise in temperature brought a straight rain storm, relieving in some degree the difficulties of getting about.

Tuesday morning the funeral of Francois Rosset was held from the home in Moosup with funeral services at All Hallows church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph E McCarthy was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in All Hallows cemetery. Bearers were Philip Moreau, Leopold Moreau, Louis Pinet, Ralph Sney, Lionel Dupris and Louis Lehoux. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Incident to the falling off in motor traffic, as is customary at this time of year, gasoline has advanced a cent a gallon in price in Danielson. This is not a novel happening. It has been experienced here before. It would appear that the rule is that the more gasoline is sold, as in the summer months, the lower the price.

While December has furnished some stiff winter weather, those who have done excavating within the past two days relate that there is but from four to six inches of frost in the ground hereabouts. The blanket of snow that has covered the ground the greater part of the month is held accountable for keeping much of the frost out.

Representative-elect A. W. Williams will resign as a state police officer at the end of the year. He has been stationed at the Danielson barracks since it was opened.

Mrs. Nathan Seaver of Newington and her daughter, Mrs. F. N. Flagg of Willimantic, are guests of Miss E. F. Darbie of North Main street.

The storm of Tuesday, coupled with the difficult conditions for getting about, caused the cancellation of various affairs scheduled for the afternoon and evening.

The Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church has a meeting scheduled for this afternoon.

Taxi operators are not complaining about bad weather. It has been the means of greatly increasing their business during the past few days.

The schools of Killingly will reopen on Monday, being closed this week for the Christmas vacation.

William McDermott, who has been engaged at his business in western and southern states the past two years, is spending a vacation at his home here.

At her home in Brooklyn the death of Mrs. Katherine Morton, 80, widow of George Morton, occurred Tuesday morning. She had been a resident of Brooklyn for about 40 years. Mrs. Morton was born in Rochester, N. Y., April 19, 1846. She leaves no relatives nearer than nephews and nieces, the majority of these resident in New York state. Mrs. Morton had been ill about six weeks.

Friday afternoon members of St. Alban's Sewing society will hear annual reports when they meet at the parish house.

An interesting meeting of the Killingly Woman's club is to be held Saturday afternoon in the Children's playroom of the Congregational parish house. This meeting originally was scheduled to be held at St. Alban's parish house.

New records of achievement in production and sales by the Paco Manufacturing company with five of its six factories in this town are looked for with the greatest confidence during 1927. During the coming year Paco will have the mills it acquired last September in Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville operating at practically a capacity schedule. This will mean a considerably increased production of window curtain materials and a great volume of sales. The sales organization of this company covers the entire country and it also has a good business in Canada. The concern, through a recent issue of stock, will also have greater financial facilities during 1927.

This week and brings another double holiday, mills and other plants in town closing Friday until Monday of next week.

Clinton Pelett and Harold Bigelow are en route to Charlotte, N. C., where the Jacobs Mfg. company is opening a branch plant, of which Mr. Bigelow is to be the manager.

Reports from Danielson people who are in Miami for the winter season indicate that the reports of the hurricane damage there last September were greately exaggerated, though there are traces of severe damage by the storm.

Next Saturday, New Year's day, a holiday schedule of hours and service will be in effect at the Danielson postoffice.

Formal notice has been given, as required by law, that the borough of Danielson will seek a charter revision with the approval of the legislature of 1927.

New Year's night will be a very special night for Alumni and high school students interested in basketball, for it will mark the opening of the new high school gymnasium for the first regular game to be played there.

The just and unjust were numbered among those who slipped and fell because of icy conditions here Tuesday. No serious injuries were reported as the result of these falls.

There are to be special services at St. James' church New York's morning—the observance of the Feast of the Circumcision.

Track crews of the New Haven road have been kept busy this month clearing accumulations of snow and ice from switches, among there special duties of the winter season.

Killingly members-elect of the Connecticut legislature of 1927, will be in Hartford next Tuesday for the organization of the body. Killingly will have three members this year—E. L. Darbie representing the 28th district as senator and Arthur W. Williams and Williams S. Hunter as representatives.

Oscar Baker pleaded guilty recently to trespassing on property owned by Mr. Meyers and shooting a deer. The case was settled out of court with a fine of $135.

W. F. Maine of North Windham was injured Friday night when his car overturned coming down Tower hill. He was able to drive to Willimantic, and after consulting a doctor was taken to a hospital. Three ribs were broken and he suffered bruises about his head, but the injuries are not as serious as at first feared.

Mrs. A. Bassett had a family reunion Sunday.

The Christmas exercises at the Baptist church were postponed until Sunday next on account of the snow storm.

PUTNAM

BRITT IS RELEASED BY PUTNAM AUTHORITIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 28—George Britt a patient at the Day Kimball hospital who was arrested yesterday by the state police charged with being an impostor, was released this morning. He was taken to the hospital last Friday in a "dazed condition" after he had been found on the Putnam Danielson road. He told several different stories one of which was that he was a coast artillery man stationed at Fort Hancock, Holland Beach, N. Y., and of coming here to meet a man to get an automobile to drive back to the fort. He claimed he got into a jitney and after smoking a cigarette the driver gave him he lost consciousness and had been robbed and wanted money for return fare. Peculiarities about the nose, eyes and ears convinced the state police that he was George Morley a World war veteran who had been gassed over seas and since that time had been found frequently under similar conditions throughout the state.

The Putnam lodge of Elks are arranging to hold their annual New Year's party in their rooms on Friday vening, December 31. The committee in charge have arranged for a good time and all Elks may secure their tickets to this entertainment from the following: Dr. H. Peloquin, Southbridge; John Reardon, Jr., North Grosvenordale; Sam King, Moosup; Joseph Raymond; Wauregan; Dalor Grennon, Danielson; Iver Nelson; Lawrence Backus, Keyren C. Cotter and Louis Girard of Putnam. This New Year's eve celebration is one of the big celebrations that the Elks have for themselves.

The funeral of John Mehan was held yesterday morning at the Holy Trinity church at Pomfret, Rev. George Donahue singing the requiem mass. Mr. Meehan was 86 years of age, was born in Ireland and came to this country when a young man. He was for many years a resident of Woodstock where he had been a successful farmer for many years. Following the death of his wife he went to Pomfret to make his home with his son John Meehan and where he died. Besides his son he is also survived by a daughter, Mrs. Annie Lovely of Boston. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery at Putnam.

The Putnam friends of Arthur Johnson, where he is well known will be interested in the announcement that he has successfully passed the Massachusetts board of registration in medicine and is now qualified to practice medicine in that state.

Mr. Johnson is a native of North Grosvenordale and has played ball in this vicinity and elsewhere for a number of years and is widely known as a ball player. He began the study of medicine at Tuffts Medical school three years ago and after graduation took the Massachusetts examination. He has not decided as to his future location.

The funeral services of Lawrence Keegan aged 53, who died suddenly at his home in Wilsonville on Saturday were held this morning at ten o'clock from St. Joseph's church at North Grosvenordale, Rev. Fr. Donnelly celebrating the high requiem mass. Mr. Keegan's many friends in Putnam knew that he had not been in the best of health for some time but the news of his death came as a distinct shock. He was part owner of the Keegan mill at Wilsonville and also had charge of the postoffice of that town and was widely known in this section.

He is survived by one brother, Edward J. Keegan, who is manager of the mill and two nephews, Lawrence and Edward and one niece, Catherine, all of North Grosvenordale. Burial was in Calvary cemetery at Webster.

Friends in Putnam have received announcements of the engagement of Miss Florence Forbes of Webster, Mass., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Forbes of Webster, to Earl Myron Norcross, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Norcross of North Adams, Mass. Mr. Norcross is a member of the firm of Redfield-Norcross company of North Adams.

The Second Congregational church of this city is planning to hold a New Year's social and Watch night service on Friday evening, December 31. The annual supper and business meeting of the church will be held on Thursday, January 6. At that time reports will be read and the officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Plans will be presented, discussed and adopted for the work of the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Townsend of Woodstock have received word of the death of the adopted eighteen year old son of Mrs. Nina Smitchel, who is the aunt of Mr. Townsend. The young man died following an operation for appendicitis at a hospital in Worcester.

The steam shovel which has been in use on the new Putnam, North Woodstock, Southbridge road has been taken to Providence and some of the men laid off. It is said that as soon as possible a tractor shovel will be used in its stead and the work will start at North Woodstock village.

Miss Marot and the girls of the Howe-Marot school provided a tree and presents for the children at the county home. This is the annual custom of the girls and Miss Marot. The children of the Hill school at Thompson collected money to provide the necessities of life as well as a Christmas tree for an unfortunate family at Quadic.

The following officers have been elected for the coming year by the Quinebaug Valley Fruit Growers association: Henry B. Buell of Eastford, president; George E. McClellan of Woodstock, vice president; H. M. Woodbury of Woodstock treasurer; directors, L. H. Lindeman, East Woodstock and J. H. Esterbrooks of Dudley.

Britt, who is specializing in language in the graduate dept. of the Hartford seminary and who has spent three years in Christian Education work in Egypt occupied the pulpit of the local church Sunday morning. Mr. Britt's subject was "Christian Progress in Foreign Lands". His talk was very instructive and interesting.

Miss Isabel Bugbee who is home for the Christmas vacation from the St. Johnsbury, Vt., academy, where she is an instructor in French, led the C. E. meeting Sunday evening.

The Choral society met Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening. Mrs. R. S Bugbee entertained them the latter time. The society is rehearsing a Christmas Cantata which they will give next Sunday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. Edwin T. Jones spent Christmas with their parents in New Jersey.

The Sons and Daughters of Liberty had election of officers at their meeting Tuesday evening.

The Christmas tree and entertainment given by the Sunday school was held at the church, Thursday evening, a large number being present. The Sunday school pupils provided a long, interesting program which was well carried out, after which Santa Claus gave all the children gifts from the tree and boxes of candy.

Mrs. Anna Kibbe has returned home after visiting in Ellington.

Mrs Henry Gager went to Chicopee, Mass., Saturday to spend some time with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Burdick the balance of the winter she will spend with her son, Arthur Gager in Wildwood, N. J.

Miss Dorothy Avery of Hartford spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Avery, of Battle street.

Mrs. Anna Pomeroy has been visiting Mrs. Clifton Ellis.

Local pupils of the Willimantic normal school are at their homes for a ten day's vacation.

Miss Rebecca Gager is home for two weeks' vacation from Storrs college.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

With the present year rapidly drawing to a close there is every indication that 1926 will break no records as to building in Norwich. There has been considerable construction work during the year but does not compare very favorably with the record of last year. The permits during 1926 number approximately 100 less than 1925 and the valuation of the new construction work is approximately $300,000 less than the previous year. However this is much better than was anticipated during the first four months of 1925 when the number of permits and the valuation of new work was the lowest of the past decade for that period. In May things started to pick up and things looked brighter only to have a slackening late in the year. There was very little construction work of any magnitude the greater part being dwelling houses, garages and small alteration jobs to store fronts in the city.

During the past week there has been practically nothing stirring in the building line and the cold wave and sleet and snow storms materially hampered any exterior work and also prevented excavation work. Where the work on many structures had reached the interior stage workmen were kept busy. With the aid of salamanders the work on the new Dime Savings bank progressed favorably during the past week and the steel work for the roof is nearly all completed and the brick and granite work on the walls well along.

Other projects in the city made fair progress considering the weather conditions. The work on the new garage and filling station on West Town street for Mr. Gilman is progressing favorably. The building is to be of hollow tile with a brick and stucco exterior finish.

Contractor Sweeney is steadily forging ahead with the renovation and remodeling of the building of Max Sternlelb on Water street and it is expected that the exterior work will be completed some time next month.

REAL ESATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week in Norwich there were six sales of real estate, exactly the same number as for the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $49,000 and $55,052.

There were eight sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 15 sales for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $54,885 and $39,475.

Building Permits

There is no serious decline to be observed in the building construction industry in Connecticut. In fact, during the past week, the totals of building permits issued in the leading building centers and estimated building costs were notably higher than for the like week in 1925. The week's total of permits granted was 251 compared with 229 for last year during the same period. The total estimated cost of construction work permitted for was $1,485,751 against $773,487 a year ago.

Architects Elect Officers

Edward B. Caldwell, Jr., of Bridgeport, was elected president of the Connecticut Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, at a meeting in Hartford last week. Other newly elected officers are: Vice president, H. Story Granger, of New Haven; secretary and treasurer, Harold H. Devis.

New London

The permit has been issued to Silas Maxson, Jr., 233 Bank street, for a cottage to be erected on Montauk avenue. It will be 22 by 28 feet, of frame construction, arranged for one family. The cost will be about $4,500. A garage will be erected in the rear.

Alterations are to be made by the Beacon Oil company to the machine shop on their recently acquired property on Hamilton street. The building will be remodeled for a garage and storehouse.

Edwin Cruise, 382 Vauxhall street, is building a house in Groton on which the roof has been completed. From private plans, the dwelling will contain six rooms.

The two colonial houses being built on Glenwood avenue by H. B. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue have been framed.

The contract has been awarded for a residence for J. Howard Leatherbee at the corner of Ledyard street and Norwood avenue. The house will be arranged for six rooms with steam heat and other improvements. Work will not be started until the weather is more favorable.

Building Permits

Silas Maxson, Jr., frame cottage and brick garage, Montauk avenue $5,000

Mrs. A. H. Beckwith, garage addition, 222 Crystal avenue, $200.

Number of permits issued for the week, 3; estimated cost of buildings $5,200.

Stonington

R. A. Sherman Sons, Westerly, R. I., A. W. Perry, Stonington, and W. A. Spencer, Norwich, are among the general contractors, who have submitted estimates for the construction of a weave shed at the plant of the American Velvet company in Stonington. The building will be one story high of mill construction, 75 by 165 feet.

Competitive plans have been submitted for a new town hall in Stonington. The proposed building will be of brick construction and will contain an auditorium, having a seating capacity of 1,000 persons and offices for the town officials. Judge Hinckley, town clerk of Stonington, is secretary of the building committee.

Westerly

Cold and snowy weather and the nearness to the end of the year have resulted in but few new building projects being recorded.

Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi has issued the following permit for the Christmas week in Westerly:

Dec. 22. Richard Pendlebury, Post road Combined two-car garage and workshop, 20 feet by 30 feet, on the Boston Post road. Also an addition 8 feet by 10 feet to the garage.

A new product many times attempted but never before really reproduced!

AUTO REGISTRATIONS

Getting the auto owners to speed up their applications for 1927 registrations is not an easy task. There is quite the same disposition to delay this matter quite the same as the Christmas shopping. To many the 11th hour is always time enough to do anything and it is on such a policy that they provide for operating their automobiles next year.

We are already seeing registrations for 1927 from other states, but not until the last day of the year are Connecticut auto owners permitted to attach the 1927 markers though some of them have had their numbers for weeks. But unless there has been a change within the last few days the number applying for 1927 registrations is not as large this year as last, although the number of car owners is greater.

Procrastination figures prominently in many instances. The amount involved where there are numerous cars and trucks is another reason for waiting until the last minute. It is always possible to forward applications to the main office in Hartford and get the registration and markers through the mail, and it is this practice that large numbers adopt. Others can, by driving various distances at a bad time of the year and standing in line for an indefinite time, obtain the required registration and markers at a few branch offices, but there is not that accommodation in either instance to which the auto owners of the state in general who are paying millions of dollars in special taxes are entitled to.

If there were branch offices, particularly at this season of the year, in all cities of the state it would be possible to serve the auto owners of those sections without serious delay or confusion and without the irritation, general dissatisfaction or additional expense which accompanies the present arrangement in communities where no branch offices are maintained. How branch offices are appreciated by auto owners is well illustrated this year in the new office at Stamford, which has been doing as large a business as some of the old branch offices and relieving the strain upon offices to which application had to be formerly made by those about Stamford. There will always be the last minute applications but a branch office in each city would do much to stop it and at the same time provide deserved accommodations.

BEATING THE CRIMINALS

An effort for dealing more effectively with criminals in this state is to be launched during the early part of the new year when many of the cities are to have installed in their police headquarters automatic typewriters that will carry the information from one community to another and distribute it among them all simultaneously in connection with those who have broken the laws and disappeared.

At the present time the police of any city invariably seeks the aid of the police of other cities by telephone or telegraph, but it takes considerable time to get in touch with all the cities of Connecticut, for instance, and some of those in Rhode Island or Massachusetts. Through the typewriting of the message in any city, however, that information is instantly transmitted to all other cities which are equipped with the automatic typewriter, and in these days of the automobile, to which the criminally inclined are disposed to resort, quick action must be taken if they are to be headed off.

It can be imagined that there will be much information transmitted over such a device that will not involve or be of advantage to many of the cities but probably the police departments of all the cities of the state would be much better informed of the activities of law breakers if they were included in such a system.

Such a device should prove invaluable in the apprehension of the hit-and-run drivers if the police are given the information sufficiently early to head off such dangerous drivers. There are times when time method might not reach a certain point any more rapidly than the telephone, but the advantage lies in reaching out to all cities at the same time.

The test of the system will be watched with keen interest in this state, but in addition to the police departments of the respective cities it would seem that the various barracks of the state police about the state should also be linked up with the system.

UNDER PROHIBITION

As the number of deaths from drinking liquor during the holidays continues to increase, having reached 16 in New York and seven in Chicago, with hospitals treating many patients, it calls attention to the fact that while the blame must of course rest upon those who did the drinking it is impossible to overlook the peril that is put in way of the drinker. He yields to what is in his case the greatest temptation. He is ready to take a chance, and in indulging upon having his drink and carousal he sacrifices his life because he refuses to insist upon knowing in advance that what he is drinking is not poisonous.

This is a situation which not only accompanies prohibition and the efforts at enforcement now but it has done so for years. The danger is not a sudden one for in the eagerness to cater to the demands of the drinkers there are those who are ready to serve anything that others will purchase, or that looks and tastes enough like pre-war liquor to command the price demanded.

In spite of the warnings and the advice given by health authorities concerning the dangers surrounding liquor offered for sale for beverage purposes, there are great numbers who are engaged in redistilling doctored alcohol, denatured alcohol and offering concoctions that are a menace to life, the damage effects of which may be quickly disclosed or long drawn out according to the amount used.

These cases furnish only a part of the evidence concerning the amount of liquor being sold these days, but direct attention to the dangerous character of the stuff that is being sold since prohibition became effective, all of which goes to support the contention that prohibition can never be made effective. It permits also of a comparison of the conditions under pre-prohibition days and those under prohibition. That there is a large demand for liquor, good, bad or indifferent, is demonstrated in other ways as well, and gives a chance to study the bad as well as the good side of prohibition. It likewise shows what difficulties are being encountered by those who are endeavoring to comply with the law and dry up the land.

PROTECTING THE COASTERS

It is gratifying to note that the recreation commission has sought the cooperation of the police for the purpose of giving protection to coasters without waiting until someone is killed or seriously injured in this city before taking action.

There may and probably will be various opinions concerning the desirability of shutting off those streets from public travel, especially main arteries, but for the protection of the life and limb of those who like to slide down hill, in common with those who have practiced it for past decades, it is proper that preventive steps should be taken to avoid any additions to the casualty list through collisions with vehicles.

Many are the cities throughout New England which have closed certain streets to vehicular travel during certain hours for the benefit of the coasters, while in others, in the interest of safety, all gliding in public streets has been prohibited. That was regarded as the only satisfactory manner in which the loss of life and the prevention of accidents could be assured in these days when there is so much automobile traffic.

What is done in the interest of safety should be accepted in the proper spirit. If it means only restrictions and slight inconvenience there should and probably will be general cooperation. If it means no sliding at all elsewhere on the public thoroughfares, or the prohibition of all coasting in the street that likewise must be recognised as far better than the taking of chances which might, and which have in many other cities, meant the untimely death of many young people.

GOVERNOR GENERAL WOOD

Thus far there appears to be no real foundation for the rumor that has been spread about that Governor General Wood would resign. This has come as the result of the report made by Colonel Thompson and seems to be based upon the belief that he will find in that report an opportunity for presenting and pressing his resignation after five years in the islands.

In the report Colonel Thompson took occasion to commend the work of the governor general but in connection with his recommendations he urged the appointment of civil aides to the governor general in place of the military advisors he has surrounded himself with. That might be looked upon as criticism which might be resented, but inasmuch as the governor general was not provided with funds to obtain other advisors it was natural that he would turn to such a source as was available in picking his advisors. So far as known, Governor General Wood has shown no resentment at that suggestion. Perhaps he believes quite the same as Colonel Thmopson does, but the criticism, if it is regarded as such, cannot be placed on the shoulders of the governor general, since he acted in the only manner that he could under the circumstances.

Governor General Wood has rendered a high service in the Philippines He may not wish to be located there for life but in the interest of the islands and the fine, altruistic service he has rendered there his services should be retained in that post as long as possible.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Well, it saved a lot of snow shoveling.

This is the week for the early changing of the misfits and the undesirables.

It is well to remember that the Christmas tree danger continues just as long as its tinder like branches remain in the home.

Those who died from drinking liquor in New York were probably told that the stuff was the finest ever, better than the pre-Volstead.

The new Christmas sleds are getting their full tests but it will be necessary to wait a while for skating, though not because of thin ice.

The chiropodist who says that cotton stockings are better for the feet than silk may or may not own a cotton plantation or a New England hosiery mill.

The latest amusing feature connected with prohibition enforcement is that "alcohol" signs at gasoline stations in New Jersey are declared to be illegal under the Volstead act.

If that Texas father who killed his wife and eight children only hurries up his trial, or pleads guilty, he'll be able to get Governor Ferguson to pardon him before she quits office.

Colonel Harvey says he was misquoted in what he was credited with saying about President Coolidge and his candidacy. He should know the importance of talking straight and saying what he means.

THE CRAPE HANGERS

"You look quite blooming, Jessamine. I knew it would refresh you to get away from me for a few hours," John smiled up into his wife's pretty, bright face, from his nest of pillows on the sun porch couch. "You've been tied down, old girl, since my accident."

"Nonsense. I got out whenever I wish."

"Well, you don't wish often enough. I want you to get around and see your friends more, now that I'm making the grade on high."

"I saw a lot of them today, Johnny, and they were all very sympathetic. Everybody sent you all kinds of messages."

"I suppose I ought to hear them, for the good of my soul," said John with rather an acid grin. "Somehow I don't take kindly to sympathy, but fire away."

"Well, I went into Allard's to rescind the order for that color etching you were going to give me for my birthday, and I saw Mr. Allard himself. He was very nice about it, and he had heard of your financial reverses."

"I suppose Aunt Mary had been in and told the sad news. Aunt Mary is some little broadcaster."

"Yes, it was your Aunt Mary. He said that he knew our collection of etchings would be a comfort to us in this trouble," Jessamine laughed. "He appears to think that there's nothing quite equal to etchings for keeping up the morale.

"Then I dropped into Tom Haswell's office to ask him about selling that lot for you. He was very kind and said he would do the best he could. He said he was mighty sorry to hear that you had been so easy to sign notes for Bud Long. He said you might have known that you would have to pay them. He says he has made it a rule all his business life never to put his name anywhere that would make him liable for any one else's defection."

"Till bet he has. I can remember when we were in college together that I tried to borrow $10 of him toward paying Bill Jenkins' fare home when his eyes gave out. He must have had that self-preservation complex then."

"I thought it would please grandma and Aunt Mary if I went there to luncheon and told them how you were, John. I think it did, for it gave them a chance to say several things that they could not say here. Grandma thinks it no wonder you got nearly killed with a golf ball. I gathered from her remarks that she thinks any one who wastes time hitting one of those silly little hard balls deserves to be almost killed. She declared that your grandfather never would take a golf stick in his hand. He didn't believe in such footlessness.

"I fancy golf sticks were rather scarce forty years ago, before he died, and I don't think the old boy is to be blamed for never taking up the game. I've always resolved not to let grandma prejudice me against my revered grandparent, whom I never had the privilege of knowing. Was Aunt Mary lugubrious?"

"Yes, rather. She said she wondered what would happen next to you—that troubles never come singly. She shed a few tears about your condition, physical and financial, and she hinted that grandma is going to make a new will, the idea being, I fancied, that a trust fund is the only safe thing for you, old dear."

"I suppose that Aunt Mary will see that the principal will go to a home for cats. I'm not worrying about grandma's money, Jess."

"I called at Uncle Peter's office and asked him for a small advance. I thought he could cash some dividends before they're due, and we could use the money just now. He gave me a severe lecture on improvidence, and he said he was thankful that my little capital was tied up so I can't get at it without his consent. I was so angry I wept. He was sorry, and he declared he was thinking only of our good, and he had thought of sending you some flowers, but he felt that under the circumstances we wouldn't really enjoy any such extravagance. He is coming round to have a serious talk with you, Johnny boy. He is going to tell you never to play golf again."

"Let him come, Jess. I've something to tell him, and all the other crape-hangers you've seen this morning, you poor kid. Look here."

"Oh, my dear, my dear," was all she said.

Jessamine opened the telegram which John drew from under his pillow and read it with overflowing eyes.

"I knew all the time that Bud would make good, Jessamine. We haven't lost a cent."

"And, John, you're getting well so fast now too. Oh, isn't life wonderful?"—Chicago News.

Former Norwich Leaders

(From Norwich Bulletin, Aug. 6, 1880.)

LEONARD BALLOU

Mr. Leonard Ballou, one of the oldest, best known, and most widely respected citizens of Norwich died at his residence on Washington street, yesterday morning in his 87th year.

Mr. Ballou was born in Cumberland, R. I., Feb. 26th, 1794. He was derived from Huguenot ancestry, Maturin Ballou, the founder of the family in this country, having settled at Providence near the close of the 17th century. Noah Ballou, the father of Leonard, was a farmer and boat builder, and at the age of 16 a soldier in the Revolutionary army in which he served for several campaigns. His son learned his trade, but when he was 16 taught in the district school and later taught in larger schools. The British embargo, laid during the war of 1812, destroyed Noah Ballou's business and for some time thereafter Leonard Ballou was employed as a house carpenter.

In 1817 he became a millwright, and soon afterward put the wheels in the first mill built at Willimantic. He also constructed mills at Plainfield and Central Village.

In 1825 with his father-in-law and brother-in-law, he purchased a mill property on Five Mile river, Killingly, under the firm title of Amsbury, Ballou and company, the young firm had an aggregate capital of $6,000, of which Mr Ballou put in $2,500.

At the end of the year after the mill was opened, the firm found itself $3,000 in debt and running behind. Mr. Ballou took prompt and decisive measures. Instead of giving up, he doubled his machinery and struck into a wider field of operations. Business began to pick up and the firm soon became prosperous.

During these early years the mill was run by contract, but in 1833 Mr Ballou began to buy and sell on his own account. In 1836, he bought out the other members of the firm.

He passed safely through the great commercial crises of 1837 and 1843, though in the latter his former partners, who were carrying on a business for themselves, failed. His business steadily increased from that time forward, and in 1846 he removed to this city, where he purchased and rebuilt the house on Washington street, now occupied by Gen. Aiken. In 1857 he built the house where he has lately lived, and in 1863 moved to it.

In February, 1864, he retired from active business, selling his factory to the Attawaugan company. Since that time he confined his attention to the care of certain corporations in which his capital was invested, being a director of the First National Bank of Norwich, the Norwich Savings society, the Bleaching and Calendering company, and the Norwich Gas company and the president of the Occum Water Power company, and the Norwich Water Power company.

Mr. Ballou married in 1823, Miss Ann Eliza Amsbury of Cumberland, R. I., who died in 1852, leaving two daughters, one of whom married J. B. Young of Tiffany, Young and company (now Tiffany and company) of New York, and the other married Mr. A. H. Almy of Norwich. Mr. Ballou married again in 1856, Mrs. Kingsley of Norwich, who died in 1862. In 1837 he was a member of the state legislature from Killingly.

Mr. Ballou was a striking example of the best class of New England business men. Beginning life with little capital save energy and integrity, he grew to success by slow but sure degrees His associates and those who had occasion to meet him in business learned that his honesty was beyond question. His word was as good as his bond to all who knew him. Yet he was not austere or harsh.

He was a peacemaker in all difficulties and was often looked to by friends to arrange mutual difficulties, which others could not. It was one of the boasts of his life that he had never sued or been sued. In his family relations he was always tender and considerate.

Mr. Ballou was descended from a religious family, his father being a Universalist and his mother a Baptist. He himself joined the Congregational church at the age of 40, and was for a long time a member of the Second church of this city. When the Park church was formed he was one of the most prominent in the new organization. His religious convictions were decided, but he was far from being intolerant to others.

About six weeks ago Mr. Ballou fell upon the steps of his house and his system received a shock from which he did not recover.

(From Norwich Bulletin, Aug. 10, 1880)

The funeral services of the late Leonard Ballou were held at his late residence, 73 Washington street, at 3:30 p. m., yesterday. There was a large attendance, the officers of the First National bank, of which he was a director, and a large number of representative business men of the city being present. The Rev. L. W. Bacon, D. D., of Park church, officiated. The floral emblems were very rich and appropriate. The Messrs. F. Johnson, H. H. Osgood, T. W. Carrol, and J. F. Slater were the bearers, and Colonel George S. Perkins, Moses Pierce, Franklin Nichols and A. W. Prentice, pall bearers. The remains were interred in Yantic cemetery.

Little Talks on Thrift

SIGN OF PROGRESS

Much attention is being given at present to various welfare and thrift plans fostered by business organizations for the benedt of their employes.

It is an encouraging sign of progress when so much interest is shown in matters of this nature.

Business is learning more and more that it helps itself most when it helps others.

These new ideas—which are variously designated as thrift, profit sharing and welfare—are being given effect in many ways.

Some organizations are helping their employes build and own their own homes; others are encouraging them in the ownership of stock in the organization where they are employed, and still others are carrying out plans by which employes are able to save a considerable sum of money as they go along.

To be happy and successful in business requires happiness and success in the home.

Thus business organizations which encourage thrift among their employes are in turn reaping the rewards of greater efficiency.

But this is not to be viewed from the standpoint of selfishness. While the company secures benefits from the thrift of its employes, the community, the nation and society in general are likewise benefited. The establishment of a thrifty family in a community is always an added force to the progress of that community.

It is to be hoped that, with the development of the new year, a growing number of business organizations will see the wisdom and value of encouraging thrift among their members.

If this could become a generally accepted practice throughout the business world, it would make 1927 the greatest year for progress in the history of our country.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Not So

Dorothy, age three, was in the midst of an interesting discussion with the neighborhood barber as to the dependability of Santa Claus.

"Well I just heard that old Santa Claus committed suicide," asserted the tensorial one, a few days before Christmas, winking at the waiting customers.

"Uncle Billy said he broke his leg," responded the small one promptly, sighing, "but I guess he didn't break it clear off."

And then Christmas afternoon as she remembered the conversation and took stock of her gifts she said: "Santa didn't get hurt, did he, daddy?"

Now He Knows

He had put in a supply for the holidays but thought it a good idea to have his "wet goods" thoroughly analyzed.

The report of the chemist, largely in the formulae of the profession, appeared to clear the goods of any threat of damage to life, limb or optic, but it said there was a trace of "isopropyl alcohol." He had heard of many kinds of alcohol but this was a new one, so he looked it up in the dictionary. Here it was!

"Isopropyl—An univalent radical, isomeric with normal propyl."

This surely was illuminating. But the research was carried further—to propyl. There it was too, and thus the definition ran:

"Propyl—The univalent radical of which propane is the hydride."

He has drunk queer mixtures but nothing like that. But, undaunted, he searched out "propane" and again he found his quarry Here it was:

"Propane—A heavy, gaseous hydrocarbon of the paraffin series, occurring naturally dissolved in crude petroleum."

Convinced by this time that his "licker" contained nothing worse than perhaps some new fangled motor fuel, or its "univalent" the young man sent out his invitations to the party.

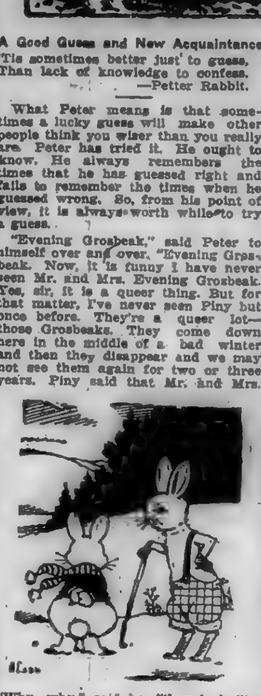
A Good Guess and New Acquaintance

'Tis sometimes better just to guess,
Than lack of knowledge to confess.
—Petter Rabbit.

What Peter means is that sometimes a lucky guess will make other people think you wiser than you really are. Peter has tried it. He ought to know. He always remembers the times that he has guessed right and fails to remember the times when he guessed wrong. So, from his point of view, it is always worth while to try a guess.

"Evening Grosbeak," said Peter to himself over and over. "Evening Grosbeak. Now, it is funny I have never seen Mr. and Mrs. Evening Grosbeak. Yes, sir, it is a queer thing. But for that matter, I've never seen Piny but once before. They're a queer lot—those Grosbeaks. They come down here in the middle of a bad winter and then they disappear and we may not see them again for two or three years. Piny said that Mr. and Mrs.



"Why—why," said he, "they look like Grosbeaks, of course!"

Evening Grosbeak are somewhere around. He must mean by that that they are in the Green Forest. I'll have a look anyway."

So away stampered Peter as only Peter can stamper. Lippety-lippety-lippety-lip he ran.

"In a hurry?" asked his cousin, Jumper the Hare.

Peter stopped abruptly. "Have you seen 'em?" he asked.

"Have I seen who?" demanded Jumper indignantly.

Peter felt foolish "I guess I thought you read my thoughts," said he. "What I want to know is, have you seen the cousins of Piny the Pine Grosbeak? He says they are somewhere around here in the Green Forest."

Jumper scratched a long ear thoughtfully. "What cousins?" he asked.

"The Evening Grosbeak," replied Peter.

Jumper shook his head. "Not that I know of," said he. "What do they look like?"

Peter was "stumped," as the saying is. He didnt know what they looked like. "Why-why," said he, "they look like Grosbeaks, of course."

Jumper grinned in the most provoking manner. "Of course," said he "Which Grosbeaks?"

It was Peter's turn to grin. "Evening Grosbeaks," he replied impudently. With this Peter kicked up his heels and started on. He didn't know where he was going. It didn't seem to be of much use to stay in the Green Forest, for surely Jumper the Hare would have seen Mr. and Mrs. Grosbeak if they had been in the Green Forest. He had an idea that those Grosbeaks belonged in the Green Forest, but it might be that they were outside for the time being. So, after a hasty look about through the Green Forest, Peter scampered over to the Old Orchard. He was hopping along through the bushes that grew along the Old Stone Wall on one side of the Old Orchard when he heard a voice which was not familiar. "I've never heard that voice before," said Peter to himself. "I wonder who it can be?"

He peeped out. Pecking at a frozen apple on one of the trees was a bird he never had seen before. He was largely yellow, but with a black cap, black head, and partly black wings. The remainder of each wing was white. He was about the same size as Piny the Pine Grosbeak. Peter guessed who he had found. He was sure of it when he looked at the bill. It was a thick, stout bill, Peter hopped right out.

"Excuse me," said he, "are you Mr. Evening Grosbeak?"

The stranger stared down at him. "What if I am?" he demanded after a minute.

"I just want to know," said Peter. "because if you are, I'd like to make your acquaintance. I know Rose-breast the Rose-breasted Grosbeak who comes up here in the summer, and I've met your cousin, Piny the Pine Grosbeak, who is down here now from the North. That is, he is your cousin if you are the Evening Grosbeak."

The stranger's eyes twinkled. "Well, you're a good guesser, Mr. Rabbit," said he, "that's who I am."

"Call me Peter," said Peter.

"All right, Peter it is," replied his new acquaintance.

POETRY

A Sea Lyric

There is no music that man has heard
Like the voice of the minstrel Sea,
Whose major and minor chords are fraught
With infinite mystery—
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no passion that man has sung,
Like the love of the deep-souled Sea,
Whose tide responds to the moon's soft light
With marvelous melody—
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over His rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no sorrow that man has known,
Like the grief of the wordless Main,
Whose Titan bosom forever throbs
With an untranslated pain—
For the Sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over His rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vague unrest.
—William Hamilton Hayne.

The Gypsy

"Where do I live when I'm at home?"
The gypsy laughed to me.
"My hearthstone's laid in the good red loam
And the sky was raised for my own roof-tree.
As he carries his house on a shiny track
I carry the sky, like a snail, on my back,
Till it dabbles its eaves in the sea.

"And when dark drops down and the roof grows thin
I haven't a place to be lonesome in,
For I look through the moon like a clean-washed pane
And a candle set
In the house of a friend where I'll come again . . .

"Where I wake, sun-up, with a fern-leaf curled
In my crumpled palm, as a child could sleep,
That's where I live when I'm at home—
—Beatrice Ravenel in "The Arrow of Lightning."

In order to study the magnetic properties of iron, single crystals of iron have been made about eight inches long by one-half inch thick. These crystals show no magnetic hysteresis at all, and have other remarkable properties. In England Dr Kapitza has developed a machine for producing the most intense magnetic fields ever attained. The field, which lasts only for one one-hundred-thousandth of a second, is produced by suddenly short circuiting a dynamo The experiment is over before the mechanical shock, which is like an explosion, can travel from the dynamo across the room to the place where the field is produced.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Sally Worthy

Following an illness of about a week Mrs. Sally Worthy died Monday night at 11:45 o'clock. Her death occurred at the home of her niece, Mrs. James Hackley and nephew, James Lee, at No. 60 Palmer avenue where she was tenderly cared for.

Mrs. Worthy was born in Richmond, Va., and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Lee. She was twice married, her first marriage taking place in Richmond. Her second marriage took place in this city when she was united in marriage with John Worthy, who died several years ago.

She was a faithful member of Grace Memorial Baptist church from the time of its organization. Surviving her are an adopted son, three nieces, Mrs. James Hackley of this city, Mrs. James Nesbit of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. M. Willnas of New York, a nephew, James Lee, this city and one grand niece, Mrs. John D. Quick.

John F. Sevin, Jr.

Word was received here Tuesday of the death in the hospital at Westfield, Me., of John F. Sevin, Jr., of Gorham, Me., formerly a resident of this city. His death Tuesday afternoon followed a serious operation about two weeks ago at the hospital.

Mr. Sevin, who was 40 years old, was born in Fitchville, the son of Emma Post and the late John F. Sevin, who later resided in this city for many years. He attended the Norwich Free Academy and as a young man was employed in his father's grocery store on Centennial square. Later he was a salesman for the wholesale grocery firm of E. D. Fuller & Co., and the local branch of Armour & Co., going to Palmer, Mass., as manager of the Armour branch there. He was also employed by wholesale meat dealers in Providence, going from there to Maine where he purchased a farm and engaged in poultry raising. About 1900 he married Sally Maynard, a resident of Portland, by whom he is survived. He also leaves his mother, Mrs. Emma Post Sevin, and his sister, Mrs. Louis A. Rader, both residing in Providence. He is also survived by a niece and a nephew in this city and a nephew in New London.

NORWICH PHYSICIAN BRINGS SUIT TO COLLECT FOR SERVICES RENDERED

Dr. John W. Callahan of this city has brought suit in the superior court to collect damages of $5,000 from the estate of the late John T. Clark who for many years made his home at the Wauregan hotel. Attorney William H. Shields is made the defendant in the action as the latter is executor of the estate.

In the complaint Dr. Callahan claims to have rendered professional services to the late Mr. Clark, at Mr. Clark's request at various times between Feb 1, 1920 and Jan. 24, 1926. Dr. Callahan claims the services rendered were reasonably worth $3,000 and that Mr. Clark did not pay any part of the account.

Dr. Callahan presented his claim against the estate and the claim was disallowed by the executor, Attorney Shields. The papers in the case have been filed with the clerk of the superior court.

Mr. Clark died Jan. 24, 1926, his death being caused by a fractured hip received at the Wauregan hotel. He was 86 years of age and a life long resident of Norwich. For 54 years he had made his home at the Wauregan hotel and undoubtedly held the world's record for long residence in one hotel.

URGES STANDARDIZATION OF BREAD LOAF WEIGHTS

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The standardising of the weight of the loaf of bread was the principal topic of discussion at the meeting of the State Association of Sealers of Weights and Measures here today. It was urged by Philip T. Pilon, state sealer, and advised by his predecessor, Thomas F. Egan. The matter was referred to a committee of legislation which was to report at the afternoon session.

The following officers were elected: First vice-president, Edward Maroney, New Haven; second vice-president, Walter F Stiles, of the state police department; secretary, Philip T. Pilon, of this city. Supt. Hurley of the state police is permanent president of the association. The following were appointed on the legislative committee: The two vice presidents: G. Ernest Hibbard, of Middletown; Carl A. Carlson, of New Britain and Dennis Kelly, of Bridgeport

It was suggested that in addition to standardizing the loaf of bread the legislature should be asked to establish a standard for the sale of wood for fuel.

Mr. Egan was elected an honorary member of the association with the privilege of exercising the functions of honorary president.

STATE INCREASES FISH AND GAME HOLDINGS

Acquisition by the state of Connecticut, under the supervision of the fish and game commission, of 140 acres of land known as Shade swamp near the Scott Swamp road, increases the holdings of the state in that town for breeding places for fish and game from a small beginning last summer to territory now totaling about 200 acres.

Shade swamp, so-called, adjoins other property recently purchased by Homer H. Judd of Bristol, John W. Titcomb, state superintendent of fish and game, and Eben Cook of Wethersfield, title to which stood in the name of Homer H. Judd for a few weeks in the fall Mr. Judd is a well-known sportsman, and he and Mr. Titcomb have shown interest in this area since the start of the new Scott swamp road last summer, when they purchased the Jordan farm, part of the Robert E. Ayer farm and later the swamp land. All of this property fronts on the Scott Swamp road, running north from that for many acres.

Part of the land is low, with natural ponds and springs, and one large pond contains this winter 40,000 small trout.

All manner of myths have been current at various times regarding Shade swamp, it being claimed that there were quagmires there; that oil had been seen on the surface of some of the ponds; and that lead had been found in its vicinity.

UNIVERSALIST SCHOOL HAS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Sunday school of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, was held on Monday evening in the Sunday school room at the church. Superintendent S. W. Armstrong being in charge. The annual report of Miss Villa Bussey, treasurer, was read and accepted, showing the school to be in excellent financial condition. Following the routine business the nominating committee consisting of Charles W. Parsons, Mrs. W. A. Bussey and Miss Beatrice Green, presented the list of officers, the elections resulting as follows:

Sumner W. Armstrong, superintendent; Hugh C. Laird, assistant superintendent; Miss Jessie E. Hill, secretary; Miss Villa C. Bussey, treasurer; Miss Beatrice Green, superintendent of primary department; Mrs. A. N. Foster, superintendent of cradle roll; Hattie A. Harris, superintendent of the home department; Miss Thelma Bjurstrom, chorister.

Following the business session plans for future school activities were discussed at length, the meeting adjourning at 9 o'clock.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS ENTERTAIN SUNDAY SCHOOL

Wicaka Camp Fire girls of the German Lutheran church entertained members of the Sunday school of that church Tuesday evening, the program including songs and a Camp Fire ceremonial and play. The program was as follows:

Song, Oh, Come All Ye Faithful, audience; welcome address, Miss Beatrice Freeman: Camp Fire ceremonial, Wohelo Handsign, Wohelo for Aye, fire fighting ceremony, Ode to Fire, Burn, Law of Fire, Honors, Ranks, Work Song, secretary's report, Mammy Moon, closing song.

The play given was Christmas at Finnegan's Flat, the parts being taken by Camp Fire girls, the entire affair proving most entertaining. Following the entertainment Santa Claus appeared and stockings filled with candy and nuts were presented to the children in the audience.

FINED FOR PASSING STANDING TROLLEY CAR

Arthur Pothier of Taftville paid a fine of $10 and costs in the city court Tuesday morning for driving his car to the left of a standing trolley on Boswell avenue Monday. Pothier was arrested by Officer Daniel O'Neil when the officer stepped off the trolley car at Broad street corner and found Pothier passing to the left of the trolley.

At the time Pothier did not have his driver's license with him and therefore faced a charge of driving without a license. He produced his license in court and the charge of driving without a license was not pressed. Deputy Judge H. H. Fettis in fining Pothier warned him of the seriousness of his offense and of the extreme penalty he might have faced.

One man was fined for an intoxication charge and the two cases of breach of the peace, carried over from Monday, were continued, one for 30 days and the other for six months.

Celebrated 7th Birthday

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM OF STATE CHAMBER

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Twenty eight members of the board of directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, met here today and took final action on the legislative program of the state chamber. President Ernest E. Rogers presided. The directors acted today on a report presented by Major Frank H. Johnston of New Britain, chairman of the legislative committee, which met at Hartford on Dec. 17, with its entire membership of 15 present.

Heading today's action called for the appointment of a special committee on "state advertising and publicity," a committee to study municipal finances in co-operation with Tax Commissioner Blodgett, and committees to study proposed motor vehicle legislation in co-operation with Commissioner Stoeckel and to study commercial arbitration, a subject of recent legislation in other states.

The directors also approved the present studies being made by special committees on the subjects of the proposed revision of the compensation law, the regulation of intra-state motor trucks, a reforestation program and co-operation with commercial aviation.

Completing the action of the directors was the reference of proposed legislation regarding the teaching of civics in normal and high schools and the matter of appropriations for Connecticut trade schools to the general welfare committee, proposed mercantile legislation to the trade and commerce committee and the question of an agricultural marketing program to the agriculture committee.

President Rogers announced the appointment of committees of nine each as follows: Banking, industries, insurance, general welfare, forestry, public utilities, trade and commerce, legislative and organizations. Business leaders throughout the state representing the various branches of business comprise the committees.

President Rogers read a letter from Henry Trumbull, vice president of the state chamber, who was general chairman of the Connecticut committee of arrangements for the recent Hartford meeting of the New England conference, in which Mr. Trumbull praised the assistance which he had received from Clark Belden, secretary of the state chamber, and the members of the chamber's staff in planning and handling the details of the Hartford meeting. On July 16, the directors voted the full co-operation of the state chamber toward making the Hartford meeting a success.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE INSPECTS MURPHY BLOCK

Alderman Alfred G. Lillibridge and Councilman Frank L. Rinella and William H. Aldrich, named as the committee to inspect the building at 37-41 West Main street, known as the Murphy building and owned by Joseph Sternlieb, conducted their investigation on Tuesday afternoon.

The report of the committee will be made at the meeting of the court of common council next Monday evening, at which time a decision will be reached regarding the future action concerning the building and its owners.

SHETUCKET LODGE NOMINATES OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

FREIGHT TRAFFIC SHOWS USUAL SEASONAL DECLINE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The "usual seasonal decline" of freight traffic resulted in the loading of 950,575 cars for the week ending Dec. 18, the American Railway association reported today, a decrease of 48,140 cars over the previous week. The week's loadings also showed a decrease of 19,163 over the corresponding week last year.

"Seasickless" Ships.

Recent storms on the Atlantic, it is claimed, have shown the value of the anti-rolling tanks installed on the steamships of the Albert Ballin class These tanks are built on the ideas of Herr Frahm and are supposed to solve the "rolling problem," which has puzzled naval constructors so long The ships are built with a slightly bulging hull at the water line and there are holes for the entrance and exit of sea water. The comfort of passengers, even in rough weather, is said to be such that these transatlantics are called "sea sickless ships." The tanks were first tried during the world war on German submarines and were found of unique value.

RICKARD PREDICTS THAT FIVE NEW CHAMPIONS WILL BE CROWNED IN 1927

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Taking his annual glance into the fistic future book, Tex Rickard today predicted that five new boxing champions will be crowned in 1927.

The promoter, in a signed story published by the Evening World, named Mickey Walker, Pete Latzo, Sammy Mandell and Charles (Phil) Rosenberg as the titleholders he expects to see deposed, with a successor picked to fill the featherweight vacancy caused by the retirement of Kaplan.

At the same time Rickard definitely committed himself to a heavyweight programme in which Jack Dempsey will meet the winner of the promoter's elimination tournament to determine Tunney's next opponent.

"Dempsey will return east the end of January and by July his opponents should have been established," Rickard wrote. "By fighting the best of the challengers he will be able to prove whether he has any chance against his conqueror."

Rickard named Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney, both of Boston, as the outstanding heavyweight contenders, in addition to Dempsey. He qualified this, however, by adding there was a "strong likelihood that either Jack Delaney or Paul Berlenbach would prove the best of the lot" and also mentioning Jack Renault, Paolino and Knute Hansen as outside possibilities to be considered.

"Gene Tunney will take on the man who has proven himself the best of the challengers," added the promoter, "and I believe the outcome will demonstrate that the conqueror of Dempsey is a much greater exponent of the manly art, than seems to be generally appreciated.

Predicting that the outdoor season will be even more of a "boom" than 1926, Rickard said he planned only two "big shots" next summer. One of these would pit Dempsey against a logical rival in July, the winner to meet Tunney in September. The promoter plans both bouts for the Yankee Stadium, which will have an increased seating capacity, probably for handling close to 100,000 fight fans.

Of the champions facing the most formidable opposition, Rickard believes Walker, new middleweight king, will have his troubles against either Maxey Rosenbloom, K. O. Phil Kaplan or Tiger Flowers, the former champion.

Pete Latzo is "outgrowing the welterweight class" Rickard feels, adding: "His first real defense of his title at 147 pounds is likely to be his last but he will make a strong middleweight contender."

The promoter expects Bushey Graham to dethrone Rosenberg next month at the garden, adding the belief that the bantam champion, now hard pressed to make 118 pounds, will seek honors in the featherweight division. Benny Bass, Red Chapman and Honeyboy Finnegan now are in the vanguard of the feather title hunt, according to the promoter.

Rickard classifies Fidel Labarba, the flyweight titleholder, and Tod Morgan of Seattle, king of the junior lightweights, as "real champions." He predicts both will stand at the top. Labarba, he added, faces a real threat in Elky Clark, the British champion, on January 21, at the garden.

ROSENBERG WILL FIGHT GRAHAM ON JAN. 14th

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Charley (Phil) Rosenberg's much-discussed bantamweight title bout with Bushey Graham of Utica, N. Y., was fixed today for January 14 at Madison Square Garden after several more chapters had been added to the verbal debate over it.

Having refused to go through with the fight January 7 and requesting an extended postponement, Rosenberg was haled before the State Athletic commission today and put on the official scales. He weighed 120 1-2, partially dressed, and the boxing solons decided this amounted to 125, stripped. By further process of deduction they figured it would take only one more week's work for Rosenberg to remove seven pounds and make the required class figure of 118.

Accepting this verdict, the champion promised to post a forfeit of $2 500 tomorrow to guarantee weight and appearance for the title battle at Madison Square Garden.

The commission shuffled the welterweight elimination deck to permit a return match between Joe Dundee of Baltimore and his recent conqueror, Eddie Roberts, the "Tacoma terror," they will meet at the garden, probably early in February as the feature of a card which also will pit Willie Harmon of New York, third of the officially recognized welterweight contenders, against some other rival.

Match For Delaney

MIAMI, Fla., Dec 28.—(AP)—A match between Jack Delaney, world's light heavyweight boxing champion, and Paul Berlenbach is being arranged here for a date during the peak of the winter season, Virgil Ector, of the local American Legion post, announced today.

SPEAKER ENGAGES COUNSEL TO HELP CLEAR NAME

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 28—(AP)—Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb, involved in the nation's latest baseball scandal, thumbed through law books today in the office of William H. Boyd, attorney for Speaker.

Possibility of a damage action instituted by Speaker against those responsible for making public the scandal appeared as he and Cobb went over their side of the case with Boyd.

Speaker's attorney admitted that he is gathering evidence to determine whether the former manager of the Cleveland Indians has any course at law to clear his name of the charges that he helped "fix" a baseball game between Detroit and Cleveland.

Neither Boyd nor Speaker, however, would discuss their plans or admit they have definite intentions of suing organized baseball for damages. Cobb likewise was silent. There was some indication that the former Detroit manager also would engage an attorney. If he does he undoubtedly will have separate counsel, Boyd said.

Speaker and Cobb expected to remain overnight in Cleveland as they will have further conferences with Boyd tomorrow. They arrived here this morning from Washington.

Should Speaker decide to take legal action against those who discredited his name the suit probably would be filed in federal court as the state courts are believed without jurisdiction. Such action also would be separate, it was pointed out as Speaker's name was not mentioned in the letters written to Hubert "Dutch" Leonard who submitted the evidence of the alleged "fixed" baseball game to Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Tonight it was announced further conferences here would be deferred until later in the week because James O. Murphin, Detroit attorney who has been retained as Cobb's counsel, is unable to leave Detroit immediately. Cobb announced he would go to Detroit tonight and both are expected to return here Thursday or Friday. It was indicated that the advisability of legal action, will probably be decided later this week.

It was also learned tonight that influential and wealthy friends of Cobb and Speaker have informed the famous players that they are willing to back them to the limit, financially, in event they need such aid:

Cobb, following the conference declared that he did not resign in Detroit as manager of the Tigers.

"I did not quit at Detroit," he said. "It was given out in Detroit that I had resigned there upon my return from my hunting trip. That statement was false. I did not resign, at that time. I was released and another manager appointed in my place. In fact, I had known for months that Moriarty was to be appointed to succeed me."

Ty's statement that he did not resign in Detroit was taken here as meaning that he did not resign in Commissioner Landis' office December 20 when urged to do so during the investigation of Leonard's charges.

LANDIS TO MAKE NO COMMENT ON SCANDAL

CHICAGO, Dec. 28—(AP)—Not until the last echo of baseball's latest scandal has spent itself will Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner, have any comment to make in justification of his revelation of charges that Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker conspired in 1919 to "fix" a baseball game.

Landis held his silence today and declined to comment on a suggestion that the sporting public is overlooking several factors in the episode when it accuses him of injustice.

When Landis made public last week the charges brought by "Dutch" Leonard, discarded Detroit pitcher, against Cobb and Speaker, he said:

"With Leonard persisting in his refusal to face this man, his statement proved nothing as to them. It is put into the record only to make intelligible the examinations of the witnesses, who from the beginning have asked a hearing at which Leonard would be present."

Landis was asked today whether the baseball fans are not overlooking the commissioner's statement that Leonard's charges "prove nothing" against Cobb and Speaker. He declined to be quoted.

He was asked, too, whether Cobb and Speaker might not be likely to get a decision more quickly by asking permission to join a major league club, than by resorting to litigation in the courts, and whether that decision might not likely be a favorable one. He declined to be quoted on that.

HARD PRACTICE FOR ALABAMA AND STANFORD

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 28—(AP)—Strenuous workouts were carried out today at Rose Bowl field where next Saturday, the undefeated Crimson tide from Alabama will line up against the best in the west—the Red Shirts from Stanford—in the annual New Year's east-west tussle.

Each team had a first string man ailing—Gordon Holmes, star center for the tide, and "Biff" Hoffman, giant backfield man of Stanford.

Holmes who suffered an appendix ailment and was left at El Paso, Tex., was reported much improved and probably will get in the game. Hoffman, limping, was in a suit calling signals.

Coach Glenn Warner of the west's entry, put his men through a stiff workout during the morning. Coach Wallace Wade, pilot of the Alabamans, locked up the gates this afternoon while his outfit did its stuff.

George Bogue, who carried the ball much of the time for Stanford, spent practically all morning kicking goals from every angle of the field.

TUNNEY WILLING TO ACCEPT HIGHEST OFFER

LEWISTON, Me., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, en route to New York from a week's vacation at the Tomhegan camps at Moosehead lake, late today denied a report printed in the New York telegram that he had accepted terms to defend the world's heavyweight championship against Jack Delaney in a match at the Polo grounds next summer.

Tunney admitted talking with Humbert Fugazy, the boxing promoter, about meeting an opponent next summer, but said that no names were mentioned and that he would wait for figures from other promoters.

"I told Fugazy," said Tunney during a brief stop here, "that I would rather wait until I had heard from other promoters. As for the man whom I meet for the world's championship, I would rather let the promoters and the public decide for me.

"I am sorry to be rushing back to New York, for I like Maine, but eight weeks of vaudeville face me and I must fulfill my contract. I should have liked very much to have stayed over a few days with my friend, 'Hi' Ricker at Poland Spring.

"I have been surprised on this trip to find how popular boxing apparently is in Maine. Here and there, groups of men, children and even middle-aged women have talked with me about it. It is astonishing to see how well they know the records of those boxers now performing in the larger cities of the United States. Many of them know these records far better than even the majority of the people through New York state outside of New York city."

Asked if he were carrying a copy of Shakespeare with him, when a reporter referred to his interest in such literature, Tunney replied that he had been too busy watching the scenery from the train to read Shakespeare, although he admires him of all writers.

Tunney left the train at Danville junction and went to Poland Spring to dine with Hiram W. Ricker Jr., who had been his guest at Moosehead lake and accompanied him back. From there he was to be taken by automobile to Portland to board the State of Maine Express for New York this evening. Plows were out yesterday on the state highway, and, although several inches of snow had fallen at dusk, it was not believed the party would have any difficulty in negotiating the 30-mile drive to Portland.

More than 100 people gathered at the local station to greet the champion, and here were groups at most of the railroad stations between Rockwood and this city.

PLAINFIELD CLASHES WITH SO. KINGSTON TEAM TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 28—South Kingston five, champions of Southern New England, will oppose the Plainfield Town team here Wednesday evening in the preliminary to a series that is being arranged between these two clubs. It will be remembered that last season Plainfield and South Kingston waged a stiff battle for the title with the Kingston team winning the series and title.

South Kingston has the same team that defeated the Towners last year and it is expected that tonight's battle will be most spirited and closely contended. The personnel of the Kingston team includes three players formerly with the New England champions, the Boston Whirlwinds. They are Morton, Bernot and "Fiddie" Morley. The others are Wilbur and Negrelli. This combination has been playing basketball for the past three years together and the passwork and teamwork is noted for its smoothness. The Plainfield team will be made up of the regulars, Dissinger and Normandin, forwards, Norris center, Benson and Madden, guards.

This week a set of bleachers has been erected in the community house hall and there is now seating accommodations for at least 1,000 fans. The preliminary game will be between the Buddies and Jake Wechlers All Stars of Jewett City. Jake promises the fans that his wonder team will be a mighty handful for the Buddies. Dancing is to follow the game.

TAFTVILLE-WILLIMANTIC GAME POSTPONED TO THURSDAY

Harry Persson, explaining his decisive defeat by Jim Maloney of Boston, asserted the Boston heavyweight gave him "no time to get set for a punch." Application of the suggested cure for the football shift—a two or three second halt before play—might be a boon to Harry's fistic maneuvers.

"DUTCH" LEONARD DENIES HE SOLD LETTERS TO AMERICAN LEAGUE HEADS

FRESNO, Calif., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Hubert B. (Dutch) Leonard, denied here tonight that he had sold to American league officials, the letters of Ty Cobb and Joe Wood, which were made public by Baseball Commissioner Landis in connection with the latest baseball scandal.

Leonard declared he turned the letters over to baseball authorities in the belief that he was "lending assistance in clearing up certain conditions which were detrimental to the good of baseball."

The former Detroit player said he presented his evidence in regard to an alleged deal to "throw" a game between Detroit and Cleveland late in the season of 1919, some time after he had received a settlement of claims against the Detroit club for loss of salary during the seasons of 1922, 1923 and part of 1924.

"I never received any money directly or indirectly for any letters or for any information in my possession," he asserted.

Leonard said he had been given to understand that he could submit evidence concerning the alleged "fixing" of the Detroit game without creating any publicity.

The statement follows:

"Since this unfortunate affair was made public by Judge Landis, I have been continuously urged to discuss it with representatives of the press, which I have so far refused to do.

"However, I feel at this time that because of certain mis-statements of various versions of this affair, I should emphatically set right in the minds of the public several points at issue.

"When I presented in June, 1926, in Chicago, my claim against the Detroit baseball club to the proper authorities for damages sustained by me through loss of salary covering a period of all the years 1922, 1923, and part of 1924, and after a full hearing of this claim by these authorities, it was determined that my claim was just and valid, and such claim was by them settled in full.

"The terms of this settlement were put in writing and a duplicate copy of this is in my possession, setting forth the nature of my claim and the amount that was due and paid to me, and other details.

"It was on account of this claim that I received money from the Detroit baseball club and on this account only.

"I never received any money directly or indirectly for any letters or for any information in my possession. On the contrary, I refused Judge Landis and others to go east and give any testimony involving any ball players in any irregularities.

"The letters which have appeared in print were letters which, among others, I received.

"Some weeks after the settlement in question had been agreed upon, I surrendered these letters to baseball authorities, when these authorities convinced me, that it was a duty which I owed to the Detroit team and to the baseball world in general, to help thereby and clear up certain rumors and information which they had previously in their possession.

"I was told and believed that by so doing, I was lending assistance in the clearing up of certain existing conditions which were detrimental to the good of baseball, and that I could do so without creating publicity, in fact, without the conditions and circumstances becoming public.

"The delivery of these letters had nothing whatsoever to do with the settlement of any claims for salary due. The agreement of this settlement was made some weeks prior to the surrender of these letters and as I said before, the delivery of these letters was without any money consideration either directly or indirectly.

"In making this statement, I'm not calling anbody a "blackmailer," or a "Judas," or using any other like expression. Those are terms only used by one who has no facts to sustain his position, and is henceforth to resort to epithets of like character.

"The public wants, if they want anything at all, facts.

"I have given these facts as concisely as possible, after refraining for some time from going into print at all, as I feared, by so doing, I would injure the standing of baseball.

"I feel now that the entire occurrence is a closed incident. The newspapers have made various alleged statements of mine, and I have been misquoted in statements I have made to others.

"The foregoing is the only authorized statement I have made, with reference to this affair, and, as I now feel, it will be the last, as I do not at this time deem it for the best interest of the baseball world in general, to go into this or any other occurrences at any length or detail."

RECOMMEND TWO-SECOND HALT IN SHIFT PLAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Football shifts, line and huddle, should be told to watch their steps, coaches from all parts of the United States decided today.

Preliminary to the meeting of the American Football Coaches association tomorrow, the board of directors, group chairmen and sectional vice presidents decided today to recommend a halt of two seconds before passing the ball after shifts. This conforms to recent action by the Western conference.

The coaches also will urge vigorous action to rebuke tendencies to proselyte in athletic talent. Resolutions couched in firm tones were discussed today.

The point after touchdown as now in effect met the full approval of the assembled coaches and sentiment of the group was that the forward pass regulations worked satisfactorily during the 1926 season.

Preliminary meetings were held this afternoon and tonight and three meetings of the association will be held tomorrow morning, afternoon and night.

HELLER BROTHERS TEAM IS A STRONG COMBINATION

The five Heller brothers who will make up the quintet which will oppose the Academy basketeers here Saturday evening (New Year's), at the Y gym have all made their mark in the field of sport. This family is probably the best known along athletics lines in the state as all five, namely, Max, Sam, Abie, Hymie and Harry, have been, or are at the present time brilliant figures in high school and college sports.

This outfit has played together for the past few years during the holiday season, meeting the pick of this section on the basketball court during that time. Again this season this unique quintet is displaying its wares before eastern Conn. fandom and in the program are included such teams as Stafford Springs Towners, Co. C. five of Willimantic, and other fives of like calibre all of which are finding this family team possessed of much basketball ability.

So, all things taken into consideration, present prospect is that the Academy basketball team will have a mighty busy evening New Year's in turning back the Willimantic team.

VANDALE LEADS BOWLERS IN PUTNAM LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 28.—The individual averages of the "rubber band" duck pin league have been compiled with the number of games each roller has engaged in, their total pin fall and average to date.

Vandale of Putnam heads the list but as he has not been engaged in as many games as other bowlers it is all the same all of the way down the list. Some very fine averages have resulted since the start of the league and high pin falls have been registered. The following is the list of averages with the number of games rolled, total pin fall and averages, in the order named.

ALL-HELLER FIVE GIVES COMPANY C BAD BEATING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 28.—In a brilliantly played contest and with an impenetrable man-for-man defense the All-Heller five tripped merrily to a victory of 42 to 4 over the Company C National Guard outfit at the state armory court Monday night. The guardsmen did not break the ice until the last quarter when they hooped two field goals. The Heller boys were in a class of their own although the soldiers played a hard game that forced their opponents to the limit. Sammy Heller was high scorer, registering eight field goals and two foul baskets for a total of 18 points. Sammy is the flashy forward on the Brown university quintet. At the end of the first quarter the score was 8 to 0, and with the closing of the half it was 20 to 0. When the final quarter opened the chalk marks read 34 to 0. Rothblat played a steady game for the Company and W. Dziekan featured in the offensive role.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press.)

There's a difference of $16.50 in cost to the ringside spectator between a world's flyweight boxing match and a heavyweight championship bout. It cost $27.50 for a close-up or semi-close-up of the Dempsey-Tunney or Dempsey-Firpo fights but the New York state athletic commission believes $11, including tax, is enough for seeing Fidel Labarba battle Elky Clark for the world's 112-pound championship January 21 at Madison Square Garden.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL TO EXTEND GROTON FERRY LEASE FOR ONE MONTH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 28—The city council has voted to extend the lease of the Groton ferry another month from the 1st of January, as no agreement can be reached with the lessees to take the operation of the boat at increased figures. It is hinted that the lease will eventually be made on the terms proposed by the operators and that affairs will run along as they have been going.

Brainard Masonic lodge balloted on candidates for membership this evening.

GRIPPLE PICKS UP READY CASH IN SELLING LEAD PENCILS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 28—Peter Ryan rolled into New London last evening on a Providence train so drunk that he was a nuisance to others in the car with him. That train had a conductor who knew his business so he telephoned to the office of the road's police here to be prepared to take the nuisance off the train to permit him to sober up and spare other passengers from listening to his abuse and his vile tongue. Ryan was in the police court here this morning when he pretended he did not recall anything he did, except that he realized that he was drunk when he was scooped up in the police net. He related that he had been a shoe shop employe and that he took advantage of the opportunity the Christmas holiday afforded and sold lead pencils on the streets. In this way he received a couple of hundred dollars in a few days. This amount he squandered and had but $1.50 when he arrived here. He is a cripple and because of that he was an object of charity. Policemen are generally hardened to that sort of man and they declared that Ryan was like many others who go about the country seeking money they should not receive. The accused pleaded to be allowed to use a railroad ticket that would take him to New York, so his plea was granted, and he got out of town.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel today ordered the driver's license of Charles C. Glassenberg, 39 Squire street, suspended.

The funeral of John W. Pierce was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 82 Ocean avenue, the services being conducted by Rev. E. Gilbert, pastor of the Niantic Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Salvatore DiMaggio, held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, the pastor, with Rev. William J. Fox, of Sacred Heart church, Groton, deacon and Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan, subdeacon. The bearers were Frank and Antonio Piscatella and Angelo, Frank, Rosario and Thomas DiMaggio. The floral tributes were unusually handsome Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

J. P. Taylor, Armstrong, and Theodore Bodenwein today sold to the Connecticut Power company the property on the northeast corner of the Mercer tract, State and Huntington streets, upon which site the power company a year ago caused a so-called community house to be erected, the house being of the type of a model home and was used by the power company, as well as other merchants in displaying stock.

The still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 1 o'clock this afternoon, but the firemen were unable to locate the fire. In reality none existed and the alarm was sent in by an excited person, who noticed a small quantity of smoke issuing from one of the windows in the lodging house of Mrs. Mary McGarry, 43 Tilley street and instead of investigating rushed to a telephone and gave the alarm. Acting Chief Thomas Shipman and Niagara Engine company and Allen Hook and Ladder company responded, but there was no need of their services.

Patrick Harkins, foreman at the car barn of the Connecticut company denies that he made complaint to the police because of the alleged reckless driving of the driver of an automobile bearing Connecticut registration 6100. Nevertheless, the record at the police station shows that at 11.50 o'clock on Sunday morning Hawkins made the complaint and stated that the automobile, apparently an Overland, was being driven at reckless speed on Montauk avenue and that the complainant was nearly run down. As the automobile was headed toward Ocean Beach, Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky on duty there was instructed to be on the lookout for the machine, but he failed to locate it. Lieutenant James C. Sullivan was at the desk at the time the complaint was made.

The body of Alick Finneway, formerly of Pawtucket, R. I., and latterly employed as a laborer at Fishers Island, found dead in his bed at the lodging house, 22 Golden street, Sunday afternoon, was buried this afternoon in St. Mary's cemetery.

The condition of City Manager William A. Holt, ill with quinsy at his home on Whittlesey avenue for several days, is reported today as being somewhat improved.

Mrs. Wilbur Brooks of Essex; Mrs. Theodore Losch and infant son, 34 Cottage street and Mrs. William Cotter, 24 Tilley street, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Walking throughout the city was perilous the entire morning for with a drizzling rain falling the ice-covered sidewalks furnished treacherous paths for those forced to use them. Although many falls were reported, none of the men and women were seriously injured, bruises being the principal result. Employes of the city's highway department were distributing sand on the walks and this work was continued until nightfall. Trolley traffic was not interrupted to any extent. A large force of shovelers were removing the slush from the business section, State, Main and Bank streets, receiving the attention of the workers. Automobile trucks were used to convey the partially melted snow to the water front where it was dumped in the Thames river.

New London should take some means of securing the clearing of side walks or the sanding of them, in weather like that which prevailed this morning. The walks never were in a more dangerous condition. Occupants of property with a little regard for the safety and comfort of others could do a whole lot toward relieving the situation but so many of them do not take that view of the conditions they are in the majority.

Illness has hit the New London police department for today seven patrolmen are off duty because of ailments of various forms. None of the officers are believed to be seriously ill, the trouble being either grip or tonsilitis.

Policewoman Jane Cassidy is ill with a severe cold at her home on Franklin street. Her condition is improving, but it will be several days before she resumes her duties.

William Chapman of Golden Spur, was arrested this morning by State Police Officer Bernard Kennerson charged with intoxication. He was brought to New London and locked up but he escaped prosecution in the Waterford town court this afternoon when Judge Frederick Dimmock and the state police instructed Desk Sergeant Frank Howard to deliver Chapman in the custody of his son, George Everett Chapman.

An automobile owned by the Southern New England Telephone company and driven by Timothy E. Driscoll of 40 Montauk avenue, participated in a peculiar accident this afternoon and one in which serious damage was not resultant. The automobile was passing through Main street and in passing another automobile parked beside the curb, between John and Douglass street, a tire chain, one section of which was loose, in revolving with the wheel struck the tire of the motionless auto causing a puncture. The owner of the latter automobile is not known, but the car carried Connecticut registration N-1182.

Bronislaw Przibilewski, 91 Winthrop street, reported to the police today that he had lost a $50 Polish bond last night at the corner of Main and State streets.

Charles J. Donohue of Montville, was arrested at that place this morning by State Police Officer George Sisson, charged with intoxication. Donohue was brought to the New London police station at 12.40 o'clock and he is still occupying a cell awaiting the disposition of the charge preferred against him.

Frank Mather, 11, of George avenue, Groton, was injured in the auto accident on Mallory Hill, Groton, Christmas afternoon. The automobile, driven by Walter Post of Brandegee avenue, Groton and with his son, Robert, 16, as another occupant, overturned. Mather was discharged at Home Memorial hospital today. The other boy is still a patient at the hospital, suffering with lacerations of the head. Walter Post is receiving treatment at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, having sustained concussion of the brain and lacerations. His condition was reported today as being improved.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Samuel D. Bliven, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bliven, of 16 Lincoln avenue to Miss Helen B. Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lynch, of Montville. Mr. Bliven and Miss Lynch are employed in the New London City National bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hendel of 55 Linden street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Hendel, to Eli Aronson, Hartford.

Rev. Philip M. Kerridge was in Framingham, Mass., and attended the funeral services of a relative.

Miss Marion Silva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Silva of Green street, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. George Childs, New York.

Atso Pasqualini, son of Mr. and Mrs. Attilio Pasqualini, of 54 Smith street and Miss Evelyn Pongetti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pongetti, 658 Main street, were married yesterday morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The ceremony, by Rev. Nicholas Pasqualini, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Ethel Basili, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid Mr. Pasqualini is employed by the Connecticut Power company.

The case of Thomas Connors of Cedar street of this city, arrested in Waterford Saturday night charged with breach of the peace, did not come up in the Waterford town court yesterday afternoon. Continuance until next Friday was granted when a communication was received from Dr. J. M. Ganey stating that Connors was confined to his home by illness.

At a meeting of Fairview lodge, No. 101, I. O. O. F., of Groton, held last night, George H. Dexter was elected noble grand. Other officers elected were: Vice Noble Grand John H. Smith; Recording Secretary Irving H. Poppe; Financial Secretary Henry E. Marquardt; Treasurer John A. Irving; Past Grand William R. Martin; Trustee for three years Leonard M. Sawyer; Pianist Harry E. Wheaton; Relief committee, Edward F. Walsh, C. R. Brown and Christopher B. Chapman; Financial committee, Percy L. Marquardt, Lewis M. Cromwell and Lee Strickland. The officers will be installed by District Deputy Grand Master Edward F. Walsh, Jan. 10.

A family quarrel in which women participated, took place this evening at a Steward street residence. The police were requested to go there and make an arrest. Part of the request was granted, Sergeant Samuel Higg going to the house, but did not make an arrest because the quarrel was too trivial to constitute a breach of the peace.

Traffic on the New London-Norwich line of the Connecticut company was greatly interrupted this afternoon and early evening, because of the disabling of one of the north bound cars. There was no service between New London and Norwich from 4.45 until 6 o'clock. When a car finally reached New London at 5.55 o'clock there were about 75 passengers awaiting to board it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

The Palace is featuring a tremendous representative bill, one of the best so far this season, five high class big time vaudeville acts, each one a sure-fire headliner, and Rin-Tin-Tin, starring in While London Sleeps—a melodramatic story of a master criminal, his dog, his beast-like assistant, the girl they kidnap, and the man she loves. In breath-taking sequence you are rushed from the mansions of the mighty to the dens of the lowly. It is one of the biggest thrillers of any recent screen production and should not be missed. A special holiday comedy and latest news events close this big show.

On Thursday there will be a complete change of program with five more supreme acts of big time vaudeville and a big feature picture Stranded in Paris starring Bebe Daniels and Ford Sterling. Many of the scenes were filmed on the streets of Paris while several thousand square feet of stage at Paramount's studio were also taken over for the construction of huge ball rooms. The settings range from a tiny ill-lighted boarding house to a magnificent suite in the world's finest hotel.

On Thursday evening the Palace is giving away a German police puppy bred at Chase Cliff Kennels of this city. Better be on hand.

Don't forget the big midnight show on New Year's eve at 11:15, for there will be plenty of fun for all and what could be more pleasant than seeing the old year out and the new one in at the Palace?

Broadway Theater

A special New Year program of high tensioned Keith-Albee vaudeville opens tomorrow at the Broadway theater. There will be five acts of "all entertainment" value, befitting this special occasion.

The Silent Power with Ralph Lewis as the star, will be the big picture feature attraction starting Thursday.

This is announced as a high tension drama of electric thrills and as the entire story revolves around a great electric power station some exciting moments may be looked for.

Ralph Lewis adds another industrial characterization to his list of impersonations in the role of the power house engineer, a man whose duty compels him to throw a swich that may mean the life of his only son.

An imposing cast including Ethel Shannon, Charles Delaney and Vadim Uraneff support the star.

Are you getting ready to celebrate New Year's. The Broadway management is announcing a midnight show, to see that those who want to usher in the new year right will have an opportunity. The vaudeville and picture show will run from 11 p. m. till 1 a. m. Friday, Dec. 31, 1926.

Breed Theatre

A variety of thrills, powerful drama and a love story of great charm and appeal, are the features of "Forever After," which is to be the attraction at the Breed theatre, starting Thursday.

The story, adapted by Julian Josephson and Paul Gangelin from an Owen Davis stage play and directed by F. Harmon Weight, is one of pathos, comedy, suspense and thrilling action.

Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes are starred, Hallam Cooley, David Torrence, Eulalie Jensen, Alec Francis and Lila Leslie support.

The tale begins in a small New England town, shifts to a fast moving sequence of college life and athletics, then to a contrasting setting of social luxury and poverty, and finally to the vivid background of the World War.

La Boheme, the Metro-Goldwyn super-special starring Lillian Gish and John Gilbert which has been running at the Breed theatre since Sunday will end its engagement today. It will be shown at 2:15 and 8:15 for the last times.

Midnight Show and Dance

Something new and with a real appeal to it will be presented for public approval at the Capitol theatre in the form of a big New Year's eve midnight show and dance. Advance sales of tickets have been coming in in great shape and Manager George A. Bartlett is making elaborate arrangements for the enjoyment of one and all. The special show and revue will go on at the mystic hour of midnight. Preceding this there will be a motion picture program. At 1 o'clock in the morning a real entertaining dance contest will go on. There will be prizes for the fox trot and black bottom and anyone caring to participate are asked to hand in their name as quickly as possibly. At 1:30 o'clock the spacious stage will be cleared and amid festivities dancing will be enjoyed to music by the full Capitol theatre band. The stage will accommodate some 300 couples.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

The junior choir of St. Joseph's church sang Christmas carols at the 8 o'clock mass under the direction of Mrs. Julia Peloquin, the organist. The carols were Holy Night, Silent Night, Hark! The Herald Angels Sing, Away In a Manger, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear and Adeste Fideles at the offertory, accompanied by Moses Lafreniere on the cornet. Mrs. Peloquin sang O Holy Night with Miss Cecil Lafreniere at the organ and Mr. Lafreniere playing the cornet obligato. The choir members are Misses Eva Dugas, Marie Peloquin, Josephine Charen, Anna Leonard, Fanny Blanchard, Bertha Bernal, Delia Dugas, Blanche Fontaine, Lena Boucher, Cecil Lafreniere, Virtune Peloquin, Jr., and John Charon.

The many friends of Mrs. James Welch are glad to learn that she is improving in health. Misses Mary and Agnes Welch and James Jr., and his wife also James Welch, 3rd, were home to spend Christmas with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Belliveau of Hartford spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. V. Peloquin.

Arthur Lawton began his new duties in Fall River Monday morning. Mr. Lawton has been with the Versailles Sanitary Fibre Co. for the past 12 years and many friends regret his leaving. Miss Gladys Lawton also is working in Fall River.

TO STOP CRIME, MAKE CRIME UNPROFITABLE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The most effective way of stopping a "crime wave" is to make crime unprofitable, James E. Heperon, managing director of the Baltimore criminal justice commission, asserted today in addressing the annual convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Crime was the topic of many of the speakers today before the social and economic section. A wide variety of subjects were discussed before the various other sections.

Deprecating the "modern" theory that criminals were "sick men" of low mentality or "born crooked." Mr. Hepbron said they usually were of high mental attainments and were in the business of crime because it paid.

"The belief that all criminals are mentally subnormal," said Mr. Hepbron, "is widely accepted and believed today. It was not until the World war, when greater numbers of men were given intelligence tests, that the average of intelligence was found to be much lower than originally supposed, and when our convict population was examined it was found that they received a higher mental rating than the draft army of the United States.

"And it must be remembered that convicts in penal institutions represent the lower type of criminals, because the more astute frequently escape detection. Generally speaking the criminals received a higher mental rating than their guards."

A huge chicken hawk which has been preying on pigeons in the downtown section of Buffalo, N. Y., for several days, was shot by Frank Guenther, chief guard at the county jail. The bird was roosting in a pigeon coote on the jail tower. The hawk had a wing spread of four feet.

GALES FERRY

The Christmas party given by the church school of the M. E. church, Friday evening, with Christmas tree, was well attended. A group of recitations, by the primary department of the school, Mrs. Ruth Euster and Mrs. J. Edmond Norman, teachers was given preceding the cantata, A Christmas Eve Dream. The program of this department follows: Christmas Welcome, Gerald Gunuspy.; The Sleepy Maple Tree, Virginia Lawson; Animal Christmas, Jeroid Euster; Christmas song, Dorothy Euster; Time to be Good, Billie O'Connor; Christmas Christine Miller; The Calico Cat, Richard and Hester Lawson; Santa Claus Irving Norman; Little Miss Muffett, Phebe Norman; song, Twinkle Little Star, Gene Hurlbutt; The Snow, Ernestine Crandall. At the conclusion of the cantata Supt. C. E. Colver announced that the jingling of sleigh bells indicated that Santa Claus was coming and he appeared burdened with packages and added much to the merriment of the party. Santa Claus was impersonated by Walter M. Buckingham. The electrically lighted Christmas tree was also laden with gifts. Supt Colver, Assistant Superintendent, D. C. Perkins, Nelson Parker, R. Irving Hurlbutt, John Harold helped in dismantling the tree while Misses Colver, Matilda Harold, Em-Beth Bennett and Ethel Main distributed the gifts. The party was given under the direction of Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, Junior superintendent and the special day committee. Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt was organist.

"Did You See the Angels?" was the theme of Rev. Wilfred D. Hamilton at the morning service in the M. E. church Sunday, preceded by the story talk, The Christ Bearer. The offertory anthem, Come to my Heart Lord Jesus, Ambrose, was sung by the choir, with solo parts by Miss Grace A. Chapman and C. E. Colver.

At the Sunday evening service the story, The Other Wise Man, by Henry VanDyke, was read by Rev. Mr. Hamilton and illustrated by beautiful slides.

Miss Helen R. Buckingham of New York arrived Thursday to spend the Christmas recess with her brother Walter M. Buckingham and Mrs. Buckingham at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Clark and two sons, Walter T. Jr., and Malcolm Whiting, left Friday to motor to South Sudbury, Mass., to spend Christmas and Sunday, with Mrs. Clark's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Elbridge C. Whiting at Whiting Hall, South Sudbury.

An evergreen tree, electrically lighted on the grounds evenings, at the home of Postmaster D. R. Povey has been much admired, during the Yuletide period.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hakenson and son of the Submarine Base, spent Christmas at the home of Mrs. Hakenson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Burnham in Hampton.

The pupils of the grammar school, Miss Evelyn E. Whipple, teacher, and of the primary school, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt teacher, held a combined program, at the closing of the fall term for the Christmas recess Thursday.

The grammar school program: Song, Hark, the Herald Angels Sing; Santa's Trials; Enid Latimer; Wrestling, Carl Norcross, Robert Hamilton, Harold Hurlbutt; A Christmas Bed Time Story; Dorothy Hamilton; A Christmas Wish, Elvin Hartung; A Model Child, exercise for ten girls; song, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear; The Christ Child, Ruth Hurlbutt; Instrumental, The Doris Waltz, Joseph and Helen DeRusha; Getting Ready for Santa, Doris Coman; songs, Away in a Manger and O Little Town of Bethlehem; Kitty's Present, Bernice Coman; Mother Goose Health playlet, Carol Norman, Edith Hartung, Frances Maynard, Madelin Rogers, Ruth Hurlbutt, Bernice Coman, Enid Latimer, Elvin Hartung, Harold Hurlbutt, Dorothy Hamilton, May Crandall, Carelessness, Earl Coman, Robert Hamilton, Harold Hurlbutt, Richard Latimer, John Buckman, Edmund Norman, Joseph De Rusha; song, Up On the Housetop; playlet, The Fairies' Strike; Fairies: Grace Maynard, Christine Maynard, Margaret Parker, Carol Norman; Mischief, John Buckman; Santa, Richard Latimer; Bobbie, Robert Hamilton, Mrs. Santa, Helen DeRusha; song, Home Going Song.

Primary school program: Santa's Age, Warren McNaugh; What I'd Do, James Abbott; If You Were Only Five, Lysle Crandall; No Christmas Day, John Hartung; A Message to Santa, Otis Rogers; two songs, Santa Claus and Jolly Old St. Nicholas; A Surprise for Santa, Jane Crandall, Little Ruth Gray, Dorothy Euster. A tree with gifts, was a feature of the afternoons program. The affair was largely attended by parents and friends of the pupils.

Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins was the guest Christmas of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Monett A. Lawson at their Long Cove farm.

Mrs. J. A. Birch and daughter, Miss Dorothy Birch spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. William Blair in Norwich.

Rev. and Mrs. Allen S. Bush were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Kenneson in New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham and their guest, Miss Helen Buckingham were members of a family dinner party, Christmas day at the home of Mrs. Buckingham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Clark in Norwich.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Potter entertained the children and grand-children Christmas day, 14 sat down to dinner.

Miss Fanny Upham spent the week end with her brother, G. L. Upham and family.

The daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Peckham in Norwich, Christmas day is grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Peckham of this place.

J. S. May and family had as guests for Christmas, the former's brother, Everett E. May and Mrs. May.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Cox of Stafford Springs spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Eddy. They were three hours making the trip here Friday evening, owing to the icy condition of the roads.

The Christmas tree and exercises were held at the club house Friday evening. There was a good attendance. Carols were sung and Mrs. A. H. Hibbard read a Christmas story. W. C. Damon made an ideal Santa Claus and distributed the gifts to the children. Ice cream was served at the close.

Stewart Morse of Williston academy is home for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Damon of New York, Katherine Damon of Boston Conservatory of Music, Edith Damon of Wellesley college are spending the holidays with Edmond Damon, superintendent of the Stillwater Worsted company

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—A sharp downward readjustment of prices took place in today's stock market. Selling orders apparently were for both the long and short accounts and spread over a rather broad list, final quotations disclosing a long list of net declines ranging from 1 to nearly 7 points.

Speculative disappointment over the failure of the Allied Chemical directors to make a more liberal dividend distribution, and the declaration of only the regular dividend on American Can, was believed to be the chief influence behind the reaction. Bearish sentiment also was created, however, by the increase in brokers' loans, and by wild rumors concerning a possible break in our relations with Mexico as a result of the new land laws which go into effect in that country on the first of the year.

Allied Chemical, which touched the record high price of 148 7-8 a week ago Monday, and closed last night at 141 1-4, was hammered down to 134 1-4, closing slightly above that level. The increase in the annual dividend rate from $4 to $6 was not very cheering to those who had looked for a big split-up, with the maintenance of the $4 dividend on the new stock. American Can, which was bid up recently on talk of $1 extra, sold off 2 points when only the regular dividend was authorized. Weakness of American Smelting and the Pan-American issues, which have large property interests in Mexico, was directly traceable to the Mexican rumors.

The recent stock dividend on Steel common undoubtedly had stimulated buying in Allied Chemical and other industrial issues which offered prospects of similar action, creating, in some, an over-bought condition which today's reaction probably was intended to correct. Recessions of 1 to 3 points took place in such standard industrials as U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, General Motors, U. S. Rubber and Radio Corporation, with declines of 4 to 6 points in International Harvester, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, National Lead and United Drug.

Trading at this time of the year also involves extensive readjustment of speculative accounts for the purpose of registering losses under the income tax law, which also explains some of the confusion in price movements. Notwithstanding the many optimistic forecasts of business now being published, serious misgivings still exist in some quarters over the future outlook. It is generally conceded, however, that the huge sums to be paid out in the next few weeks in the forms of dividends, interest and repayment of principal are likely to act as a sustaining influence of the securities markets.

A sharp break of 3 to 4 cents a bushel in wheat prices, based on revised upward estimates of the world's surplus of the commodity, was the outstanding development in the commodity markets. Cotton, coffee and sugar prices showed little change.

Call money again held steady at 5 1-2 per cent, all day although banks called about $20,000,000 in loans to strengthen their reserve position. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges held steady, with French francs quoted around 3.96 cents and demand sterling around $4.84 7-8-16.

SNOW, ICE AND RAIN STORMS HAVE COST CITY OVER $6,000

So far this winter, snow, ice, sleet and rain storms have cost the city of Norwich over $6,000. This amount represents the expense the street department has been obliged to meet in ploughing, carting snow and sanding icy sidewalks and streets.

The heavy downpour of rain and the accompanying thaw melted a good part of the snow remaining from Sunday's storm but added to the trials and tribulations of the street department. The storm started about 3 o'clock in the morning with a light fall of snow and hail but as the mercury was rising steadily, the snow turned to a heavy rain which continued to fall throughout the day and until about 9 o'clock in the evening.

The rain combined with melting snow filled gutters and streets which in some sections of the city were flooded as the catch basins could not carry off the water as fast as it fell. Towards the late afternoon most of the snow had disappeared from the highways, uncovering the ice beneath which made motor traffic perilous, in numerous sections.

Union square, Washington square and Laurel Hill avenue were especially slippery. At Union square two motor busses got into a mixup when they slid down the grade into Chestnut street, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The busses, a Norwich and Westerly bus, and a Norwich and Hartford bus, were unable to negotiate the Bath street grade into Broadway and slipped back towards the city barn. Ashes spread on the street by street department men enabled the busses to make the grade and they continued on their trips after a short delay.

Church street was another bad section, not only for auto traffic but for pedestrians as well. It was almost impossible for people to walk up the steep hill, and numerous mishaps couldn't get much farther up the hill than the Otis library. There were numerous falls on icy sidewalks but as far as could be learned no one was seriously injured.

A force of men was kept busy throughout the day and the greater part of the night spreading ashes on streets and sanding sidewalks under the direction of Street Commissioner John C. Donovan.

Clogged switches, slippery rails and stalled automobiles disrupted local trolley traffic, especially on the Norwich and New London and the Willimantic lines. Three cars jumped the rails during the day and early evening.

The one-man trolley that left Franklin square for Greeneville at 2.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, left the tracks at the junction of Main and North Main streets, the front truck running close to the curb before the car came to a stop. There were several passengers in the car but no one was injured. The car was in charge of Leonard Hoaglund of 100 West Thames street.

A repair car and an extra car were dispatched from the barn at Greeneville and the passengers were transferred. The wrecking crew had the car back on the tracks within an hour, no damage having been done. The slippery condition of the track is said to have been the cause of the car leaving the rails.

The other two trolley cars split the frog at the Uncasville switch and were derailed, one at 4.52 o'clock in the afternoon and the other at 7.30 in the evening. Trolley schedules were back to normal again about 9 o'clock in the evening.

The white way on lower Broadway and a part of Main street was put out of commission by the rain. Slippery streets were responsible for a number of automobile accidents in the city, all of which, as far as could be learned, were of a minor nature.

About 6 o'clock Tuesday evening a machine driven by Everett Brown, employed at the Norwich state hospital, in Preston, ran into the rear of a Norwich and New London motor bus near the state hospital. Mr. Brown was on the way to the hospital and the bus was ahead of him. It stopped to allow passengers to alight and Mr. Brown's machine bumped into the rear of the bus. Damage to Mr. Brown's machine was estimated at about $25.

Owing to the bad weather conditions a number of social events and one or two lodge elections scheduled for Tuesday evening were postponed until later dates.

ENFORCEMENT OF GAME LAWS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

The enforcement of the state fish and game laws has been improved as a result of the development which has been made in the warden service during the past two years, according to a section on this topic which is included in the biennial report of the state board of fisheries and game.

The increased efficiency of the warden service is declared to be attested to by the fact that there were 1,152 arrests during the two year period ending June 30, 1926, as against 760 for the similar period ending June 30, 1924. The report states that a slight falling off in the number of arrests in the past few months "is believed to be an indication that the increased activity of the wardens is being felt and that the unscrupulous hunter or angler is now afraid of being caught."

Of the total of 1,152 arrests 1,122 resulted in convictions, 675 of the convictions were for violation of the fish laws and 4,377 for violation of the game laws. In addition there were 83 convictions for fishing on municipal water supplies. Fines paid by the violators totaled $7,125.50 while costs amounted to $12,857.12, making the total amount of money paid by hunters and anglers for violation of the law $19,982.62.

The detailed reports by counties show that the greatest number of violations and the largest amount paid in fines were in New Haven county. The totals there were as follows: Violations of fish laws, 137; game laws, 158; total, 345; fines paid, $2,604; costs paid, $3,810.18; total, $6,414.18. The totals in Fairfield county were second largest while those in Hartford county were third. The record of violations and fines in Hartford county was as follows: Violations of fish laws, 99; game laws, 67; total, 166; fines paid, $1,008.58; costs paid, $2,141.53; total, $3,150.41. Money received from forfeited bonds is included in the fines paid.

The report states that "the outstanding factors which contributed to the development and improvement of the warden service were the appointment of a state warden, the co-operation of sportsmen, farmers and members of game clubs, the employment of more full-time wardens and the placing of a large number of wardens in uniforms." Credit is given to A. Joseph Williamson of Bridgeport, who was appointed state warden July 1, 1925, as a result of a provision made by the legislature of 1925. Mr. Williamson was formerly county warden for Fairfield county.

Fifteen wardens are now in uniform according to the report. One of the advantages of the uniforms is said to be that "aliens respond more quickly to the command of a uniformed officer and are less likely to shoot a warden." It is also pointed out that this means of identification enables the wardens to receive more information concerning violations. "The number of uniformed men will be increased as funds become available for the employment of more full-time men," according to the report.

HEALTH BOARD WARNS AGAINST UNCOOKED PORK

In this week's bulletin of the state department of health attention is called to the fact that trichinosis is a needless disease. The bulletin says that the recent report of a case of trichinosis in Connecticut serves as a reminder that this disease need not occur if all food be properly cooked. During the past 6 years, 56 cases of trichinosis have been reported in Connecticut.

Trichinosis results from eating uncooked pork, usually in the form of sausage. Tiny larvae of trichinella spiralis encysted in the lean portions of the pork develop in the stomach of the person who eats the pork and cause the disease. These parasites are killed by cooking. There is no danger of contracting the disease by eating well cooked pork. Between one and two per cent of American hogs are infested with this parasite and their flesh may thus convey the disease to persons who eat it uncooked.

The 56 cases of trichinosis reported during the past six years were distributed by months as follows:

January 22, February 5, March 6, April 5, May 1, June 1, July 1, August 5, September 2, October 5, November 0, December 3.

From these figures it will be noted that while the disease may occur at any season of the year there is a tendency for it to be more prevalent during the winter and early spring months. In fact, more than two-thirds of the cases have occurred during the four months, January, February, March and April, and more than one-third of the cases occurred during the month of January alone. Of the 22 cases that occurred in January, 13 appeared to have occurred in one outbreak in 1921.

Trichinosis is more apt to result from eating freshly slaughtered pork than cold storage pork. Storage at near zero temperature tends to kill the parasites. It is said that keeping pork at not over 5 degrees F. for 20 days is sufficient to kill trichinella spiralis larvae. A dependable preventive available to all is proper cooking of pork before it is eaten. It should be cooked till the meat turns white all through and does not appear red at any point. When so cooked the parasite causing trichinosis is killed.

This parasite may occur in large numbers in infested meat. As many as 1,200 have been counted in a piece of muscle weighing one gram which would make over half a million in a pound. It is estimated that the body of a person who has died from trichinosis may contain from 5,000,000 to 100,000,000 of these parasites. The severity of the disease depends upon the number of live parasites swallowed.

While only 56 cases have been reported in Connecticut in the past 6 years it is possible there may have been a number of others not recognized. Trichinosis may be mistaken for typhoid fever, rheumatism, acute miliary tuberculosis and other diseases of common occurrence. The fact that more than one-third of the cases reported in Connecticut, or 21 out of the total of 56, were reported from Waterbury may justify the suspicion that possibly the disease may have escaped notice elsewhere. Waterbury physicians are said to have had their attention drawn to the subject of trichinosis a few years ago so that they are on the lookout for cases of the disease.

The method of prevention available to all consists in thorough cooking of all pork. Thoroughly cooked pork does not convey the disease. Pork should be properly cooked at times of holiday festivity as well as at other times.

WELFARE DEPT. DISTRIBUTED TOYS TO 354 CHILDREN

The family welfare department of the United Workers distributed toys to 354 children representing 95 families before Christmas. The response of the public to the appeal for gifts was most generous, and many gifts were also collected by personal solicitation by two members of the committee who had this responsibility.

Many of the toys were very fine and far beyond the financial ability of the department to furnish as all available funds from the treasury of the United Workers are needed for the regular relief work. Miss Julia C. Corcoran gave much care to the selection of the gifts suited to the age and taste of each child. The practical present of stockings were added for many of the children.

Twenty-seven baskets, decorated with red crepe paper and bright cord and filled with fruit and candy, were distributed to old people and invalids. The members of the committee gave liberally of their time in doing the necessary work. The gifts were distributed by members of the committee owning motor cars who were able to do so, assisted by two other kind people. The committee wish to extend most hearty thanks to all who gave toys and money, and to any who assisted in any way.

HEALTH TRAFFIC RULES FOR THE NEW YEAR

Health traffic rules are now issued for the benefit of those who are on the way to reach that goal where old age is still the prime of life, says the weekly health bulletin issued by the state department of health.

Confronted with the problems of the broad highway where many others touch our path, these traffic rules should guide us safely ahead, the statement continues.

Start, with rules of the road, ignorance often leads to disaster.

Stop, and make friends with your health traffic officer. He is there to protect you as well as the community.

Go, with a proper license so if challenged you have a clean bill of health.

Stop, for the cross traffic of disease and protect yourself against it.

Go, straight ahead with strength, half-way driving blocks community traffic and interferes with progress.

Stop, and let ignorance go by—to be caught in that stream would be fatal for its road is narrow and its traffic signals confusing.

Go, willingly over the detour when quarantine or epidemic blocks the highway.

Start, with the proper brakes to avoid disease disaster.

Go, full speed ahead, turning corners for parking places of relaxation.

Stop, at the first signal of over speeding, thus averting a sudden breakdown.

Go, with one-way traffic guiding you for the health of the whole.

Stop, for the right of way, life is no health competition.

The highway leads to its goal when the right turns of pleasure are interspersed with the straight way of the main thoroughfare, and frequent courtesy of right of way extended to fellow travelers.

ANNOUNCE WELL CHILD CONFERENCE AT WAUREGAN

Every mother is anxious to make and keep their children healthy. At the opening of the New Year this wish is uppermost in the mind of every mother in Connecticut. The monthly well child conferences, many of which are now in operation in Connecticut under the direction of the community in cooperation with the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the state department of health, are the means of making this wish come true.

At these conferences mothers bring all their children under school age to be examined by the doctor and booked on the health roll for twelve monthly visits. If the New Year has ushered in a new baby, mothers look forward to that time when about the sixth month they can bring their youngest one to receive this valuable health inventory. No matter how stormy the weather, no matter how great the distance, mothers have learned that unless colds and other illnesses prevent, it is a wise plan to bring their children to these conferences and learn the rules of health which are to be practiced in the home. In no other way can children be kept strong and healthy.

Starting with each new year, mothers again resolve that one day in each month cannot be better spent for the health protection of their children. Starting with each new baby, and providing each pre-school child with the essential for health, the foundation is laid for a healthy career for each child. Mothers may not fully appreciate the value of this in this early period, but as children grow up into school age and then advance into adult life, they realise that the strong health foundation laid earlier has been the means of sending out into the world healthy men and women.

Start the New Year right by attending the January monthly Well Child conference which will be held on Tuesday afternoon, January 4th, in company hall, Wauregan, from 2 to 4 o'clock says a statement issued by the state department of health.

COMPENSATION FOR FOUR INJURED EMPLOYES

Four compensation agreements were filed Tuesday in the office of the clerk of the superior court in this city as follows:

Atwood Machine Co., and James Leahy, 48, Stonington, blood poisoning right hand, resulting from burns on November 12.

Richmond Radiator Co., and C. Alex, 17 Elm street, Norwich, contusions across right great toe on Nov. 18.

William Spencer & Son Corp., and Joshua Hubbard, 32, New London, broken bone in left ankle on Dec. 6.

Christ Church Social Postponed

The Christ Episcopal church parish party and Christmas tree entertainment which was to have been held at the parish rooms Tuesday evening was postponed owing to the inclement weather and will be held Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

JUNIOR GUILD HAS CHRISTMAS SOCIAL

The Junior Guild of the United Congregational church entertained 12 little girls at a Christmas party at the Community house Monday evening. The supper was served in charge of Mrs. Hope Adams, the menu being as follows:

Creamed Chicken
Mashed Potatoes Peas
Rolls
Fancy Cookies Ice Cream
Cocoa

Following the supper the children gathered around the Christmas tree and received presents of dolls, games, fruit and candy from Santa Claus, whose presence was greatly enjoyed by the children.

After the distribution of gifts games were enjoyed until 9 o'clock. The committees in charge of the party were as follows: General committee, the Misses Dorothy K. Messler, Mabel Fleming and Emma Thompson; decorations, Misses Elizabeth Zumbro, Eleanor Sargent and Faith Allen; entertainment, Miss Katherine Zumbro; transportation, the Misses Suzanne and Alice Higgins.

The automobiles which carried the children to and from the party were loaned by Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott and Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr.

COLCHESTER MAN GETS BADLY CRUSHED HAND

Lawrence Rogers, 22, of Colchester, suffered a severely crushed hand and wrist Tuesday, when the sleeve of his coat became caught in the engine of his automobile while he attempted to strut off the pet-cock of the radiator.

The sleeve caught in the fan and soon pulled his hand and arm into the engine, stalling it. Eight men, working with a crow-bar, finally extricated the terribly crushed and lacerated hand. He was taken to his home and a physician arrived shortly after.

JUDGE TAKES PAPERS IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

At the session of the court of common pleas in New London, Monday, Judge Charles B. Waller took the papers in the case of Robert Tetrault of New London builder, against Kate and Sam Santaniello of New London in which the plaintiff sought to foreclose on a mechanic's lien for $401. Atty. Arthur T. Keefe appeared for the builder and Atty. Max Boyer for the defendants.

It was brought out in court that the defendants had paid on account $1,599 for work done in remodelling a building in Bank street, New London. The defendants claimed that they were not satisfied with one section of the work. Mr. Tetrault admitted that it was not the way he should have wanted it but explained his position in the matter by stating that an architect who had the work in charge and who ordered the material had not made provisions or supplied material to do as the Santaniellos wanted. The builder said that he could do nothing but follow the specifications.

MONTVILLE REPORTS FOUR SCARLET FEVER CASES

The weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health shows the following cases of communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut during the week ending Dec. 24:

COOLIDGE AGAINST MILITANT DOMINATION OF THE WORLD

In Address at the 150th Anniversary of the Battles of Trenton the President Declared That, While Favoring an Adequate Army and Navy, He is Opposed to Any Effort to Militarize This Nation—Governor Trumbull Attended—President and Mrs. Coolidge Were Honor Guests at Banquet Arranged by the Trenton Historical Society.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 29—(AP)—President Coolidge and his party arrived in Trenton at 6:31 p. m. to attend the banquet of the Trenton Historical society commemorating the 150th anniversary of the battles of Trenton on December 26 and January 2, 1776.

The banquet at which the President and Mrs. Coolidge were the honor guests was arranged by the Trenton Historical society as the concluding event in celebration of New Jersey's sesqui-centennial.

Former Governor Edwin C. Stokes, was toastmaster and the speakers, in addition to the president, included Governor A Harry Moore and Mayor F. W Donnelly of this city.

Escorted by detachments from the army the navy, and the marines, the militia of New Jersey with its tanks and guns and cavalry today paraded through flag-decked streets of this old colonial town in commemoration of the battles of Trenton and the crossing of the Delaware on Christmas night in 1776.

Led by Governor Moore and reviewed by governors and representatives of many of the 13 original states, and by high military and naval officers. The marchers paused at the Trenton battle monument, a few blocks off the Main street while representatives of the American Legion and of the British War veterans placed a citizens' wreath at the base of the marker.

Earlier in the day state dignitaries visited Washington crossing where the ice-studded river lolled along much as it is represented in the famous painting of the night at the end of 1776 when Washington and his shivering troops put across to rout the Hessians at Trenton and turn the tide of the revolution.

Just before noon, a tablet was unveiled at the state house by the New Jersey Society Sons of the American Revolution in commemoration of the five residents of New Jersey, who were signers of the Declaration of Independence and of the four Jerseymen who wrote their names beneath the draft of the United States constitution.

Governor Moore was host at noon to visiting governors and officials and immediately thereafter the troops began their two hour march.

In addition to New Jersey officials, members of the house of assembly and the senate, the party which viewed the procession from the stand on the state house plaza, included: United States Senators Edge and Edwards; Representative Charles A. Eaton; Governor Trumbull, Connecticut; Governor Robinson, Delaware; General Albert L. Cox, representing the governor of North Carolina; Brigadier General Cole, Rhode Island; Brigadier General Beary, Pennsylvania; Brigadier General Hugh A. Drum, U. S. A., commanding the Second Corps area; Major General Hammond, U. S. A.; Admiral Magruder, U. S. N., Mayor Kendrick, Philadelphia.

Governor Moore had the first troop, Philadelphia City Cavalary for his escort and detachments of the New Jersey naval militia, the old guard of the city of New York, the State Fencibles of Philadelphia, and the Morris Guards, of Atalntic City had places in the procession as did the citizens with fife and drum as the "Spirit of '76."

ABSTRACT OF ADDRESS BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 29—(AP)—President Coolidge tonight affirmed his faith in America as being "strong enough and brave enough" to take "independent action" to resist "another domination of the world by the military spirit."

Speaking at the sesqui-centennial celebration of Washington's crossing of the Delaware, the president painted a word picture of the hardships and privations endured by the Continental Army on that cold, snowy night and said, if necessary, the America of today must undergo similar sacrifices.

"Washington and the patriots of his day wanted peace," he said. "We want peace. They found it necessary to make great sacrifices in order to secure it We cannot escape the corresponding sacrifices.

"The world has been striving to advance in this direction, to discard the old theory of relying entirely on force and to adopt the method of relying more on reason. We are in danger of slipping back into the old formula. The habit and tradition of ages call us in that direction.

"We cannot establish the new principle unless we are willing to make some sacrifices, unless we are willing to put some courage into our convictions."

While "moral disarmament" is necessary to obtain definite and permanent peace in the world, the president asserted that the attainment of such an object, in view of the present mentality of mankind, would greatly and necessarily be aided by international treaties limiting the "use and size" of armaments. Just because of the fears, jealousies and other human failings of nations, he continued, it is well for them to take counsel together as to try and "discard the old theory of relying entirely on force and to adopt the method of relying more on reason."

"I do not believe we can advance the policy of peace by a return to the policy of competitive armaments," he asserted. "While I favor an adequate army and navy, I am opposed to any effort to militarize this nation. When that method has been worked out to its logical consequences the result has always been a complete failure. We can render no better service to humanity than to put forth all our influence to prevent the world from slipping back into the grasp of that ravaging system. Truth and faith and justice have a power of their own in which we are justified in placing a very large reliance."

"In nations, individuals have their counterpart. As we can expect some help from domestic laws, so we can expect some help from international covenants. While each represents the best that humanity can do at this time, neither in themselves are sufficient. As it is necessary to change the heart of the individual, so it is necessary to change the heart of nations. This has often been referred to as moral disarmament. The mistake that is being made in its application lies in the fact that it does not come first."

Referring to the Christmas season, the president said that "all humanity has laid aside the burdens of the day that they might rejoice in glad tidings of 'Peace on earth, good will toward men,'" and added that if the world could achieve complete moral disarmament it would have "little need of armaments and no need at all for international treaties limiting their use and size."

The president said the world needs a "complete change of heart" and at present "altogether too much of international relationship is based on fear."

"Nations rejoice in the fact that they have courage to fight each other," he continued "When will the time come that they have courage to trust each other?"

Mr. Coolidge said he believed a wider understanding of the spirit of mutual service is growing in the world but that this "does not run counter to the theory of independence." In the days of Washington, the president asserted, the colonies determined to resist but Americans "did not then and do not now fail to recognize that they are a part of the civilized world, and that their duty is not only to themselves but to others pro tanto."

"But they were determined then and are determined now to be the masters of their own destiny and the judges of their own conduct," he added. "They knew, and we ought to know, that unless we can be Americans we can not be anything. Unless we look after ourselves we cannot look after anybody else. The obligations of civilization are reciprocal. The same consideration that we owe to others they owe to us."

Discussing America's internal development the president said "our people ought to desire to be prosperous, but it ought not to be their main desire." The proper development of "national character" in its citizens should be the main care of Americans, he asserted.

Only the "influence of religion and education" in the opinion of President Coolidge could give American citizens a full sense of their civic duties and give American political institutions their full force by allowing intelligent and direct intervention of the people.

"By religion I do not mean," he continued "either fanaticism or bigotry: by education I do not mean the cant of the schools; but a broad and tolerant faith, loving they neighbor as thyself, and a training and experience that enables the human mind to see into the heart of things."

PRINCE CAROL FLED PARIS TO ESCAPE NEWSPAPERMEN

PARIS, Dec. 29—(AP)—Prince Carol of Rumania will remain away from Paris until the newspapermen have made up their minds that he is entitled to the privacy of a common individual. This was the information vouchsafed today at the villa in the Paris suburb of Neuilly, where as "Mister Caraiman," the prince has been living since the issuance of the decree. January 4, 1926, depriving him of his dynastic rights.

The butler at the establishment added: "Mr. Caraiman has been gone since Christmas eve. When he will return I do not know."

The house was dark and the French detectives who had been prominently watching over the Rumanian prince were not there. This was commented on as corroborating Carol's disappearance. His absence from the villa became known several days ago, giving rise to the suggestion that he had gone to the homeland to reclaim his throne rights. This has never been definitely established, and while he has been variously reported at Cannes and other French resorts, his exact whereabouts is still shrouded in mystery.

GASTON B. MEANS HAS SIGNED A PAUPER'S OATH

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 29—(AP)—Gaston B. Means today signed a pauper's oath to swear off a $10,000 fine and began serving at the federal penitentiary 30 days additional time on his sentence of two years for conspiracy, to violate the national prohibition act.

Means, was convicted with the late Thomas B. Felder in a bribery case involving federal officials He is serving the extra thirty days in lieu of the $10,000 fine and will appear January 27 before a federal commissioner to swear off the fine. Means' sentence in the bribery case expired today.

SOUTH CAROLINA FARMER BUILT OWN FUNERAL PYRE

SPARTANSBURG, S. C., Dec. 29—(AP)—With his feet wired to a small pine tree and the lower part of his body burned to a crisp, the body of Aubrey Lancaster, 56, prominent farmer, was found in Cleveland park here today. Police investigation indicated Lancaster had secured himself to the foot of the tree after building his funeral pyre saturated with kerosene and ignited it.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

TOKYO, Dec. 29—(AP)—Japan's naval maneuvres to take place next summer off the east coast, are expected to be the most elaborate in the history of the fleet Five million yen for the event is provided in the navy's budget. Several hundred warships will participate.

LININGRAD, Russia, Dec. 29—(AP)—Seven Russian youths were sentenced by the provincial court to be shot for an attack on a young factory girl in a public park here. Ten others, who participated in the act, were sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from one to ten years.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 29—(AP)—The Turkish government, as part of its modernizing campaign, intends to open nation wide public schools for women where it is estimated 95 per cent. of women illiterates will receive compulsory instruction in their A B C's and in hygiene. Even thousands of the nomad women of the eastern provinces must attend the schools.

ROME, Dec. 29—(AP)—Women are excluded from the ranks of teachers of literature, history and philosophy in secondary and college preparatory schools by order of the ministry of public instruction. The step was taken, the ministry explains, to check the invasion of the schools by women, as this is felt is hurtful to the rising generation of young men.

$30,000,000 GRAFT A YEAR IN THE CHICAGO DISTRICT

CHICAGO, Dec. 29—(AP)—Graft estimated at $30,000,000 a year in the Chicago district comprising the 19 northernmost countries of Illinois, was remarked upon as "a force to be reckoned with in politics" by Edwin A. Olson, federal district attorney, in reporting to Washington today upon his four years of office soon to end.

The Volstead act and the possibilities of enforcing it were dilated upon with the final observation that "the manufacture and sale of liquor as a business can be stopped in this district whenever the government receives proper cooperation from local law enforcement officials."

The permanent injunction he characterized as prohibition's sharpest weapon and said that while there are only three federal judges in the district to handle all litigation, there are in Chicago 15 times that many equally capable of directing padlockings.

Mr. Olson said his office had convicted more than 6,000 bootleggers in the past four years, a larger number than any other prosecuting office in the country, and had set another record in the number of places padlocked by injunction for one year.

The district attorney disclaimed that prohibition had made officials turnecrooked but had opened up new sources of revenue for the same grafting officials who always protected gambling, prostitution, dope peddling, thievery and other forms of crime.

"It has been estimated that the graft collected from booze, vice and crime in this district amounts to the princely sum of $30,000,000 a year," he said.

"The influence of $30,000,000 of yearly graft money is a force to be reckoned with in politics. It reaches into high places. It finances campaigns. It will stop at nothing to prevent the prosecution and punishment of its beneficiaries or to discredit and destroy any honest public official who refuses to touch its dirty money or to listen to its seductive offers of political advancement."

WARNS AGAINST SEATING OF SENATOR FRANK SMITH

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (AP)—From three sides the tangled skein of Illinois junior senatorship was hauled back into the political calcium today.

Edward F. Dunne, former governor of Illinois and a democrat, cautioned members of his party in the senate that if they voted not to seat Frank L. Smith, they would deal a severe blow to the doctrine of states rights and might jeopardize the status of their own colleagues from southern states.

Colonel Smith, who has not talked for publication since Governor Len Small appointed him a fortnight ago, to succeed the late Senator William B. McKinley, was understood to have conferred here with Senator Charles S. Deneen, senior senator from Illinois.

Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona made it known that he had telegraphed Governor Small asking information on the statement with which Small announced Smith's interim appointment, indicating that if Small based the appointment on Smith's previous election to succeed McKinley, senate democrats would take the position that the same arguments could be invoked against seating Smith for the short term as will be brought to bear against his admission for his elective term.

Smith and Deneen declined to comment on reports of their conference, and Smith spokesmen said no developments could be looked for, in spite of the inference in some quarters that Deneen had induced Smith not to present his credentials at the short session.

POLICE OF LOWELL, MASS., NOT RECEIVING PAY

LOWELL, Mass., Dec. 29—(AP)—Tomorrow is pay day for Lowell city employees, but it won't anything to 225 members of the policement who haven't received any pay for their services since December 2

The finance commission at that time refused to approve the department payrolls calling for an advance of $1 a day for all patrolmen and officers below the rank of captain. The situation was further complicated today when counsel for the policemen announced that no effort would be made to obtain writ of mandamus to compel the city to pay the higher scale but that a civil suit probably would be relied upon instead. Meanwhile, the policemen can't even get their back pay.

2,000 GAL. A DAY STILL WAS SEIZED IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Dec. 29—(AP)—Seizure of a still with a capacity of 2,000 gallons a day, quantities of chloroform, benzine, and alcohol and the arrest of Norman Klein, chemist, and Abe Brown, merchant, both of New York, brought from the police today the statement that they believe they have uncovered one of the principal sources of illicit liquor.

The still, found hidden in a suburb, was seized by officers of the preventive service of the federal customs and excise departments. Klein and Brown were held in bail on $1,500 each for trial January 5. They are charged with possession of an illicit still.

Nashville is Being Devastated by Flood

Between 4,000 and 5,000 Persons Have Been Driven From Their Homes—No Outbound Train Service.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 29—(AP)—The Cumberland river, sweeping through Nashville in the most devastating flood in the city's history, spread over a wider territory today, forcing additional hundreds to join the several thousand homeless who had fled from the surging waters.

The river rising one-tenth of a foot an hour, had reached 55 feet late today, within three-tenths of a foot of the record stage of 55.3 feet in 1882.

Three hundred families were moved from their homes today, J. W. Smith, chief of police, said.

The police department estimated that 250 city blocks were affected by the backwaters. Between 4,000 and 5,000 persons have been driven from their homes principally in north and East Nashville.

Because of hurried precautions taken, Chief Smith said he did not believe there would be any loss of life.

Simultaneously with the removal of the flood sufferers from their water sogged homes, relief agencies began functioning. The county charities commission, swamped with applications for food and clothing, today appealed for $10,000 additional relief funds.

Train service out of here was virtually at a standstill.

Street car and vehicular traffic in the city was hampered, the latter by the closing of two of the three bridges over the river here.

No estimate has been made of the probable property damage in the city, and none can be closed approximated until the waters have receded.

Improvement in the southern flood situation was noted tonight after today's respite from rain, except in Tennessee and in certain localities in Mississippi.

Conditions in the Chattanooga vicinity along the Tennessee became more acute tonight as inhabitants awaited the flood crest.

In western Kentucky also the rise in the Cumberland had brought flood waters down upon Eddyville, and Kuttawa. Lowlands between Monticello and burnside in southern Kentucky were 20 feet under water.

Overflow waters of the Tombigbee river in Mississippi, near Columbus and Aberdeen, were withdrawing tonight. A Columbus report said that damage to highways, railroads and other properties would total hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Three unidentified persons drowned near Bentonia Miss. today when their car overturned in flood waters.

REFUSED TO COMMENT ON MEXICO CITY ADVICES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP)—Administration officials refused to comment today on Mexico City advices that a government ruling modifying application of oil laws and regulations to American and other foreign companies has been handed down on the eve of the effective date of the new laws, Jan. 1, next.

No report of such modification has been received from the embassy in Mexico City, it was said. In the absence of a complete copy of such a ruling, as described in press advices, officials said they were unable to determine its significance in relation to the action required by the new laws on the part of foreign oil companies.

The companies are considering for themselves whether to make application for oil concessions in lieu of their present title or leases and the state department has kept itself strictly aloof from negotiations between representatives of the companies and the Mexican government in that regard.

If the action announced today in Mexico City is acceptable to American oil interests, generally and they decide to apply for oil concessions the time when a concrete case if violation of American rights would arise and form the basis of further diplomatic correspondence might be considerably deferred.

THEATRE OWNERS SUED BY WOMAN WHO FELL

WATERBURY, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Isadore Hoffman of Ansonia and Barney Hoffman, of New Haven, owners of a chain of theatres in Connecticut including the Strand in this city, were named defendants in a $1,500 damage suit filed with the clerk of the superior court here today. Mrs. Raffaela Altieri, of this city is the plaintiff in the action which is the result of a fall sustained by the plaintiff in the Strand on January 16.

Mrs. Altieri claims that she entered the theatre at 8.30 o'clock in the evening and in taking her seat was forced to descend a flight of stairs in the dark. In doing so she fell and sustained injuries to one of her legs and to her back.

INVESTIGATING PRESENCE OF POISON IN BOTTLE SODA

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Police are investigating the presence of poison in a bottle of soda water which Mrs. Angelina Dichello, of Pine street, drank this afternoon shortly before she became violently ill. Officials of the company which had manufactured the drink were questioned by the assistent city attorney, but were unable to account for the poison in the soda water.

Mrs. Dichello was taken to the Grace hospital where it was said her condition was not serious. At the time she drank the soda her husband drank another manufactured by the same company, without any ill effect.

CAVE HALF MILE DEEP AND SOME 26 MILES LONG

MOSCOW, Russia, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A cave 26 miles long and half a mile deep, with a chain of grottoes of extraordinary beauty and wide corridors hung with mammoth icicles, has been discovered near the town of Kungur, province of Perm, the Ural Mountains. A big underground river is believed to have once flowed at the bottom of the cave.

Professor Khlebnikov brought word to Moscow of the wonderful geological construction of this vast cave. In the opinion of geologists the eternal ice covering its walls was probably formed during the third inter-glacial period, 750,000 years ago, when all of northern Russia and Europe were enveloped in ice.

Wilbur Safeguards Secrets of the Navy

Opines That the "Japanese Scare" is Now Put Forth to Promote a New Naval Shipbuilding Policy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur today flatly turned down a request by members of the house naval committee for a copy, to be kept in confidence, of the report of possible dangers in the Pacific ocean area, made several years ago by Admiral Gleaves, while in command of the Asiatic fleet.

Representative McClintic of Oklahoma, a democratic member, said Chairman Butler at his suggestion made the request on the day of acquittal of Albert B. Fall, former interior secretary and Edward L. Doheny, the millionaire oilman, on a charge of conspiracy in the leasing of naval oil lands, with which was linked the construction of storage in Hawaii.

During the trial defense counsel stressed the report as one of the reasons prompting the leasing of the Elk Hills reserves in California to Doheny, and although Secretary Wilbur at the time refused to make the report public, frequent reference was made to the document as conveying a warning of a grave national emergency in the Pacific.

McClintic, however, intimated the navy department was unwilling to give out the report for fear it would not substantiate its oil leasing policy.

"I was advised some time ago," he asserted in a statement, "a high ranking officer in the navy that these so-called Japanese reports contained no information which would show a belligerent attitude on the part of Japan, and that the department could not afford to allow any member of congress to see these reports for the reason they would show that the secret policy of the navy with respect to the oil leases and the building of tanks was not justified."

He said in his opinion the "Japanese scare" is now put forth to promote a new naval shipbuilding policy.

"It will be remembered that this report," he continued, "has been made the excuse for the secrecy in disposing of our naval reserve oil lands and the construction of the oil tanks in Hawaii. It also will be remembered that one of the jurors gave out a statement in which the Japanese scare and this report were given as a justifiable reason for the verdict which exonerated them from any wrongdoning."

McClintic contended the naval committee was charged with the responsibility of maintaining the navy and should be informed on reports "relative to the attitude of other nations."

Secretary Wilbur said the request for the Gleaves report came from McClintic and not the committee, but added that even if the committee should so request it also would be refused. He, however, informed McClintic of his willingness to appear before the committee for questioning on the document.

In his statement McClintic also said that "certain officers in the navy purposely deceived the American public" in reports on airplane bombing tests on the battleship Washington, but he asserted he was ready to vote for the ten new cruisers proposed in the Butler bill now pending "provided it can be shown that Japan assumed a belligerent attitude "when the Gleaves report was made."

MAYOR'S NAME LINKED WITH PURCHASE OF LIQUOR

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Mayor Thomas Robbins, of Norwalk sat in the criminal superior court this afternoon and repeatedly heard his name linked with testimony offered by two youths who purchased liquor in Norwalk because they "wished to see the town cleaned up." The liquor purchased was later turned over to Mayor Robbins to be used as evidence against the sellers when impending arrests had been made.

Mayor Robbins has been subpoenaed by defense counsel for Louis Novak, 44, of Norwalk, who is facing Judge Alfred C. Baldwin and jury in the court in trial or six charges of violation of the liquor laws lodged against him. Novak is one of 11 arrested in November by state police armed with bench warrants issued by States Attorney William H. Comley on information secured by a "group of citizens who had the welfare of Norwalk at heart."

The name of Reuben Robbins, son of the mayor, was also linked with the testimony of the two witnesses, who were put through a severe cross examination. The younger Robbins is a state witness.

CHICAGO HOLD-UP MAN ORDERED SHOT AT SIGHT

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A hold-up man whose methods of pouncing on unescorted women at night has gained the soubriquet of "the Cat," today was ordered shot on sight by Chief of Police Collins. The order was issued after six more women had been assailed last night an dthree of them resisted assault.

The "Cat" described as youthful and slight of build appears suddenly from a dark doorway or alley as an unescorted woman walks along a lonely street, pounces on his prey and scampers away after seizing any valuables he happens to fancy.

TWO BOYS DROWNED IN BLACKSTONE RIVER

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., Dec. 29—(AP)—Two boys were drowned and a third was rescued after they had broken through the ice while playing on the Blackstone river today. The victims were Armand Bellsle, 12 and Gerald Audette, 10, both of Central Falls.

Edward Patenaude, 10, also plunged into the water when the ice broke, but he clung to the ice and was hauled to safety by Marcel Marcotte, 13. The body of the Bellsle boy was recovered late today.

W. M. FOSTER DISAPPEARED FROM GARDEN CITY, L. I.

WINCHESTER, Mass., Dec. 29—(AP)—Winthrop M. Foster, whose supposed suicide was reported in Providence, R. I., today with the docking of the steamer Lexington, disappeared yesterday from Garden City, L. I., where he had gone for a holiday visit with his wife and son. Mrs. Foster reported her husband's disappearance to the New York police who notified the authorities here. Foster was 36 years old and had been employed for several years as a traveling salesman.

SENATOR BORAH CALLS FOR CAUTION IN NICARAGUA

Warns That the United States Should Guard Against Being Pushed Into Intervention—Asserts That We Had Better Err on the Side of Tolerance Than on the Side of Intolerance—Favors Withdrawing Forces From Nicaragua as Soon as It Can Be Ascertained That Americans Are Reasonably Safe.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Warning that the United States should guard against being tricked into intervention in Nicaragua was coupled today by Chairman Borah, of the senate foreign relations committee, with a statement expressing his apparent conviction that American efforts in that country now were being confined to the protection of American life and property.

His views, made public after a conference with Secretary Kellogg, in which he went over reports from Rear Admiral Julian Latimer, in command of American forces in Nicaragua, encounter to those of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, who announced he would introduce a resolution in the senate calling for the withdrawal from Nicaragua of warships unless they were brought away voluntarily. A third senator to enter the lists, Senator Ransdell, democrat, Louisiana, asserted democratic support would be given the administration policy "in standing behind the Diaz government in Nicaragua."

Along with his own statement, in which he expressed the hope that the American forces would be taken from the Central American republic as soon as Americans were ascertained to be safe, Senator Borah gave out a telegram from Alvaro Obregon, former president of Mexico. Obregon approved the Borah stand on Latin-American subjects and spoke of "violence inflicted against the sovereignty and dignity of the Latin-American countries with the sole purpose of protecting, as has been stated, private rights of individuals and American enterprises, especially at this time when moral principles of right and justice have been apparently shipwrecked under the weight and the influence of the big moneyed interests and at a time when brutal force seems to be trying to rule the world."

Senator Borah's statement said that as he understood it "the administration is confining its efforts solely to the protection of American citizens and property, but there is no intention of intervening in the affairs of Nicaragua."

"I realize," he said, "it is a difficult and delicate matter to handle. But we should be vigilant against being tricked into intervention. The Central and South American countries have already shown their deep interest in what is going on. We had better err on the side of tolerance than on the side of intolerance.

"Naturally, we are interested in protecting our own people. But we should also bear in mind that to do anything more than is necessary to protect them is wholly unjustifiable. Those people have their own way of doing things and not only this government but American citizens who go into those countries will have to take that into consideration. I am in favor of withdrawing our forces from Nicaragua just as soon as it can be ascertained that Americans are reasonably safe."

MEX. NEW OIL REGULATIONS BECOME EFFECTIVE JAN. 1

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 29—(AP)—President Calles tonight declined to grant an extension of time on the new oil regulations which come into effect January 1. He made known his refusal in a dispatch to the New York headquarters of various oil companies operating in Mexico, several of these companies having applied to the government for such extension.

The oil companies explained that they were unable safely to accept the law as it stands because it does not protect properties acquired before 1917.

The president's refusal has also disrupted the hopes of the Mexican oil companies, which had presented an application similar to that of the foreign companies. Their request for an extension was, based on the plea that it would permit time for amendments of the law specifically safeguarding properties acquired before 1917.

SEIZURE OF SMUGGLED JEWELS VALUED AT $100,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—Seizing set and unset jewels valued at $100,000, customs agents and detectives arrested Gerardo Manrique today in an elaborate apartment in West 77th St. and after questioning him arrested Pedro Mandero in an equally luxurious apartment in West 65th street, on a charge of smuggling.

Both prisoners were said by police to be sons of wealthy citizens of Ecuador. They arrived her four days ago as students. Both have been here about two years and have made three trips during that time between Ecuador and this country.

Police asserted the men realized between 100 and 200 per cent profit on sales of smuggled jewelry. All of the seized stones were found in Manrique's suite, in a dresser drawer.

TOO MUCH DRINKING OF LIQUOR CAUSE OF DEATHS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP)—Too rapid drinking of present day liquor and too much of it at one time is the principal cause of the large number of holiday alcoholic fatalities in the opinion of government chemists who are busy devising new adulterants to put in industrial alcohol that may get into bootleg channels.

James M. Doran, chief of the prohibition units chemists, today scouted the possibility that the wood alcohol which is used to denature the industrial product had caused any of the numerous recent deaths among drinkers.

TRAGEDY FOLLOWED SINKING OF STEAMSHIP ASTORIA

BERLIN, Dec. 29—(AP)—The sinking of the steamship Astoria—nationality not given—off Kavarna, Rumania, in the Black Sea, with the loss of 32 passengers and crew, is reported in a Bucharest dispatch to the "Lokal Anzieger."

The only passenger to reach shore was a teacher from Constantinople, but when he learned that his wife, three children and mother were dead, he shot and killed himself.

The Bucharest dispatch makes no mention of the nationality of the passengers.

BOUNTY OF $1 FOR EVERY GOSHAWK KILLED IN CONN.

HARTFORD, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A bounty of $1 for every goshawk killed in Connecticut prior to April 1, 1927, will be paid by the state board of fisheries and game, it was announced in a circular letter just released by that board. The bounty is offered, the letter reads, because "the influx of goshawks to this state has been so unprecedented" and "their predilection for game birds, and particularly the ruffed grouse, is so obvious.

HALE AND HEALTHY ON 100TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

BETHEL, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Adeline B. Clapp, Elmwood district, today celebrates her 100th birthday anniversary, in her home, a short distance from the house in which she was born. Mrs. Clapp, who is still hale and hearty despite her advanced age, greeted friends who called to pay their respects. She is the mother of two children. Her husband died 40 years ago.

PEACE TREATY BETWEEN ITALY AND GERMANY SIGNED

ROME, Dec. 29—(AP)—Premier Mussolini and Baron Von Neurath, the German ambassador to Italy, today signed at the foreign office a treaty of amity and arbitration, whereby Italy and Germany agree to settle peaceably disputes which may arise between the two nations in the next decade.

The treaty, which was drawn up in the course of conversations at Geneva, contains 16 articles binding the two nations to submit to conciliatory procedure any controversies which cannot be solved through ordinary diplomatic channels. Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, and Dr Gaus represented Germany, and Signor Scialoia and Signor Grandi, under-secretary for foreign affairs, were spokesmen for Italy when the treaty was negotiated.

Questions in connection with the rights and obligations of either nation as a member of the league of nations, or having to do with the Locarno pact are not affected by the new agreement, which, moreover, does not in any way limit the competence of the attributions of the league of nations.

A permanent conciliation committee of five members will be created to study controversial questions brought up by one or both parties. Italy and Germany will each appoint one member and one substitute of this committee, and the two nations will jointly appoint three members and three substitutes none of whom may be a citizen of either country.

The treaty does not apply to disputes over facts existing precedent to its signature, those covered by other Italo-German conventions, or to questions within the competence of either nation through existing mutual treaties or international law.

MAY DISMISS CHARGE IN THE M'PHERSON CASE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29—(AP)—Dismissal of conspiracy charges against Aime Semple McPherson, evangelist, her former radio engineer, Kenneth G. Ormiston, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff is imminent, District Attorney Asa Keyes announced tonight at the eve of a new grand jury investigation into the evangelist's mysterious disappearance.

Keyes declared the charges of conspiring to obstruct justice and subornperjury probably would be dropped due "to the collapse of testimony of the principal witness" Mrs. Wiseman. This witness, who had confessed perpetrating a "Miss X" hoax in the case, the district attorney tonight characterized as a "turn-coat" and "perjurer" saying she had told a "different story every day."

"The McPherson case is now in such a muddled state that a conviction is almost impossible and the charges probably will be withdrawn," Keyes said. He was unable to say when such a move would be taken.

Roland Rich Woolley, formerly the personal attorney of Mrs. McPherson, and Mrs. Wiseman, will be taken before the county grand jury tomorrow, the prosecutor said.

TALK OF PADLOCKING OFFENSIVE THEATRES

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—Padlocking of theatres that show salicious plays was seen as a possibility of District Attorney Banton today in discussing Mayor Walker's conference with producers.

He expressed the opinion, however, that the citizens' play jury should be given further trial before abolishing it in favor of political censorship.

The mayor's only comment to newspapermen yesterday when he was asked if he believed the play jury a fiat failure was "figure it out for yourself." This was just after he had concluded a conference with producers in which he had said political censorship was inevitable unless the theatrical men themselves immediately purged the stage of immorality. The producers agreed to do so.

"The play jury," Mr. Banton said today, "is the best thing we have had so far, but it can be improved upon. I quite agree with Mayor Walker that if the managers do not prevent staging of salicious shows we will likely get political censorship which may carry with it the right of the censor to padlock the theatre where a salicious show is staged."

WATER DOES $5,000 DAMAGE TO WILLIMANTIC STORE

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 29.—An inspection of the stock in the Barbier-Lamoureux company clothing store Wednesday showed that damage estimated at $5,000 had been done to the goods by water which poured through a badly leaking roof during the rain storm late Tuesday afternoon. When accumulated snow on a flat section of the roof in the rear of the building became weighted down by the rain the roof sagged and broke through a part of the ceiling. Cyril A. Lamoureux and Albert J. Piche worked for hours removing clothing and furnishings to dry spots and covered the floor with every available pan that could be found. Due to the heavy coating of ice the roof could not be cleared. Water also leaked into the show windows, damaging stock on display. As the rear of the building the land is higher than the foundation and water poured in volumes into the store and into the bulkhead. There was over a foot of water in the boiler room Wednesday morning. Mr. Lamoureux entered a complaint to Chief Henry J. Kelley, inspector of buildings and the latter will take the matter up with the owners. It is understood that the [illegible] sold by Dennis Shea to [illegible] Judge James Shea [illegible] owned by the latter's wife [illegible] Providence.

Arthur Pelletier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Pelletier of Northampton, Mass., and Miss Florence Doucette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zepherin Doucette of 142 Quercus avenue were married in St. Mary's church at seven o'clock Wednesday morning. Rev. H. J. Belec officiated. They were attended by Miss Diana Roucette, sister of the brode and Joseph Therrien of this city. A nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Belec. The wedding reception and breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents with relatives and friends in attendance from Lowell, Mass., Hartford and this city. Mr. and Mrs. Pelletier will make their home at 142 Quercus avenue upon their return from a honeymoon journey later next month. The groom is a member of Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard and he has played on the athletic teams representing the company. The bride is well known among the younger people of the city.

The perfect attendance record for the Natchaug grammar school shows a list of 230 pupils who kept a clean slate during the entire fall term which closed last Thursday. The record was issued Tuesday by Principal Pamea L. Harroun.

This city was drying out Wednesday after one of the worst storms ever experienced here insofar as traveling conditions were concerned. Tuesday night was no time for nervous people to start out for a joy ride or any other kind of a ride. Driving was like riding on a scenic railway, every corner and grade meant a new thrill. It is evident, however, that people are becoming experts at handling automobiles as no accidents of any consequence happened and none were reported at police headquarters. The city street department encountered no end of trouble with the gutters clogged from the recent snow. Many sections of streets were flooded and wet feet on the part of unprepared pedestrians became a common thing. For the first time the service of the New England Transportation company was disrupted. Two of the busses were stalled between here and Hartford and, at eight o'clock it was decided to suspend operations until Wednesday morning. The last bus to leave the Railroad street terminal here was at 2:30 p. m. Late schedules prevailed on the short haul from this city to Coventry the 5:30 p. m. bus carrying passengers to Perkins' Corner, three miles from here, being nearly one hour late. On the Norwich-Willimantic branch of the Connecticut company trolley system the trips were close to one hour late.

The Windham evening school sessions will be resumed at Windham high school Tuesday evening, January 4, it was announced Wednesday by Laurence King, evening school principal. The usual classes in sewing, cooking, beginners stenography, typewriting, bookkeeping and grammar school subjects will be resumed. Provided there is a sufficient number interested a new class in advanced stenography will be opened. An increased registration in all classes is expected for the remainder of the evening school year.

Charles William Thompson, 70, a seafarer for a quarter of a century and well known in this city where he often visited died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John P. Smith in Palmer, Mass., shortly after midnight Wednesday morning. His illness had been brief. Mr. Thompson had been making his home with his son, Lloyd S. Thompson, in Springfield, Mass., for the past four years. He was a holiday guest of his daughter when overtaken by illness. He was born in Norwich, January 27, 1856, a son of George M. and Ann Elizabeth Tipton Thompson. As a boy he came with his parents to reside in Hampton and when 17 years of age he followed in his father's footsteps as a naval engineer. During 35 years of sea life he made many voyages which took him to all parts of the world. Later he returned to live in Hampton, for five years and then located in Mansfield Depot where for 20 years he was foreman at the McCollum pipe organ plant. When he became an invalid some four years ago he went to live with his son. In addition to his son and daughter mentioned he also leaves three sisters, Mrs. John S. Scott and Miss Dora Thompson of Hampton, Mrs. Albert L. Mills of Hampton and this city, two brothers, George M. Thompson of Hampton and E. Burnham Thompson of Mansfield Depot and ten grandchildren.

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY GRAND LIST IN EXCESS OF $7,000,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 29.—For the first time in its history Killingly's grand list, just completed from tax lists as of Oct. 1 last, is in excess of $7,000,000. The exact figures are $7,141,981.

Figures from the new grand list given out Wednesday afternoon by A. M. Thompson of the board of assessors include the following: 30 mills of an assessed valuation of $1,461,700; 1,496 automobiles valued at $465,590; 1594 dwellings valued at $2,467,725; 1362 barns, sheds, etc., valued at $372,230; 2235 building lots valued at $744,255; 149 stocks of merchandise valued at $517,935; 26,482 acres of land valued at $240,080; 283 horses valued at $13,940; 866 cows valued at $31,335; ten per cent additions, $25,406.

Of interest is the fact that the number of cows owned in the town has increased considerably over the number shown in the grand list completed a year ago.

The funeral of Miss Annette Page was held from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Page, Maple street, Wednesday morning with funeral services at St. James' church at 9:30. Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. There were many relatives and friends in attendance. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Ernest LaBelle, Joseph Berthiaume, Sheldon Ouellette and Norman Warner. There were numerous beautiful floral remembrances. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A very happy affair Monday evening at the Dayville inn was the annual banquet and election of officers of the Dayville Men's club band. Twenty-six members were in attendance. A splendid turkey dinner arranged by Manager Walter Murphy was served.

Following the banquet the following officers were elected: President, N. Lorne Greig; vice president, Orrin Alvord; secretary-treasurer, Herman Steingbough; leader, Harry Burdick; assistant leader, John Johnson; chaplain, Rev. William Swainson.

Herman Steingbough gave an interesting report of the finances of the club and the work done during the past year. He spoke of the credit due Mr. Burdick for his untiring effort of taking a group of untrained musicians and making a band of which Dayville is proud. Various members spoke during the evening and there was a period of singing. The affair was voted one of the most enjoyable of the year in Dayville.

The residue of the snowstorms, sleet storms and rainstorms of December, following Tuesday night's downpour, left the highways and streets of this town in a bedraggled condition Wednesday. Ruts, slush, running water, ice and dirt entered into the making of a combination that was trying on anyone who tried to get about at all, no matter by what means. There was no remedy for this. Comparatively high temperature during Wednesday served to create thawing conditions that helped improve conditions, but in no great degree. Those who have to go about making deliveries of one kind or another were delayed with their work.

There is an inclination among business men here and in other communities up and down the line to seek from the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company a somewhat closer running to schedule time than the boat train appears to have been able to maintain since it was made a mixed train. It is now frequently subject to delay both mornings, north-bound; and evenings, south-bound. The passenger business of this train is so meagre that little can be said on that account, but delay of the arrival here of the morning mail, the first of the day and one of the most important to business and manufacturing interests is quite another thing. Late arrival of the train at night is not such a serious inconvenience in this respect, if any at all, for the postoffice closes regularly before this train is due here and there would be no distribution of this mail until morning in any event.

A recent little advertisement of chestnut poles for sale, the mention appearing in this column, caused more than passing interest among many people. They were prompt to ask the question, "Where do the poles come from, since every chestnut tree for many miles around was killed by the chestnut blight years ago?"

It appears that the poles now being offered for sale are salvaged from forest land where gaunt, dead chestnuts have continued to stand after their life had been sapped away. These dead trees are cut down and used either for poles or chestnut cord wood, as their size and condition warrants. There are no live chestnut trees in this territory, but a considerable supply of chestnut poles and cord wood is obtained as mentioned. From the stumps of many of the old chestnuts sprouts have been springing up for several years and some of these now reach to a height of a dozen feet or more. From one of these, last fall, several chestnut burrs were picked, giving promise of the return of the fine chestnut trees and their delicious nuts in future years.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Danielson Trust company this week a regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent was declared and an extra dividend of one per cent. Treasurer Clifford H. Starkweather said Wednesday afternoon that the bank has had an exceptionally satisfactory six months of business and that over and above its dividends to stockholders has had a substantial sum to its surplus accounts. The past six months has witnessed the completion and occupancy of the enlarged quarters of this bank, which now has as convenient and well appointed a banking home as any of the eastern Connecticut banks.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood a funeral service for Mrs. Benjamin Clark was conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. The bearers were Everett Shepard and Charles Shepard, Mrs. Clark's brothers, of Providence, Frank Johnson of Pawtucket and Ralph Wells, her son-in-law, of Riverside, L. I.

When the sun went down like a ball of fire on the western horizon Wednesday afternoon, weather prophets who just delight in forecasting said that this ought to be a real hot day, seeing that about every other kind has visited this section during the month now drawing to its close.

The Danielson Trust company will be open from 6 to 8 Friday evening to receive deposits.—adv.

This afternoon the Roundabout club is to meet with Mrs. Walter Anderson.

Miss Lucile E. Downs is spending the vacation period at her home in Goodyear, having completed her first term teaching in the Dedham, Mass., high school.

Basketball, town hall tonight, Danielson vs. Stafford Springs.—adv.

The winter issue of the telephone directory was being distributed Wednesday to subscribers in the Danielson division.

Walter G. Bruce, lecturer-elect of Killingly grange, has outlined and is now working on the details of a fine program for meetings during 1927.

A church supper is to be a feature of the New Year's observance at Goodyear. At a recent special meeting of the Woman's club of that place at the home of Mrs. George Fairchild, details for the affair were considered.

A number of drivers who have ventured out without chains on their cars the past few days became involved in minor accidents through skidding.

Motor coaches running over passenger routes in this territory during the rainstorm of Tuesday night had difficulty in getting up the hills after the rush of water had bared the underlying ice of the snow.

Killingly grange has a meeting scheduled for Monday evening, the first of the new year.

It is already forecasted that New Year's cards in considerable numbers will burden the mails, but not in the same degree as the Christmas cards.

Many of Danielson's people will watch the old year out and the new one in at dinner dances at which they have reservations.

Last Sunday at the church in Goodyear the text for Rev. Charles A. Downs' sermon was from Luke 2: 10, Fear not for behold I bring thee good tidings. Miss Lucile Downs was organist with violin accompaniment by Miss Irene Cobb.

Henry C. Benton of Springfield is here to spend the holiday with friends.

Manager Teddy Reeves of the Alumni basketball team that is to play the high school team has a fine array of graduate players to select from, forecasting the presentation of a very strong team.

NOANK

Rain Tuesday put a stop to the coasting on Store hill. Monday night about 75 were out. Sleds would go down to the end of the town dock. A young man hurt his ankle and cut his arm badly when he ran into the well at the bottom of the hill on Pearl street.

Willis Smith has returned to Staten Island, N. Y., after a visit in Noank.

Edward Mahoney is clipper on the steamer Alberback, at the shipyard.

Lloyd Frazer of the battleship Florida, which has been at Boston for 18 months while the ship is having an overhauling will soon leave that city for New York. He was given eight days' furlough to bid his friends in the village goodbye before the ship sails for Cuba for a long period. Mr. Frazer is chief gunner's mate and has worked his way up from seaman to that position. He has been in the navy 10 years and claims he will retire at the end of 20 years' service.

John Smith is home after a visit in New York with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenson rounded out 25 years of married life recently. The silver anniversary was noted by their friends and they received many pieces of silver from relatives and friends who called to wish them happiness. A large cake lettered with silver "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenson from friends," was received. Games were played and there were songs. Refreshments were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Jenson, Irene, Marion and Orla Jenson, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lunas and children, Mrs. Chris Jensen and daughter Orla and Julia Jenson and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitch.

William Banks was in East Lyme on Tuesday.

Lewis Main of New York is home on a short visit.

Miss Louise Rose of Westerly is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sisson.

Coast Guard Boat No. 256 has been put on the north ways for repairs and painting.

George Ashly is confined to his home by illness.

Miss Evelyn Glover who has arrived from Brazil, South America, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Eccleston for a few days. The return trip is to be made on steamer American Legion.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goodrow have returned to their home in Norwich after visiting relatives in the village.

Miss Eleanor Tryon has entered the private hospital in New London for a minor operation.

Fred Philips has gone to Longmeadow, Mass., for a few days visit.

Thomas Carey has returned after a brief visit in Fall River, Mass.

Philathea class of Noank Baptist Sunday school met at the home of Miss Eloise Rose this week when reports for the year were read by the secretary. The officers elected are: President, Mrs. George Brown; vice president, Mrs. Wilhelmina McDonald; secretary, Mrs. Gertrude Porter; treasurer, Mrs. Julia Banning; social committee, Mrs. Clara Eldreigh, chairman, Miss Ada Mary Davis, Mrs. Bertha Ashcraft, Mrs. Helen Brown, Mrs. Gertrude Brown, Mrs. Arma Rathbun, entertainment committee, Mrs. Julia Banning, Miss Pearl Carson, Mrs. Mabel Irons, Miss Eloise Ross, sunshine committee, Miss Eleanor Scaplen, Miss Ada Davis, Miss Eunice Carpenter, Mrs. Wilhemia McDonald; assistant teacher, Miss Eloise Ross. After the meeting refreshments were served by members of the class.

Bernard Carson has returned to his duties at Fishers Island coast guard station after a furlough of five days.

Billie Phelps, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Phelps of High street, has a dog named Nigger which can do a number of tricks. Billie got a cat for Christmas and on the tree was a harness for his pal Nigger. The dog will take Billie in his cart to the postoffice after the mail, on to the store and will find his way home again. The children will follow the car and the dog and think it great to see it. If the little boy gets too far from home the dog will go and find him and bring him back. Clifford Phelps works at the Sea Sled plant in West Mystic. The dog will be there at night to get a ride home in the automobile. He will sit up now for his meal, will also roll over when told to.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

PUTNAM

FUNERAL OF E. L. DAVIS IS LARGELY ATTENDED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 29—The funeral of Ernest L. Davis who died on Saturday at the Corey Hill hospital of Boston took place Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church, the services being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hodges. The bearers were Clarence C. Pierce, George P. Miner, George E. Brousseau, Allie W. Marcy, Thomas F. Ryan and Carl Weeks.

It was largely attended, Mr. Davis having lived in Putnam all of his life and possessing a wide circle of friends who held him in the highest esteem. Besides the two children, Mrs. Hazel Schamanske and Harry E. Davis, the latter a student at the Emerson School of Oratory at Boston, he leaves but one other relative, a cousin at Norwich. Burial was in Grove street cemetery.

Phillip Hopp has returned to his poultry farm at Woodstock after his usual holiday trade in Christmas wreaths at Providence. For twenty-five years he has been disposing of holiday green there. He is known to hundreds of holiday shoppers in Providence and he says that they used to call him the Evergreen King but that he does not sell anything near amount that he did before prohibition as then he did a big business with the bar rooms. He claims to have made and sold 18,000 wreaths in 1916. He also says that he has sold quite a number of trees and greens this year but that automobiles have ruined the mistletoe trade. Mr. Hopp and his wife have bought a poultry farm at Woodstock and plan to settle down and spend the rest of his days picking eggs.

At the annual meeting of Court City of Putnam, Foresters of America, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Chief ranger, Euclid Marion; sub chief ranger, John Jarrington; recording secretary, Henry Hurdman; senior woodward, Austin Lincoln; junior woodward, Albert Robitaille; senior beadle, Ovid St. Onge; junior beadle, Leonidas Sorrel; financial secretary, Otto J. Kroll; treasurer, Eugene D. Alvord; trustees, Louis Bonin, Thomas Bannitan, John Maher; lecturer, Frank Foley.

After the business meeting addresses were made by Grand Chief Ranger Henry A. Congdon of Norwich, Chief Ranger William Page, City Court of Norwich and Grand Trustee Edward Girard of Putnam. Cards and smokes were enjoyed until a late hour. Refreshments were served.

In the fifth night of the card and billiard tournament between the members of the Masonic and Elks clubs of this city, the Elks again finished first by their average ratio of 2 to 1. The total number of points on Monday was Elks 18 Masons 6.

The result of the games in detail follow, the Elks being given first:

Auction bridge, Lewis and Milot won from English and Jenkins; Wheelock and Girard won from Champlin and Prince; Backus and A. Averill won from Moore and Geissler; Vaugh and W. Averill lost to Holden and Owlet; Murray and Cotter won from Macdonald and Alpert.

Bid whist, Gagne and Dupre lost to Merriam and Baldwin; Brodner and Robilliard won from King and Shaw; Mignault and Bulger won from Perry and Sharpe; Wheatley and Bourgeois lost to Brousseau and Miner; Cendwick and Gallant won from Duffy and Miron; Mansfield and Richard won from McGrath and Seward.

Cribbage, Rawley and Rafferty won from Wheaton and Stanton; Tetreault and Lizotte won from Marcy and Twigg.

Pinochle, Cavanaugh and Berth lost to Bell and Sherman.

Billiards, Rich lost to Holden; Carom won from Sherman.

Pool, Hannifan lost to Sharpe; Andrews won from Nichols; Charron won from Miron.

The checker games are to be played later in the week.

Word has been received here of the death of Charles Guilbert at North Attleboro, Mass. Mr. Guilbert lived near Pomfret for more than a quarter of a century but moved to North Attleboro about ten years ago. He is survived by his wife and eight children, Mrs. R. J. Patenude of North Attleboro, Mrs. Albert Gendron of Central Falls, R. I. and Andrea, Albanie, Juliette, Loretta, Eugene and Prince of the home. There are also two brothers and two sisters.

Miss Ruth Child, a teacher in Goucher college, Baltimore, Md., is spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Annie C. Child of South Main street.

Helen Perley of Maine is visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George F. Perley.

Miss Prudence Paine, daughter of Dr. R. C. Paine of Thompson has so far recovered from her recent operation for appendicitis that she expects to resume her teaching as assistant English teacher in the Putnam high school when school opens on Monday.

Maurice Diamond of Hartford has been the recent guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Diamond of Grove street.

Mrs. Brooks Brown and Miss Brown who are winter residents in Pomfret are spending the Christmas holidays with relatives at Rye, N. Y.

Among the holiday visitors at Fox Hill farm at Pomfret are Mme. Gracia Ricardo and Mrs. Bugbey of New York city.

Lewis Dealey has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Overlock at their home in Pomfret for the holiday.

Mrs. Albert Granger Harkness and her two grandsons of Providence are spending a week at the Ben Grosvenor inn in Pomfret. Mrs. Harkness and the late Prof. Harkness of Harvard have formerly been frequent visitors at Pomfret.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Kimball of Boston and Pomfret are spending the holidays at Pomfret.

Louis Schmitt of New York city has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schmitt of Putnam Heights.

Miss Dorothy Paine of Brown university is spending the holiday vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fitz Henry Paine.

Gerald I. McCarthy of Brooklyn, N. Y., was sentenced to one year in the Providence county jail, following conviction on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Rhode Island board of bar examiners.

HAD DUG MANY GRAVES, NATHAN HOLDRIDGE DIES

Funeral services for Nathan Holdridge, 67, were held in the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. G. F. Goodenough, a former pastor of the church, now of Jewett City officiated. The bearers were Austin Lamb, Everett Gallup, John W. Finnegan, Jr., Enos M. Gray, Harry and Leeds Holdridge. There were beautiful floral forms. Mr. Holdridge never married. He owned the homestead farm previously own by his pater, the late Randall Holdridge. He had had charge of many highways in town for a number of years and perhaps had dug more graves in the Ledyard cemetery than any other man. He leaves two brothers, Joseph E. Holdridge and James N. Holdridge, both of Ledyard, and a half sister in New London. Burial was in Ledyard cemetery. Mrs. W. L. Allen, Frederick Burton and Frederick Allyn sang two hymns during the service.

The Christmas concert of Ledyard Congregational church was held in the vestry Monday evening. Two large Christmas trees gaily decorated held gifts for the younger classes. The following program was carried out:

Hark, the Herald Angels Sing school; The First Noel, choir; It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, choir; recitation, Alfred Clark; Good King Wenceslas, choir; recitations, Martha Babcock, Blanche Holdridge; Oh Little Town of Bethlehem, choir; reading, Louise Clark; God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen, choir; recitations, Eleanor Babcock, Harry Holdridge; duet, The Story of the Moon, Miss Marian Geer and Miss Louise Clark, Mother Goose Christmas, Mrs. Barbara Holdridge's class; Little Bo Peep, Ruth Gray; Little Jack Horner, Dean Gray; Little Miss Muffett, Virginia Hagen; Jack Be Nimble, Buddy Morgan; Mary Mary Quite Contrary, Ethel Gray; Little Boy Blue, Isaac G. Geer; Curly Locks, Martha Morgan; Simple Simon, George Clark; I Love Little Pussy, Dorothy and Charlotte Avery; We Three Kings of Orient Are, choir; recitation, Gilbert Hagen; Silent Night, choir; closing remarks.

The exercises were in charge of Joseph A. Clark, superintendent of the school with Mrs. W. L. Allyn at the piano. The distribution of the Edwin Reynolds prizes was made. These prizes are given annually to the five pupils who have attended Sunday school most squarely during the year.

Fifty dollars is awarded annually by a trust fund left by the late Edward W. Reynolds. Those who received the prizes this year are: Paul O. Holdridge, attended 51 Sundays, $12.50; Priscilla Goodenough, 48 Sundays, $10.63; Arthur Goodenough, 48 Sundays $10.62; Ralph Goodenough, 46 Sundays $8.75; Gilbert Hagen, 33 Sundays $7.50; total $50.00.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and cocoa, oranges and candy were distributed.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Holdridge of Farmingdale, L. I., spent Christmas with the former's parents in this place. Mr. Holdridge returned Tuesday night to the school where he is an instructor. Mrs. Holdridge going to Quincy, Mass., to visit her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith and family of Franklin, were Christmas guests of Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Isaac G. Geer Christmas day.

Owing to the very stormy day there was no service in the Congregational church Sunday morning. The C. E. meeting in the evening was also cancelled.

CUTTING POSTAL RATES

When the existing postal rates were put into effect they were hurriedly made, but in spite of opposition they were enacted in order to provide more revenue without taking into consideration the harmful effect which the revision might have upon postal business.

It was inevitable that there would be demands for changes, even as pleas were made at the time for delays until the situation could be carefully studied, and those demands have been recognized as desirable by postoffice department heads. They have seen revenue falling off instead of increasing, other transportation facilities being used instead of the mails and an apparent dissatisfaction on the part of the public.

The postmaster general has pointed out the desirability of making changes in postal rates and urges the restoration of the one cent rate on private post cards, action in keeping with which has already been taken by the lower house of congress, and on the mailing of newspapers by the public is believed a rate of one cent for each two ounces should be fixed regardless of the distance to be carried. In these two particulars the department has been experiencing a decreased revenue, the existing charges being such that either the sending of cards or papers has either been greatly decreased, or stopped by many people.

These two changes would not remove the inconsistencies of the present postal rates or all the unwise features but they would have the tendency to overcome the bad judgment previously displayed. The demand for the changes support the contention at the time they were enacted that they were unjust and ought not to be adopted. Experience has added proof of the claim and it has also meant a loss to the department in regard to at least two classes of mail. What congress will do with postal revision before it gets through is a question, but with the postmaster general and the public calling for changes it can hardly refuse to act.

THINGS TO AVOID

Despite the attempt at escape by prisoners in the New York city jail known as the Tombs, there have been investigations of conditions at that institution and at other institutions maintained by the city with the idea of bringing about a change. Some of these were conducted by the city under the claim that unwarranted laxity existed and others in an effort to prove that the housing and protective conditions were inadequate and dangerous.

In order to get first hand information regarding life in cells at the Tombs a New York newspaperman spent several days in the jail as a prisoner, no one knowing his identity or his purpose so far as getting a story was concerned. In writing of his experience he tells of the difficulty encountered in getting service, in getting the many attentions that he needed, in getting bedclothes, in getting food and in keeping warm. He found plenty of companions ready to offer advice and voice complaints and neither he found it rather an undesirable place in which to spend the few days for which he was sent there. But just what should one expect in such a place? Naturally he has a right to expect that it would be clean, that there would be enough warmth so as not to endanger his health, but it is hardly to be expected that he would find a penal institution fitted up with all the conveniences of a clubroom, equipped with all the comforts of a home or provided with all the service that is to be found in a Pullman car. He must know that those who are jailed for violating the law are not looked upon as heroes and showered with the favor of the land, else there would be a long waiting list in every institution of that kind.

Making a jail so attractive that those who have been there will be anxious or willing to go again isn't the purpose of such an institution. This doesn't mean that there should be abuses or gross laxities for even prisoners are entitled to a square deal in such, but they cannot expect comfortable davenports, box-spring, four-poster beds, Waldorf-Astoria dining room service or up to the minute reading rooms. Jails in other words are good things to keep away from.

HIGHWAY HAZARDS

By figures which have been compiled by the national conference on street and highway safety, it is shown that during 1925 there were only three states among 46 states and the District of Columbia where the automobile death risk was greater than in Connecticut, in all the other states, except Wyoming, New Jersey and Florida, safety in the streets and the highways was greater.

Just how far these conditions will be borne out in 1926 will be disclosed in due time. What position any of the states will hold as the result of the past 12 months is problematical. All have been experiencing the effects of the street hazards and been receiving evidence to the effect in many instances that highway fatalities are on the increase.

As the leader of the states in the matter of highway safety, Iowa has an enviable position, but in comparison with Connecticut Iowa is a large state although it had, in 1926 a registration of 559,202 automobiles, but it doesn't stand in the same position that Connecticut does of being a thoroughfare between thickly settled states where the hazards are greater.

Nevertheless with one person killed in 1926 for each 851 motor cars, there is a situation which calls for attention in every one of the states. In those states where inadequate measures have been taken for the promotion of safety the call for action should be heeded, and with 1926 figures available it will probably become more emphatic than ever, for a large majority of the deaths are needless.

With the number of autos increasing very year, the position of Connecticut as fourth in the list of states showing deaths from automobile accidents is not an enviable one, while the hazard of the highway throughout the country calls for the adoption and enforcement of great safety provisions. The record of the past furnishes the best of reasons for insisting on greater safety in the future. It should in fact go hand in hand with the increase in the number of motor vehicles.

SIDEWALKS

In the city of Springfield the attention of the city fathers has been directed this week to the condition of the sidewalks and a demand made for their improvement. In Springfield a complaint is directed to a large extent against the old brick sidewalks which have become decidedly uneven and which make a decidedly poor showing in contrast to the smooth and permanently paved highways.

Sidewalks may be a good or a bad asset to a city in accordance with the manner in which they are maintained. The even, well kept sidewalks make a good impression on all visitors and they are a great satisfaction to the large number of pedestrians who use them daily. The walks with a rough, broken and uneven surface are not only dangerous but are unjust to those who have to use them. Many a city has launched a campaign for better walks and carried it out to the lasting benefit of the community.

Sidewalks involve a public improvement, the need of which prevails in most every city. Each year sees certain work completed in this direction but only a part of what is needed is ever carried out. When Springfield is told that certain of its walks are a disgrace that remark admirably describes conditions in other cities whether from the same cause or not. We are doing much in these days for the benefit of the users of motor vehicles and it is not too much to think that the pedestrians should be as well provided for.

As the result of periodical efforts betterments are obtained for a time but interest quickly lags. Sidewalks too often get attention only when it is absolutely necessary. They have always have been a cause for complaint and there is no immediate prospect of freedom therefrom.

GEORGIA IMPROVING

So much has been said against the manner in which lawlessness has been tolerated in the state of Georgia that that commonwealth is entitled to all the credit it can get for action that is taken to discourage it.

There was the time, not so long ago, when Georgia led the other states of the country in the number of lynchings. That is no longer so for during the past year there was but one lynching in that state. New laws and a different policy toward enforcement have produced a remarkable change in that state, and it is a change for the better. Georgia is setting a fine example for other states where lynching is indulged in.

But in addition to the opposition displayed against lynching Georgia is making it evident through its governor that it is by no means disposed to tolerate terrorising of individual or community. This is evidenced by the statement of the governor against hooded bands, one of which this week carried to the country a citizen, who had testified against activities of the band, gave him a terrific beating and returned him to the city with the warning that he leave or his life would be in danger.

Law and order should be maintained at any cost and when the governor declared that he will have it, even if he has to declare martial law, he indicates how thoroughly convinced he is that different conditions must prevail in that state.

In the past it has been repeatedly stated that the lynchings did not represent the better sentiment in the state. The indications are that the better sentiment has got or is getting the upper hand and different conditions can be anticipated in the future.

EDITORIAL NOTES

How many of the Christmas toys are still intact and doing service?

Experience teaches that key winding toys were not built to last forever.

The rush this week involves the completion of that list of new resolutions for 1927.

"Admits he killed a man for $187.50" says a headline, and it occurred, of course, in Chicago.

The man on the corner says: Cheer up, there are always great expectations from a new year.

Last week the rush was to serve the Christmas shoppers. This week the big job is getting out the bills.

PROSPECTIVE WOES

"I don't know why I should be so afflicted!" declared the busy man who had not slept well and was afraid he was going to miss his train if he took another cup of coffee. "Other men's daughters have beaus who get arrested for speeding or embezzling and are bothersome in the usual human way, but here I have a daughter whose young man plays the cornet! I ask you, is that nice? And he doesn't even get arrested for it! Is he coming again tonight?"

"Are you referring to Hoskins Osgood?" demanded the young woman in question with great dignity.

"If that's his name, I am!" her parent informed her, putting double the sugar he wanted into his cup in his agitation. "I thought cornets and trombones went out with long hair, home-cooked jam, family dinners and fainting fits! I didn't know that any 1926 model male who wanted to be right in style, would be caught playing the cornet! I tell you it's a hangover from some wild and free grandfather coming to life in this Hosgood fellow of yours, and if you have his interests at heart you will talk him out of it before something terrible happens. Folks aren't as longsuffering as they used to be and no family is going to wad cotton into its ears and retire to the attic just to get a daughter married off! Nobody has attics any more, anyhow, and you are likely to have some husky gentleman residing two flats above us come crashing in the front door with his nervous system all jangled bent on saving afflicted humanity! It isn't necessary for your Oskins young man to play anything, that I can see, what with a perfectly good radio and a phonograph in the place! If he must have music, why don't you tune in on a good orchestra—"

"Why, Hoskins has been perfectly remarkable as a cornetist ever since he was 6 years old!" his daughter informed him, indignantly. "He has lots of silver cups and is the best—"

"Nuisance that ever flourished," her father finished for her.

"Any young man playing almost any instrument is a pest," he continued a few minutes later, "but when he picks out the stuttering sort that chokes every few bars and that is warranted to penetrate a 16-inch armor plate wall he ought to be suppressed. A young man concentrated on playing the cornet always gets red in the face and his cheeks stick out and how any girl in her senses can pump up any sentimental feeling about that sort of a prospect is beyond me. Forty years ago a girl's life was so restricted that she was perfectly delighted to have a young man with bear's grease on his hair, an embroidered collar and a roached pompadour come to spend the evening and toodle on a cornet while she played the accompaniment on the parlor organ. They did The Maiden's Prayer and By the Brookside and she thought she had had an utterly exciting and riotous evening and wrote it up in her diary, but at this present d s there are several other matters to engage a young woman's time and attention, and I should think you would give this Goskins the gate. It is merely infatuation on your part—"

"I'd like you to know that we are merely good friends and that is all, and why a girl can't see a man without her family, thinking she is crazy about him—"

"Well, there's insanity mixed up in it somewhere," her father insisted tartly. "Especially if you have no serious intentions. Most usually when a girl decides on a husband she realizes that she's got to have a blind spot about some peculiarity of his, but why you should endure this socalled music if you are not in love with the young man are beyond me. Forty dollars a week for him I can't see. There has been no earthquake or calamity to reduce the available supply of young men and you might have shopped around a bit before grabbing him.

"Last night when he was doing the march from 'Aida' I could see autos two blocks away pause as though they had run head-on into a stone wall, shiver in every part and then stagger around and get away in leaps! The blue vase your Aunt Irene sent us when we were married fell off the shelf and was smashed, too, at the climax of the symphony! Why, if you married him he would expect us to bee him to play a tune whenever any of the neighbors were in or we had the card club!

"I know his sort—they want to be the life of the party invariably! I'm a sensible man and I've realized that I'm likely to get a son-in-law who will tell me kindly how to run my business and just why my politics is obsolete and I'm resigned to enduring it, but it never dawned on me I'd get anything in the family like a cornetist! I don't think I'd have minded so much if he'd had a fancy for something cute like the mouth organ or musical glasses—those tricks always take when conversation dies down—but a cornet is so sort of permanent and all-pervasive and established—"

"Well," declared his daughter smoothing her back hair and trying to be haughty, "you certainly act awfully queer about Hoskins, but your worry is all for nothing for he's thinking of taking up something more modern like the saxophone next—Fa—ther! Why, you're actually choking!"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

OVERWEIGHT MENACES HEALTH OF MIDDLE-AGED PEOPLE

By William A. Hacket, M. D., Detroit Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

It is only since the beginning of this century that physicians have paid any attention to obesity. Fat men have too often been ridiculed instead of pitied. Some cases are due to eating and drinking too much; some to hereditary tendencies; and others to a defective glandular action.

Each individual has a normal weight which he tends to maintain under varying conditions. Excessive exercise may cause a loss of 4 or 5 pounds due to profuse sweating. A rapid reduction in weight may also result from a prolonged diarrhoea.

Fat is deposited whenever the energy intake of the food exceeds the energy requirements of the body. Overeating and indolence are recognized causes of obesity.

Gilman Thompson says, "The chief danger in fat people is that the heart muscle may become affected. A woman weighing 130 pounds at 20 years of age and 240 pounds at 40 years has the same size heart to maintain the circulation that she had at 20 years, but she has more work to do. Every time she walks or climbs a flight of stairs she raises the additional 120 pounds of dead weight."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, many years ago, was engaged in determining the weight, height, and girth of all the members of the Philadelphia police force. The first examination was made in April and repeated in October and it was found that a large majority of the men had lost weight during the summer.

The formation of fat is usually increased by daily drinking of alcohol, especially malt liquors. It will be interesting to watch the effect prohibition will have on the American people in reducing their weight.

There is a close relation between diabetes and obesity and the treatment of both these conditions, as regards diet, lies along the same lines.

According to the Association Medical directors there is a steady increase in mortality with increasing weight. Overweight to a moderate degree is not serious in the young, but has a material effect at the middle ages.

Prevent on is better than cure and when a family tendency toward obesity manifests itself in early life the between 40 or 50 years of age. Physician and not wait until he or she is between 40 or 50 years of age. Physical measures can be carried out better while young. The appetite must be controlled. Sweets, starches, and fats must be reduced to a minimum.

Most of the anti-fat cures are useless. The U. S. department of agriture, through its bureau of chemistry, has made tests of various nostrums, advertised by the promoters of fat reducing cures and many have been found worthless and even dangerous. It is regrettable that the names or brands of these dangerous or fraudulent preparations cannot be given out by the department.

"Weight reduction, by following the straight and narrow paths of rational dieting and exercise rather than the devious paths of drugs and fads, is the safe course. Reducing should, for your [illegible] be supervised by your

Study at Home

There is such a thing as an embarrassment of riches. If you have too many books about you, you may be bewildered so that you do not read to advantage. "Successful work," said Lowell, "is the result of a due proportion between the task and the instrument. Southey, whose literary industry was so remarkable within the range of his own library, said that he never should have accomplished anything, if his energies had been buried under the vast stores of the British Museum."

As a workshop the public library may supplement, but it can rarely take the place of a private library. DeQuincey said that for mere purposes of study your own library is far preferable to the Bodleian or the Vatican, and Emerson thought that the best of the Harvard university library was in his study at home. That was the best for big own use, because when a man is working in a special line of thought he accumulates in time a collection of books on that subject that is more complete than any but the largest library can supply, and he can work with more facility with books that are familiar to him and ready to his hand. Emerson's books, however, would have been of little use to a Civil engineer or to an American historian, while a public library must provide for the needs of all students in whatever lines of research. But Emerson was under constant indebtedness to the Harvard library, in fact, that noble collection of books has played no small part in the literary development of Boston as well as of the great university. "The true university of these days," said Carlyle, "is a collection of books, and all education is to teach us how to read."

Read in order that you may know more, be more, do more; books will help you to accomplish all these things and these things make up the sum of life, here and hereafter.

IN DAY'S NEWS

STRAKONITZ

When news reached the world that Turkey had abolished the fez it created mild interest.

That is, the interest was mild in nearly all the world except in a little Czechoslovakian village in the Bohmer Wald where it stirred up amazement instead. Now the people of Strakonits have protested against Turkey's abandonment of its traditional headgear because it cripples their industry of supplying fesses to Turkey.

"The predicament of Strakonits (the Czechs spell it Strakonice) affords a telling cross-section of Czechoslovakian industry," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic society in Washington, D. C.

"Long before Czechoslovakia became an independent state it had the habit of making things for other nations. When the buying power of Europe shrank after the war, Czechoslovakians were forced afar for markets as they never were before. The 'Yankees of Europe,' as they have been called, have been doing business with the 'Yankees' of America. What woman is not familiar with Czechoslovakian glass beads from Gablons, with Czech embroidery and Bohemian glassware?

"Strakonitz, Gablons, Kladno, Pribram, Brunn and other manufacturing towns are in the western end of the country. Czechoslovakia, at first, seemed an awkwardly long name but it helps one remember the geography of the nation. Czech is a short, compact name and likewise the western, or Czech, or Bohemian section, is as compact as a box. Slovakia stretches out on the tongue and geographically tapers out along the Carpathian ridge like a scarf trailing behind the Bohemian box.

"The edges of the box are mountain ranges and Strakonits lies near the south wall. Another way of giving its position is to say that Strakonits lies halfway between Ceske Budejovice and Pilzen. A still better way is to say that it lies halfway between Budweis and Pilsen, for the German spellings of those towns are far more familiar to an American than the Czech spellings.

"The sorrow caused Strakonits by the Turkish edict against the fez is a drop in the bucket beside the grief Pilsen faced because of the United States' declaration of prohibition. Pilsen's municipal brewery is the largest in Czechoslovakia and one of the largest in the world. Its project operated by a few hundred house owners of the town.

"While the textile industries, including the hat making of the Strakonits district, are extensive, even a slight inquiry into Czechoslovakian trade reveals that Bohemia is especially dedicated to beverages. First there is Hana (Prossnitz) in Moravia between Bohemia and Slovakia, famous for its barley malt which is shipped all over the world. Then there is Saaz (Zatec) in the far west of Bohemia, famous for its hops which are shipped to Pilsen and to Germany. There also are the numerous breweries. And finally there is the extensive glass industry centered in Gablons (Jablonec) for fancy ware and Teplitz (Teplice,) Prague (Praha,) etc., for plainer ware.

"Pilsen, Strakonitz and Budweis are also within the chief health springs district of southern Bohemia, one of the most famous of Europe. In past ages the country was liberally sprinkled with small volcanic peaks. Volcanic activity has survived only in the warm health springs such as Karlovy Vary, better known as Karlsbad; and Mar Lazne, better known as Marienbad."

Were the Grosbeaks Stupid?

Call no one stupid 'til you know
For certain that their wits are slow.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was quite delighted to think that he had found the cousin of Piny the Grosbeak. This cousin, the Evening Grosbeak, and Piny were the best of friends, as cousins always should be. Both were from the North and both were comparative strangers in the Green Forest and the Old Orchard. Peter spent considerable time where they were, for Peter is always anxious to know about places he has never been, and he hoped he might hear some stories from the Far North from these pretty visitors.

Neither the Pine Grosbeaks nor the Evening Grosbeaks seemed to be in the least nervous. They were never fidgeting about as so many of the feathered folk did. They never appeared to be startled by anything. When Farmer Brown's Boy came over to look at them, they allowed him to come very close indeed. They didn't appear to notice him. They contentedly went on feeding just as if he were not there.

"There!" exclaimed Happy Jack. "Isn't that stupid?"

"They are stupid," said Happy Jack the Squirrel. "Yes, sir, those fellows are stupid. Why, if Black Pussy should come along she'd catch one of them before you could wink your eye. They'll be lucky if they ever get back where they came from."

Peter Rabbit shook his head. "Perhaps you're right," said he, "but they don't look stupid to me. They just mind other people to mind their affairs. I don't call that being stupid."

Just then Piny the Pine Grosbeak flew down almost to the feet of Farmer Brown's Boy.

"There!" exclaimed Happy Jack. "Isn't that stupid? He doesn't know that Farmer Brown's Boy is a friend. He hasn't been here long enough to know anything about Farmer Brown's Boy."

The first chance Peter got he went over to where Piny was picking some low-hanging ash-berries. "Are you stupid?" asked Pete.

Piny stopped and looked at Peter and such a funny expression went over his face. "What do you mean by that?" said he.

"Happy Jack says you are too stupid to know enough to be afraid of Farmer Brown's Boy," replied Peter.

"Why should I be afraid of Farmer Brown's Boy?" asked Piny.

"You shouldn't," replied Peter. "But how did you know you shouldn't? That's what I want to know. How did you know that you shouldn't be afraid of Farmer Brown's Boy?"

"Why should any one be afraid of anything until they see reason to be afraid of it?" asked Piny.

Peter shook his head. "That idea may be all right up in the North where you come from," said he, "but it won't work here. Here we are afraid of everything until we know we shouldn't be afraid."

"Huh!" exclaimed Piny. "I don't think much of that. Up North, where I come from, we seldom see these two-legged creatures called men, and when we do see them they never harm us. So why should we be afraid of them when we see them down here?"

"It seems to me," interrupted Mr Evening Grosbeak, who had come over just in time to hear what Piny was saying, "that fear is a most uncomfortable feeling. I've noticed that everybody around here seems to have a great deal of fear. I shouldn't want to live here all the time if I had to feel that way. Now, up where we come from we have to watch out for some members of the Owl family and some members of the Hawk family, but that is about all. Down here it seems to me that everybody is all the time watching out for, and distrustful of, everybody else. It must be a most uncomfortable way to live."

"It is," replied Peter frankly. "But somehow that is the way I is here." He sighed wistfully. "It must be very nice up there in North," said he.

"It is," replied Piny, "when there is enough to eat." Which reminded Peter that these new friends had made this long journey in order to get food. So even the Far North must have its drawback.

Stories That Recall Others

An Ambitious Neighborhood

A business man had bought a farm out in the country where he could spend his spare time. He had retained a caretaker and was instructing him in regard to his duties.

"Now I want all these buildings locked," he said, "a padlock put on the chicken house, a padlock on the granary, one on the smoke house and a padlock on the toolhouse."

"Them others might be all right," said the caretaker, "it's all right to lock up the henhouse, and the meat and the grain, but there ain't nobody in this here neighborhood what's going to break into a toolhouse to steal tools to work with."

The Annual Crowd

'Twas the day after Christmas and all through the land
Were people with unwelcome presents on hand.
The boy who expected a radio set
Got something he never imagined he'd get.
The girl who had looked for a solitaire ring
Got a handkerchief case or a book, the poor thing!
The lover who longed for a token of hope
Got a new shaving outfit, including the soap.
The husband who wanted a desk for his den
Got a box of cigars or a cheap fountain pen.
The wife who had wished for a Hudson seal coat
Wept over the gift of a ten-dollar note.
'Twas the day after Christmas, alas and alack!
How many there were who'd have liked to get back
The presents they'd given to folks who had not Returned anything for the present they'd got.

Peddler's Song in Autumn

Ah, 'tis well enough roving in a world of summer skies!
A peddler might be merry then, and no be sore at heart,
With gold and silver trinkets for to match with laughing eyes,
And a little gray donkey and a high-wheeled cart.

A peddler might be merry then—ay sure, as I have been,
A-questioning down the country where hills are starred with flowers,
And all the woodland singing, and all the meadows green,
And never a lampilit window for to haunt his evening hours.

For then he'd walk with Wonder, but now 'tis Sorrow old,
A far faint voice that follows him, that goes with him along,
And mocks him on the hillside, and in the valley's gold,
And sweet in roadside gardens filled with autumn robin-song.

'Tis all but him have dwellings, over all the shires,
Over all of England, from sea to misty sea;
And men will come at twilight to their own hearth's fires,
And mice will build their winterness beneath the wild rose tree.

Aye! 'tis well enough roving when the land is bright,
A peddler might be merry then, before the swallow's flown,
With never a lampilt window for to haunt him through the night,
And he and his little donkey on the dark road alone.

A machine measuring the amount of laughter and applause was operated in a theater in New York city. The box containing the indicating apparatus was placed at the back of the auditorium and showed the effects of the "gag" lines as flashed on the screen.

According to pathologists of the United States department of agriculture there are 19 diseases that may attack rose bushes. The wheat crop, too, has its worries, being liable to 31 ailments. The corn plant has 26 and the tomato 42, while the apple has to contend with 60 possible maladies.

The theory of diversified crops had its fanning at Wakefield, Kas. Eugene Elkins and Percy Walters demonstrated variety on the farm when they exhibited at the fair show. Mr. Elkins showed 118 products, all produced on his 80-acre farm. They included fruits, vegetables, berries, hays, grasses and grains. Mr. Walters grew 86 varieties of fruit, vegetables and flowers on a 47-acre tract.

NEW MASONIC TEMPLE AT WILLIMANTIC DEDICATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 29.—The dedication of the new Masonic temple at 58 North street took place here Wednesday night in the presence of about 200 officers and members of various lodges in Connecticut. In the absence of Grand Master Arthur N. Nash of Westerly, R. I., who is ill, Theodore W. Foster acted as grand master for the dedication exercises, which were very impressive. Associate grand officers of the grand lodge of Connecticut who assisted in the ceremonial were R. W. J. N. Fitts, deputy grand master; R. W. Thomas H. Desmond, grand senior warden; R. W. Davis H. Seamon, grand junior warden; R. W. Joseph Buthe, grand treasurer; M. W. George H. Kies, grand secretary; Sydney W. Bard, grand senior deacon; Albert L. Darbie, grand junior deacon; Howard W. Middleton, grand marshal; Anderson Jacobson, grand senior steward; Harold C. Wiggins, grand junior steward; E. G. Matson, grand chaplain; Earle K. Hailing, grand architect, Gurdon Rathbun, grand tyler.

The dedication was under the auspices of the Eastern Star lodge, No. 14, A. F. and A. M. with the following officers: Benjamin L. Larned, W. M.; John Phillips, S. W.; Edgar Butcher, J. W.; Charles Risedorf, treasurer; Harold S. Mason, secretary; J. E. S. Hunt, D. D.; Clifford E. Williams, J. D.; Theodore L. Crandall, S. S.; Norman C. Pultz, J. S.; Otto B. Robinson, chaplain; C. Arthur Tainter, marshal; Gurdon C. Rathbun, tyler; Richard Wright officiated as past master. At 6:15 o'clock an excellent supper was served in the chamber of commerce rooms to about 200 guests by ladies of Radiant chapter, No. 11, O. E. S. Adjournment was then taken to the new hall. Among those present were Joel Cargel, 66, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the oldest living past master of Eastern Star lodges. He held office in 1907. Mr. Cargal favored with a poem. Visitors came from New Britain, Westerly, Norwich, New London, Mystic, Stonington, Stafford, Willington and other places.

The new Masonic temple occupies the third floor of the block on the corner of North and Valley streets which was formerly known as Washburn hall. The building was purchased by the Masonic Charity and Educational Association, Inc., last July from Fred L. Avery and M. J. Dixon VanZandt of the firm of Avery and VanZandt. The temple is appointed with beautiful furnishings carrying out a blue color scheme which is also evident in rich draperies and in the decoration work. The officers' chairs are luxuriously upholstered and the lodge seats are of the opera design and upholstered in blue mohair. The carpet is a deep blue with a figured design. The lighting effects are unique and most attractive. By electrical arrangement the rising sun, the moon and stars are illuminated against a sky blue ceiling diversified by slitting clouds. The men's smoking room and ladies' rest room are artistically furnished and the same degree of careful design is found on the fourth floor where a thoroughly equipped kitchen and dining hall are to be found. The credit for the wonderful results secured in remodeling the building is extended to the building committee comprising Leslie F. Hartson, James P. Mustard, William P. Jordan, Oliver L. Willard and Otto B. Robinson.

A formal dance attended by about 70 young people was given at the Nathan Hale hotel Wednesday in honor of Miss Elizabeth Everest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Everest of this city in honor of her approaching marriage to William Adam Johnson of Detroit, Mich. Miss Carolyn Cummings headed the committee of arrangements. Music was by Gibson's orchestra. Refreshments were served during the course of the evening.

GEO. W. CARROLL INVOLVED IN DOMESTIC TRIANGLE

RENO, Nev. Dec. 29—Three court actions filed with the county clerk here late yesterday brought to light in Reno a domestic triangle affecting George W. Carroll, wealthy bond broker of Norwich, Conn. In the first action, Mrs. Emma F. Carroll, wife of George W. Carroll, filed suit against Mrs. Margaret S. Gaines, wife of Bennett M. Gaines of Norwich, charging alienation of affections and asking damages of $50,000. In the second action, George Wyman Carroll, Jr., petitions the court for letter guardianship over his father, whom he declares to be incompetent, and the third action is one by Mrs. Carroll against her husband for separate maintenance of $500 a month, in which she alleges failure to provide and desertion. When the cases were filed late yesterday they were withheld in order to permit service of summons on Carroll and Mrs. Gaines and service of injunctions on these defendants, and on banks here.

In her suit against Mrs. Gaines, who has been in Reno with Mr. Carroll, Mrs. Carroll charges that Mrs. Gaines alienated the affections of her husband while they were living in Norwich, that she joined him in Southern California and came thence with him to Reno. In this case an injunction was issued by Judge L. O. Hawkins preventing either Carroll or Mrs. Gaines from disposing of any of the assets of Carroll and the same injunction also affects all moneys in banks in Reno in the name of either Carroll or Mrs. Gaines.

Affidavits supporting the motion for the injunction charge that Carroll is in a poor state of health, both mentally and physically that he had been "bled" by Mrs. Gaines to the extent of more than $35,000 and recite that Mrs. Gaines filed an action in Connecticut against Carroll which Carroll settled for $5,500. Carroll was later persuaded by his son to absent himself from Norwich and take medical treatment, the affidavits set forth, and appeared to have recovered. This recovery brought about the return by the son to father of securities valued at $100,000, the papers state, but as soon as the elder Carroll returned to Norwich, it is alleged, Mrs. Gaines again got control of him and from that time on it is alleged, Carroll has been under complete domination of Mrs. Gaines.

The affidavits are made by Carroll's son, who now is in Reno and formerly a resident of the same apartment house in Reno where the elder Carroll and Mrs. Gaines have made their home. Carroll, according to the local affidavit, admitted he was under the spell of Mrs. Gaines, and told of many valuable gifts he had made to her both voluntarily and on her insistence, one of them being a diamond bracelet watch, Carroll and his wife were married in 1884 in Griswold, Conn.

CHARLES COIT ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NORWICH BOY SCOUT COUNCIL

At the annual meeting of the Norwich Boy Scout council held Wednesday evening in the rooms of the Norwich chamber of commerce, Charles Coit was elected president of the council for the year 1927, succeeding Edwin V. Ross. Announcement was made that the Boy Scout financial campaign will be held the week of February 6 to 12.

The committee was called to order by the retiring president, Mr. Ross, with a good sized attendance. Mr. Ross submitted his report and it was accepted and ordered placed on file. Mr. Ross being given a rising vote of thanks by the council.

Scout Executive Frederick J. Bielefield read his annual report which was accepted as was the report of Treasurer Arthur E. Story. The treasurer's report showed receipts of $4,877.26 for the year and expenditures of $4,590.66, leaving a balance of $286.70 on hand, and on deposit in the Mechanics National bank.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Charles Coit; vice presidents, Dr. R. R. Agnew, George H. Young, Rev. John J. Reilly and Max Hanover; secretary, Charles E. Gilbert; treasurer, Arthur E. Story; commissioner, Arthur L. Peale; delegate to national council, Nathan A. Gibbs.

Following his election Mr. Coit took the chair and conducted the remainder of the meeting. The council voted to renew its national council charter and it was voted to send letters of appreciation to Mr. Briggs of Voluntown and his sister, Mrs. Chadwick, for the use of the camp site at Beach Pond. The council voted to endorse the work of Scout Executive Bielefield and expressed appreciation for what he has done since coming to Norwich. A vote of thanks to the press for their cooperation throughout the year was also given.

Edwin V. Ross, Arthur L. Peale, Henry D. Johnson, Arthur E. Story and Harry W. Cardwell were appointed a committee to draw up a constitution and a set of by-laws for the council and to submit them to a later meeting of the council. Mr. Ross announced that the committee would hold a meeting this (Thursday) afternoon at his office for preliminary work in connection with the proposed constitution and by-laws. Following a general discussion on the community chest idea for Norwich the meeting adjourned.

The annual report of the retiring president as submitted by Mr. Ross, follows:

To the members of the Norwich council, B. S. A. Greetings: We are about to close accounts for another year of scouting, not that our fiscal year thus ends but the officers you elected last year, and the committees these officers appointed will have completed their tenure of office at the close of this meeting. Many of these gentlemen are prepared to offer their reports to you of their own activities and I would not at this time transgress upon their privilege by entering a discussion of their functions. In a general way, however, may I not refresh your minds by a fleeting reference to some of the higher spots in the work of the closing year. The fact that we have changed scout executives since our last annual meeting is now well-known to you all. Upon Mr. Benten's resignation from his leadership here and his attachment as scout executive at White Plains, New York, the council contracted with Frederick J. Bielefield, Jr., a native of Middletown, and with a record of several successful years in scouting to be Mr. Benten's successor, and it is with Mr. Bielefield that your president and executive council have worked since February 1st.

In that time very substantial gains have been made numerically in the enrollment of boys, an item which will appear in the scout executive's report in detail. This offers some reason for satisfaction. The increase in numbers, however, is not conclusive evidence of

Y., where they are to make their home.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS MEETS AT Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. men's Bible class held an interesting session Wednesday evening at 6.15 o'clock. The topic was "What constitutes greatness" and the scripture used was Matthew 18:1-14. Among the points brought out in the study and discussion were the following:

The transfiguration had taken place and Jesus and the disciples were on the way back to Capernaum. Evidently the disciples were discussin the question as to who would be the greatest in Christ's kingdom; their talk was not meant for Jesus ears. Finally they made bold to ask Jesus who would be the greatest in his kingdom. Though Jesus had plainly told them that his "kingdom was not of this world," they could not yet comprehend it.

The Master in order to teach them the lesson they needed to learn called a little child and practically told them that what they needed was the humility that the average child exemplifies, every normal child has the following characteristics: Meekness, freedom from rivalry, perfect trust, indifference to rank, etc. What Jesus wanted to teach them was that unless they turned their backs on the ugly spirit of self seeking, and selfish ambition they would not only not have positions in his kingdom, but they would not be citizens at all of that kingdom.

He of course wanted them to have ambition, but not the kind that makes for selfishness. It is generally speaking, true, that the most unselfish man is the greatest man, for he does the most for others, while the selfish man is for himself, first last and always. Jesus pictured also to His disciples on this occasion the awfulness of one being a stumbling block to others. We should be very careful that our influence either conscious or unconscious is not be in any way a stumbling block to others. We should be ever so careful of our words and our acts.

FUNERALS
Miss Lena M. Cook

The funeral of Miss Lena M. Cook whose death occurred in Boston on Thursday, was held Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock at the parlors of Henry Allen & Son on Main street. The service was conducted by Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ Episcopal church. Brothers of Miss Cook were bearers. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and the floral pieces were numerous and beautiful.

Burial was in the family lot in Avery cemetery, Preston, where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Budlong.

Edward A. Colby

Funeral services for Edward A. Colby, widely known in Norwich and New London as a printer and musician, whose death from shock occurred on Christmas night when he was struck by an unidentified automobile on the Norwich-Westerly turnpike, were held Wednesday noon at the parlors of C. A. Gafter, No. 70 Franklin street. The service was conducted by Rev. J. Romayn Danforth, D. D., pastor of the First Church of Christ, New London, and during the service Mrs. Helena M. T. Churph rendered Abide With Me and One Sweetly Solemn Thought.

The body was then taken to New London and services were held at the Beckwith Memorial chapel in Cedar Grove cemetery by Rev. Dr. Danforth. At the close of the service Mrs. Church sang Beautiful Isle of Somewhere and The Christians' Good Night. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery and an Odd Fellow committal service was conducted by representatives of Pequot lodge, No. 85, I. O. O. F., of which Mr. Colby had been a member for over 50 years. The service was conducted by E. H. Dunbar of New London as noble grand and Rev. Dr. Danforth as chaplain.

Included in the large attendance at the two services were delegations from Norwich Typographical union, No. 100, New London Typographical union, of which Mr. Colby was a charter member, Norwich Musicians' union, Odd Fellows, Niagara Engine company of New London, representatives of the several departments of the Norwich Bulletin and New London Day, and relatives and friends from Detroit, New York, New London and Norwich.

The floral tributes were most beautiful, fitting testimonials from relatives and friends in memory of a man who possessed the love and respect of all who knew him. Acting as bearers were members of the Norwich and New London Typographical unions, those serving at Norwich being William M. Savage, George A. Risley, Joseph P. Sullivan and George B. Neibert and those at the cemetery at New London being James P. Nellan, Francis W. Nellan, George W. Conner and Arthur F. Russ.

R. I. REDS STILL LEAD IN STORRS EGG CONTEST

The laying contest at Storrs is a great race. Rhode Island Reds still have the pole but are barely hanging on by their eye lids. The pen of White Rocks that was trailing along last week ten eggs behind is now just exactly one lone egg to the rear. This means, of course, that if any single pullet in either of these two pens doesn't do her duty during the coming week; then the breed she represents will have to take a back seat. And that's not all. Neither the Rocks nor the Reds can afford to do any loafing. There are three pens of Leghorns from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut, all within 16 eggs of each other, and all waiting to step into the gap. Then there are two pens of Wyandottes that must not be entirely neglected. Both are from Litchfield County, Connecticut, and both are giving a splendid account of them-

In the eighth week of the contest E. A. Hirt's pen of White Rocks from South Weymouth, Mass., was an easy first, with a score of 518 eggs. Kerr Chickeries and their pen of Leghorns from Trenton, New Jersey, was second best pen for the week with a mark of 56 eggs. Geo. B. Ferris and his pen of the same breed from Grand Rapids, Mich., was a close third with a total of 55 eggs. Mayhill Poultry Farm at Marion, Ind., made fourth place for the week with a pen of Leghorns that laid 51 eggs. The total production for all pens was 3,877 eggs, or a yield of about 40 per cent. This is a gain of 230 eggs over the previous week's production, but in 100 eggs less than for the corresponding week a year ago. With longer days in the offing, and with them more sunshine, production is expected to pick up more or less steadily from this time on until May, the month of most eggs.

It is pretty generally understood that each competing pen in the Storrs contest is comprised of ten pullets. In addition breeders are privileged to include two reserve birds or substitutes. Football coaches sometimes make a bad guess and learn only after the game is lost that some substitute could have done a better job than the man on the playing field. Sometimes chicken men lik

MANY RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY COACHES RELATIVE TO THE SHIFT PLAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—In an effort to find a cheatproof shift play, the American Football Coaches' association today suggested to the rules committee that "after any change of position of one or more players, two or more seconds elapse before the ball is put in play."

The coaches, however, made it clear that the unfavorable reaction created is directed only at forward or lateral shifts and is not intended to prevent a player running toward his own goal an amendment providing that "this suggestion is not intended to amend the present rules in regard to men in motion but applies to shift plays only."

Most of the discussion was devoted to the shift play which many coaches declared was an effort to beat the rules and as such could not be countenanced. The rules committee of the association, headed by W. W. Roper, who is also a member of the committee making the football rules, recommended but one suggestion, that relating to shifts.

The coaches discussed the forward pass and point after touchdown but made no suggestions for changes in existing rules.

In the debate on the shift play, Frank W. Cavanaugh, who moves from Boston college to Fordham next season, defended the play and suggested that if the game must be made "simpler for the benefit of old and slow officials, perhaps younger and faster men should be found to run the games.

Major Cavanaugh added, however, that in many cases the trouble is found with the coaches themselves who do not give the officials a chance.

"Biff" Jones, Army coach, opposed the possibility of another official being added to the game, saying no one wanted a fifth official, and it would be better to abolish the shift than to increase the number of officials.

Foster Sanford, supporting the suggestion for slowing the shift, declared "cheating must stop" and said that the present four officials can handle the situation. Contending that a stop watch is not necessary in counting seconds, the veteran coach demonstrated that he could indicate elapsed seconds by counting "one and a half, two and a half," etc.

Speaking of "football strategy and tactics," Mr. Roper deplored the scouting evil which he declared has threatened to put football in a class with big business. The game has developed, he said, into an effort "to outguess a scout" and takes initiative away from the players.

The Princeton-Yale agreement not to scout each other worked well, he said, and he added that he is thinking of giving up scouting altogether in a belief that he can get better results without using the practice.

"I'm willing now to make an agreement with any one not to scout his team and I may do it anyway," the Princeton coach said.

The speaker declared he had no thought of legislation in connection with scouting, suggesting that the evil could not be remedied by passing laws.

Too many plays are attempted by some teams, Mr Roper said in developing his talg on "strategy" giving an opinion that a team with too few plays would be in better position than one with too many.

The huddle, he declared, has come out of the west to prove a welcome addition to the game and has demonstrated that it is not negative strategy.

William A. Alexander, of Georgia, chairman of the committee on officials, said that a survey of coaches indicated that they favored selection of officials by mutual consent rather than by a central authority. A fee of $75 was regarded as fair compensation with $20 or $25 additional for each day the official should be kept from his business by his assignment.

"Rushing" prespective athletes was opposed in a report of the committee on ethics, submitted by Chairman George E. Little of the University of Wisconsin. No attempt should be made to proselyte and correspondence was frowned upon in the report.

The trustees, Hugo Bezdek chairman, recommended that football practice be confined to college campuses to the excision of trafning camps and should be restricted to two hours a day.

FAST C. F. C. TEAM PLAYS MARINE FIVE SATURDAY

The Norwich fans will have a fine chance to see two fast basketball games next Saturday night, when the C. F. C. five matches itself against the Sub-Base Marines and the N. F. A. contests with the Heller Brothers' five from Willimantic. The first game will be enjoyed by all the service men in this vicinity because they have long wished to see the marine team in action.

The sub base team, although they started badly at the first of the season, has improved greatly in every game they have played, till now they are making the fastest teams in New London fight hard in order to defeat them. They have two fast forwards in Capt. Moore and Mgr. Nelson and G. Halloran is taking good care of the tap-off position. O. H. Moore and F. Tomovelli are making it hard for the opponents to score, on account of their fast guarding game.

The C. F. C. quintet has not had such a favorable record this year as they have had in the past two seasons, but they are out for blood and any opposing team from now till the end of the season will have their hands full if they expect to beat the locals.

O'ROURKE DROPPED FROM COACHING ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The American Football Coaches association today adopted a report of its trustees' committee recommending the expulsion from membership of S. C. O'Rourke, coach of St. Mary's college, Kansas, for violation of the association's rules.

Officials of the Coaches' association as well as Hugo Bezdek of Penn state, chairman of the trustees' committee, declined to discuss O'Rourke's case but it was understood the action against him was prompted by alleged disregard of eligibility rules in obtaining football players for the St. Mary's team. O'Bourke is a Holy Cross man.

COLLEGIANS AND DOUGHBOYS WIN GAMES AT PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 29.—Last night the Black and White Collegians of Woodstock were responsible for the greatest upset that has been dealt in the Quinebaug Valley race when they won 41-20 from the Celtics of Putnam. Weather conditions were so bad that it prevented many fans from witnessing the hardest and fastest battle yet played at the Armory. Anderson and Desautels, forwards of the Collegians made almost miraculous shots to make a total of 30 points between them. Hannifan and Cody did some remarkable playing for the Celtics. This victory of the Black and White Collegians now places teams on an equal footing for first place in the league standing.

In the second game of the evening the Headquarters Company were lucky to win from the Silk Sox quintet, who although handicapped by the loss of a center end guard were tied with the team of the soldier boys at the end of the first half. To "Flash" Light can go the credit of the soldier victory as his work in the last quarter saved the day for them. Child played a good game at guard and did much to check the fast Silk trio of Winslow, Dupre and Bugbee. Rawley and William also played games well worth mentioning. The scores are as follows:

TUNNEY TO HAVE CONFERENCE WITH FUGAZY

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Gene Tunney returned today to New York from a ten-day vacation in the Maine woods to find the heavyweight pot boiling from industrious stirring by rival metropolitan promoters, Humbert Fugazy and Tex Rickard.

Although the heavyweight champion reiterated his assertion that he was still "open to all bidders" for a title match, he was slated for a conference, nevertheless, with Fugazy tomorrow before leaving later in the day for St. Louis to resume a vaudeville tour.

Tunney did not indicate what his attitude would be toward the details of any proposal advanced by Fugazy. The promoter, on the other hand, expressed the confidence he would "get down to brass tacks" with the title holder on his plans to match Tunney against Jack Delaney, the light heavyweight champion, at the Polo Grounds next summer. Delaney's manager, Pete Reilly, was expected back from Chicago to enter the prospective discussion with Tunney.

Rickard, meanwhile, displayed no apprehension over Fugazy's moves. The Madison Square Garden promoter repeated his belief that the elimination tournament he is now conducting will produce Tunney's next opponent and that he will have no trouble coming to terms with the former marine.

Tunney spent most of today visiting his mother. He appeare in excellent health and made light of his experience in breaking through an "ice wrinkle" in Maine and being saved from drowning by his companions.

YALE AND HOLY CROSS WIN FIRST GAMES

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Yale and Holy Cross were victorious tonight in the first games of the basketball tournament being held at Yale university under the auspices of the Yale Athletic association. The Elis defeated Tufts, 30 to 27, and Holy Cross will meet tomorrow night to determine the winner of the tournament. Tufts and Vermont will meet in a preliminary game.

Ellis, substitute Tufts forward, was the individual high point man of the evening. He made seven goals from the field and three from the foul line for a total of 17 points. Reilly of Holy Cross scored eleven points, and Morris, Holy Cross, and McNulty, Yale, each accounted for ten. One man from each team was removed from the game because of the maximum number of personal fouls.

Both Yale and Tufts used ten men in the first game. In the second each side used only six, the centers being replaced because of personal fouls.

THREAD CITY COLLEGIANS AT TAFTVILLE TONIGHT

The Willimantic Collegians will be the attraction at Parish hall, Taftville, this evening when they come to try conclusions with the local Taftville team in what should be one of the best games of the season. This game was first scheduled for Tuesday night but was postponed on account of bad weather and the traveling conditions. The Willimantic team comes to Taftville with a number of wins during the holiday season and feel sure that they can accomplish what no other visiting team has yet done, and that is to get a win over the Celtics.

The Willimantic team is picked from all college stars who are now on a vacation in their home town and have been practicing hard in an effort to snatch a victory over the Celtics. They will be represented by Sam Heller of Brown, H. Heller also of Brown, Haggerty of New York Phamaceutical college, Davis, former Boston college star and now of the navy, Simmonds of Dartmouth, "Red" Heller, coach at Hope high school at Providence and Eddie Nichols, captain of Windham high school. This team as noted includes three of Heller brothers, who are to tackle the Academy team later in the week.

Not to be outdone by this team, the Celtics put in a hard practice last night and were then declared to be in fine form for this game. They will send in their strongest lineup in an effort to get a victory over the college stars. The Taftville Boys will go on the floor in the following order: Mondi Normandin, Rabbit Gauthier or Joe Belair, local all around athlete, at the forward positions, with Les Pingree at the tap-off, while the guard positions will be picked from Walt Coady, Eccleston and George Coleman. This is by far the strongest lineup to represent the Celtics this season and it is hoped that the local fans will turn out and lend their support for the popular indoor sport. Pops Melody Boys, that well known orchestra, will also be on hand to render the music for the dancing which is to follow the game. The preliminary will be between the Nordics and the P. W. C. in the second game of the three cornered series for the junior championship of the village.

UPSETS FEATURE DAY'S PLAY IN JUNIOR TENNIS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Upsets today gave the National Indoor junior and boys tennis championships added interest of unexpected competition as slates were cleared in the lower brackets.

The first reversal in the junior division ricocheted from the capably handled racquet of Henry Johnson of Boston. In a slashing three set match he outsteadied Donald Strachan, of Philadelphia, protege of Bill Tilden, and aligned himself to meet Frank Shields of New York in the semi finals tomorrow.

In the other semi-final bracket, the vagaries of the seeding have operated to deprive Julius Seligson of New York, junior title defender, and Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore, last year's runner-up, of the possibility of another set-to in the finals. They clash tomorrow for the right to meet Shields or Johnson in the title match.

With the Baltimore ace's brother Billy scooming through the boys' division there was a possibility that both titles would come to rest on the Jacobs hearth. Billy has yet to meet Sydney Wood of New York, and if he survives that, Warren F. Coen of Kansas city or Henry Clabaugh, a fellow Baltimorean.

SPEAKER'S ATTORNEY DOES NOT CREDIT WEST

CLEVELAND, Dec. 29.—(AP)—William K. Boyd, attorney for Tris Speaker, gives credence to the statement in Detroit today by Fred O. West, Employe at the Tiger baseball field, that the wagers for "Dutch" Leonard and Joe Wood on which the recent baseball scandal hinged, were placed on a horse race and not on a ball game.

"I cannot reconcile West's statement with those made to me that I know are truthful testimony," Boyd declared.

LATZO MATCHED TO FIGHT ONE-STEP WATSON

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Pete Latzo, of Scranton, Pa., world's welterweight champion, today was matched to fight One Step Watson, Negro conter.er of Omaha, Neb., here Wednesday, Feb. 2. The bout will be at twelve rounds and the contract calls for both men to scale 147 pounds, the championship limit. Latzo's title thus will be at stake.

Watson has fought a draw with Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash., who recently knocked out Joe Dundee of Baltimore in one round.

COBB'S COUNSEL STARTS IMMEDIATE ACTION TO CLEAR NAME OF CLIENT

DETROIT, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Major developments in baseball's latest scandal centered, temporarily at least, in Detroit today as Ty Cobb came back to the scene of his years of diamond triumphs to ascertain whether legal means exist to exonerate him of the charge of "fixing" a game seven years ago. Accompanied by Joe Wood, former Cleveland pitcher who with Tris Speaker and "Dutch" Leonard were accused with the former Tiger manager, Cobb came to find virtually all local fandom with him in his effort.

Coincident with Cobb's arrival to confer with a prominent Detroit attorney, came a lengthy statement from Fred O. West, Navin field attendant, to the effect that the money he was delegated to bet on the game between Cleveland and Detroit on September 25, 1919 was wagered not on the game, but on a horse race. It was West who Leonard said was given the money to bet on the game.

Cobb came to Detroit to find that his attorney, James O. Murfin, regent of the University of Michigan and a former circuit judge had placed a ban on any talking by the former Tiger leader. He also found an organized movement under way to petition for a public hearing of the charges against him, Speaker and Wood. John D. Waltz, assistant prosecuting attorney, gathered a corps of high school boys together, intending to send them into office buildings to obtain 15,000 or more signatures to petitions for a hearing.

The petitions, addressed to the presidents of all American and National league clubs, ask that all evidence of the alleged conspiracy be presented at a public house hearing before a jury of 12 baseball sport writers to be selected by the club presidents and specify that no evidence be presented at the proposed hearing unless Cobb, Speaker and Wood "shall have the right to cross examine their accusers, expecially Hubert Leonard."

The petitions add that in the event Leonard fails to appear at the hearing, the club presidents should "forthwith publicly exonerate Cobb, Speaker and Wood."

West, in his statement absolved Cobb and Speaker of any wagering—either on the ball game or on the horse race. The bet on the game, West said was Leonard's idea but when Wood delivered the money to him West convinced Wood that a "hot tip" on a horse race should be played. Wood and West agreed, the latter said, to make good the bet if the horse lost. The urge to bet on the horse-race, West said, came out of the fact that "better odds" were obtainable. The horse, named by West as "Panaman" won, the Navin field attendant said, and he collected winnings on $400, all he was able to place with two bookmakers. The winnings he said, he handed over to Wood at the Michigan Central station here.

West said Leonard initialed the entire transaction, calling him to the Tiger club house here on September 24, the day before the alleged "fixed" game. Later, he said, Leonard advised him Wood would give him the money to bet the following morning. The money, West said, was handed to him in an envelope.

Attorney Murfin explained that he had admonished Cobb over the telephone at Cleveland this morning "not to talk." He also said he would have no statement to make himself until he had gone thoroughly into the "affair."

Murfin said he had no idea how Cobb's case could be approached in a legal way. "I believe Cobb to be honest," he said. "I have known him 20 years and in that time, I have found no reason to believe him otherwise. I will do everything in my power to preserve his integrity in the eyes of the public."

West's declaration, however that the money bet by him was placed on a "horse race" and not on the result of the Detroit-Cleveland ball game back in 1919 is a direct contradiction of testimony he gave before Commissioner Landis to whom he admitted that money was placed on the baseball contest.

There was no statement forthcoming from Commissioner Landis' office today on this newest turn of events. Examination of the testimony made public, by Landis, however, revealed the following:

"Q (by Landis)—There has been testimony given here today to the effect that a bet was made on that game; did you have anything to do with that bet?"

"A (by West)—Yes, sir."

"Q—Just what?"

"A—I placed the money; I placed the bets."

Dutch Leonard's denial that he sold the letters written by Cobb and "Smoky" Joe Wood to the American league is in conflict with a statement made by Henry Killilea, of Milwaukee, attorney for the American league who admitted a week ago today that he had settled the claim of Leonard's against the Detroit club last June and negotiated the sale of the letters to the American league.

WEST BET ON HORSE INSTEAD OF BALL GAME

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Panaman the horse Fred West, baseball park attendant, said he waged upon with money originally intended for a bet on the alleged "thrown" baseball game, won the first race at the Aqueduct track Thursday, September 25, 1919, records kept here showed today. The first and highest odds quoted by oral wagerers at the track were three to one. Before the race Panaman had been backed down to 13 to 5. Odds quoted against him to place, or run second, were four to five, and to show, or run third, were two to five.

There is no way of ascertaining the "handbook" odds, which West said he accepted. The usual practice is to shade the odds quoted at the track, the smaller price being paid immediately upon telegraphic report of the race result, without permitting the handbook man to hold wager overnight for official verification next day.

COWELL ELECTED HEAD OF COACHES ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—William H. Cowell of the University of New Hampshire today was elected president of the American Football Coaches' association, succeeding Gilmour Dobie of Cornell. W. W. Roper of Princeton was automatically advanced from second vice president to first vice president and Hugo Bezdek of Penn state to second vice president. John W. Wilce of Ohio state was reelected secretary and treasurer.

Trustees chosen were Fielding H. Yost of Michigan, William A. Alexander of Georgia Tech, Ben G. Owen of the University of Oklahoma and John F. Meehan, New York university.

Eight of nine district representatives were elected, the first district place not being filled as the nomination offered by the nominations committee was of a coach not now active. This place will be filled by presidential appointment.

The district reperesentatives named were Charles F. Crowley, Columbia university; William Raferty, Virginia Military institute; David B. Morey, Alabama Polytechnic institute; H. O. Page, Indiana university; O. M. Solem, Drake university; Ray Morrison, Southern Methodist university; E. L. Romeny, Utah Agricultural college; W. H. Spaulding, University of California, southern branch.

YANKS HAVE PRE-SEASON SCHEDULE OF 21 GAMES

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A 1927 spring training schedule of 21 exhibition games, including nine with their world's series rivals, the St. Louis Cardinals, was announced today by the New York Yankees.

After coniests March 26 at Avon park and March 28 at St. Petersburg, Fla., the Yankees and Cardinals will start their northward tour. April 1 at Jacksonville and play on successive days at Savannah, Montgomery, Atlanta, Knoxville, Chattanooga and Nashville.

Two games with Brooklyn, April 8 and 10, at Ebbets field, wind up the Yankee's pre-season competition.

Five games with the Boston Braves, four with the Cincinnati Reds and one with the Baltimore Orioles complete the schedule efective while the Yankees are making their training headquarters at St. Petersburg in March.

LEONARD REFUSES TO TALK ON WEST'S CLAIM

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Hubert B. (Dutch) Leonard refused to comment on Fred O. West's declaration today that he bet the money Leonard and Wood put up on a horse race instead of the ball game on Sept. 25, 1919.

"There is nothing I can say regarding that," Leonard said. "It sounds to me like a laugh."

Leonard insisted that everything he had for the public was contained in his official statement released for publication last night.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By the Associated Press)

The New Year's day football game at Pasadena this week recalls to Fielding H. Yost, Michigan coach, the fact that the first of these games never was finished. Michigan and Leland Stanford playing that game in 1902. The Wolverines "550 to 0" team left a temperature of 10 below zero to play at 86 above, used only eleven men in the game, won by 49 to 0 and agreed to Stanford's request to stop the contest with about ten minutes to go because the heat had affected the westerners.

The rules of golf have been printed in Spanish for the benefit of devotees of the ancient game in Mexico, where a half dozen clubs have formed a new association. A copy of the Mexican golf handbook received by the United States Golf association, reveals that the game first was played below the Rio Grande in 1899.

WOULD REPEAL FEDERAL INHERITANCE TAX LAW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Plans for concerned action by the majority of the state legislatures throughout the country, to demand of congress the repeal of the federal inheritance tax law were formulated today at a meeting of the national committee opposed to the tax. Representatives of 30 states attended.

Arthur A. Sherman, president protempore of the Rhode Island legislature presided.

The advance guard of a party of 40 Americans who are coming to Mexico to study the relations between this country and the United States arrived in Mexico City yesterday for a ten day conference with Mexican leaders, beginning January 1.

PLAINFIELD TOWNERS NOSE OUT SO. KINGSTON BY ONE POINT MARGIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The hottest contested basketball game ever witnessed in this section was played here tonight at the Plainfield Community house in which the Plainfield Town team were the victors over the South Kingston team by a score of 20 to 19 in their first game of the series. Such excellent teamwork and guarding were displaying during the game that all baskets were shot from the middle of the floor. The first half finished with the slight score of 10 to 7 in Kingston's favor but in the second half Plainfield rallied and tied the score.

The crowd which was the largest on record went wild during the last five minutes of play when the tally favored one side and then the other. The tie was finally broken when Normandin caged a foul and the slight advantage was maintained to the finish.

The second game of the series will be played with South Kingston here at Plainfield on January 12th. Next Wednesday the Middletown quintet will oppose the Town team.

In a fast preliminary the Buddies were given a stiff battle with Jake Wechslers five of Jewett City whose lineup was as follows: Dougherty, Prevost, Kelly, Vincent and Mercier. With the visitors leading all the game the Buddies scored several baskets in the final quarter making the score 20 to 10. The summary:

Among the after dinner speakers were Dr. Frederick L. Blair and Manager Pelly of Providence.

TOWN COUNCIL TO DENY PETITION OF THE BREENS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 29—In an executive session which followed the public hearing today on the matter of changing a residential area along the Westerly-Watch Hill highway between the Starling garage and Breen road to a business area, Westerly town council voted to deny the petition of John L. Breen and Thomas L. Breen. The council comprised present members of the Westerly highway commission and Westerly zoning commission.

When the council convened Council President John D. Nichols presided. Highway Engineer A. L. Leon read extracts from a previous conference with United States federal engineers of the war department concerning the application of Andrew W. Fisher several years ago to erect a building out over the Pawcatuck river, just to the north of the Broad street Pawcatuck river bridge; Maj. Peterson stated that the war department had ruled that since the dam below the bridge had gone out the channel above the bridge was declared navigatable. If anyone desired to build in these waters a certificate should first be obtained from the federal government; it was a serious matter to proceed without such a permit and might prove expensive. The government had said that if this permit of Fisher was granted, others up stream would be asked for. At that time Mr. Fisher withdrew his application. All of this had a bearing on the hearing which will take place in the council chamber next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when the U. S. Engineers office will hold a public hearing on the application of the Green stores to build out over the Pawcatuck river at the rear of the Alling block on High street. On the motion of Councilman Harry H. Coleman it was voted to have each of the Westerly bodies act individually in their treatment of the proposition at the hearing at that time.

President John D. Nichols, who was interested personally in the hearing on the application for a change in zoning at Watch Hill, where he conducts a fish market in the summer time, then retired from the chairmanship of the council session and Councilman Rogers E. Trainer presided.

Clerk Everett E. Whipple read the petition for amendment to Chapter 29, general ordinances, town of Westerly, 1925, entitled "Zoning."

Lewis J. Powers of Springfield, Mass. stated that he had heard no testimony in favor of the project. He stood in opposition, as it would hurt property. If a business area was established there it would bring rats, pollute the atmosphere, make additional noise and with the increasing demand for residential area near shore, it would be a mistake to change from a residential to a business area.

Henry L. Buddick said he was opposed to the proposition from the standpoint that it was opposed to the general principle of zoning. As the Starling garage was the only non-conforming property if anything should happen to it it could not be rebuilt and he cited a decision of the United States supreme court on this carving out of an area in one already established.

C. E. Cove of Beverly, Mass., who has built many Watch Hill houses, asked if there were any new suggestions or propositions to those already sent out by the Watch Hill Improvement society. Acting President Trainer told him there were none.

Clerk Whipple read communications to the council from Commander Archibald H. David of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. David C. Anderson, president of the Watch Hill Improvement society, in which no action was asked for by the council until Watch Hill interested people could be present to be heard, stating that the matter was too important for hasty dealing, closing with the statement that there was no need for commercial expansion at present.

(From Elton Parke of Chicago, president of the Misquamicut Golf club, came a letter that the amendment as asked for by the Breens be not granted. Parking cars was declared to be dangerous; the changes by Daniel Larkin at the Watch Hill bathing beach had caused Councilman Preston Nichols and Edwin Barber, Jr., ice cream manufacturer, to seek new locations off Bay street and the new locations as recommended by the Westerly zoning commission along Breen road, 150 feet distance from the Westerly-Watch Hill highway would take the automobile parking away from the traveled highway. Similar letters were read from Walter E. Hope of New York and Philip S. Stanley of New Britain.

Chairman Arthur L. Perry of the Westerly zoning board, which had recommended the new location along Breen road and which the Breen brothers had previously declared was not to their liking, read to the council from 20 letters received from Watch Hill people which had been directed to the zoning commission.

John L. Breen made an effort to speak and Frank Sullivan, a member of the zoning commission, told him "You're not the whole show now," which brought forth the rejoiner that Mr. Sullivan mind his own business. Among the letters read by Mr. Perry, F. K. Curtis of New York wrote that he was unalterably opposed to the Breen petition and that the prosperity of the town would be best served by the zoning commission's recommendation. John M. Goetchius of New York, president of the Napatree Corp., which has recently purchased Fort Mansfield at Watch Hill, favored removal of business from Bay street to other locations. Since the changes to the bathing beach become operative, the volume of traffic would increase on Fort road and approval was given to the Breen road location. Frank Hibbard of Chicago recommended the removal of business from Bay street and the placing of a tradesmen's clearing house for tradesmen's deliveries on the Breen sight to eliminate unnecessary truck traffic.

"J. Frank Eagle wanted business traffic kept off Watch Hill road, because of danger to children. John M. Goetchius in a personal letter recommended the location away from the Starling garage and said that a public spirited effort of some residents was appreciated in the long-cherished cleanup plan of Bay street and that he objected to a re-location on the west side of the Watch Hill road and that the Breen road location was most commendable.

George B. Smith of Philadelphia added the desire that signboards be kept off of property near Watch Hill. Others who approved the Breen road location were George Hewitt Myers of Washington, D. C., C. Bai Libme of New York, Mary S. W. Starr of Philadelphia, Mary B. Wall of Providence, George L. Babcock of Plainfield, N. J., A. Tingley Wall of Providence as well as Mrs. Davis C. Anderson.

Dr. John Champlin told the council that with his son he owned property across the highway from the Breen property named in the petition and declared that traffic congestion would grow and if the petition were granted it would not be fair to have business on one side of the street and on the other where his property was located restricted for residential uses. Mr. Powers asked if the Watch Hill highway petition was the only one being considered for action at the present meeting and was told it was.

John L. Breen addressed the council, declaring that no business was going down Breen road and that he owed nothing to Watch Hill people, whom he had been fighting for 25 years and that his land was bought and paid for. There would be no garages on Breen road. "I want you to understand that." His property at Watch Hill was a farm and there is no zoning board that is going to prevent him from keeping pigs, cows, etc., on it. He didn't depend on Watch Hill for a penny. A fish market (referring to Nichols' shop on Bay street), which didn't smell there now smells two miles in a new location. He understood zoning was to keep Italians from building on the road and when Bay street was cleaned up, no further building was to be allowed there. He said Watch Hill had no decent sidewalks and on Bay street, last summer you could have buried a dog. He had endeavored to keep Watch Hill from being a dirty dump and had opposed a fishmarket on the wharf as not "sanitation". He said they had a fire-house and engine but no whistle for an alarm, and an hour's talk at a fire district meeting had brought it no nearer. With the closing remarks, "Breen's road will never be disgraced by any garage!" the Messrs. Breen put on their coats and hats and left the council chamber; but just before this Thomas L. Breen also had declared his opposition to the plans of Watch Hill society.

Santo Gaccione, 35, of Marion avenue, was arraigned on complained of Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E.

E. J. DORSEY, FLORIDA, GIVES MOTHER POWER OF ATTORNEY, AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29—Edward J. Dorsey, of Florida, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Dorsey, of 33 Neptune avenue, has given his mother, Mrs. Charlotte W. Dorsey, power of attorney. The appointment is made that Mrs. Dorsey may represent her son and his interest in the estate of his grandfather, Peter F. Dorsey, which estate now is in course of litigation. Mrs. Dorsey is also trustee of the estate. The instrument was drawn Aug. 11, 1923, but its filing was delayed until this morning.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ACTS IN MATTER OF GROTON FERRY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29—The city council having extended the time within which the ferry between New London and Groton will be operated from January 1, to February 1, at the meeting of that body Monday night, the chamber of commerce, through its secretary, James G. Hammond, has appointed a committee of five members for the purpose of obtaining an expression of opinion from merchants as to the best course to pursue in the face of the proposed discontinuance of ferry service. The committee is F. LeRoy Harwood, Cornelius C. Costello, Edward S. Nellan, Louis Kaplan and Ludwig Mann. The members of the committee will interview merchants prior to February 1 and endeavor to obtain the views of the latter relative to what steps should be taken in the event of the ferry operation being discontinued. It is a known fact that if the ferry service is stopped, February 1, the merchants of New London will experience a falling off of business for much of the trade of residents of Groton, Noank, Mystic and Stonington, comes to this city, and for that reason New London merchants will undoubtedly desire the ferry service continued. The ferry has been operated at a loss since the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, donated the former railroad bridge to the state and the state in turn made it over for highway purposes free of toll, both to motorists and pedestrians. The town of Groton pays to the city 25 per cent of the deficit in the ferry operations and the city bearing the remaining loss. New London merchants have long advocated the "shop at home" policy, for at times considerable purchasing has been in Hartford and Providence, to say nothing of New York. It is reasonable to believe that the merchants will want anything done that will continue to bring patronage to New London, as is the case now, the residents on the east shore of the Thames spending much of their earnings in this city. The committee will report to the chamber at the earliest possible date, but if the city officials refuse to longer bear the burden of expense of operating and maintaining the ferry service it is hard to realize how that service will be continued. City officials contend that the merchants would not long operate their business at a loss and that they should not expect the city to do so.

Walter Post, of Brandegee avenue, Groton, who suffered concussion of the brain Christmas afternoon when the automobile he was driving and in which his son, Robert, and Frank Mather, George avenue, Groton, were passengers, overturned on Mallory Hill, Groton, was discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today. The Post boy is still a patient at Home-Memorial hospital suffering from lacerations of the face and the Mather boy was discharged from that hospital Tuesday.

Annie Sutsky has sold the dwelling house, corner of Shaw and Ann streets, to Barney Belgrad and David Wool.

Patrolman George Cockell has resumed his post as traffic officer, corner of State and Bank street, having been confined to his home on Brainard street, several days by illness.

Additional equipment has been provided at police headquarters in the placing of side-straps there for use on prisoners, the device being especially adaptable to persons who are given in charge of the police for transferring to the state hospital. The side-straps are placed around the body of the prisoner, the hands placed in pockets and strapped to the sides of the person in custody. The straps take the place of straight-jackets, which are only used in exceptionally violent cases.

Connecticut college music department is preparing for a series of concerts Director Frederic Weld promises some fine entertainments for the people of New London and Norwich.

It is understood that the H. Wales Lines company will be awarded the contract for the repair of the Second Congregational church, so badly damaged by fire in November. There was one New London bidder, it is understood, against the Lines company, but the contract went out of town. The Lines company has done a great deal of work in New London in recent years.

St. James' Episcopal Sunday school had its annual Christmas entertainment last evening. The weather was such that the attendance was limited. There was not a single name in the list of participants that brought to mind the early members of that church.

New London lodge of Elks has abandoned any formal observance of the passing of the year 1926. That is something unusual for that lodge, but as all things change it is perhaps natural that the custom of welcoming the new year among Elks should also be neglected.

There were but two cases to claim attention in the police court this morning, neither being of a serious nature. In one, drunkenness was alleged and not proven and in the other an infraction of the parking ordinance was claimed, but not established, so that no penalty was imposed.

Mrs. Jane Williams Hammond, 83, widow of Joseph R. Hammond, died last night. Her father was Mayor George Williams, who was chief of the volunteer fire department for several years. He established and maintained the leading bakery of the city at the corner of Green and Golden streets and did much to build up that particular section of the city. Mrs. Hammond's brother, George C. Williams, lived to be over 85 dying recently. Mrs. Hammond's life was one of usefulness and she had many friends throughout the city.

Hugh E. Kenyon, 49, died at Preston last night. He was the son of a well-known farmer and for many years was a peddler of vegetables in New London.

The family of Abraham Katz is changing its residence from East New London to Pearl street.

The street department has had laborers freeing the highways of an accumulation of ice today. The rain that came to the aid of the city Tuesday saved New London a considerable sum, for it cleared away snow that would have had to be removed by the aid of man-power. The month has brought severe weather to this section in greater degree than usual.

Edward Montgomery, 254 Huntington street, complained to the police this afternoon because of the actions of boys residing on Main street and Crystal avenue. The boys have been making it a practice late several afternoons of throwing fresh eggs against the Montgomery home, besides throwing the eggs at and hitting Montgomery's little daughter, for what reason Montgomery doesn't know. He states that the eggs had undoubtedly been stolen from a nearby store and than his residence and girl were picked out as targets. Montgomery said that he would secure the names of the offending boys and produce them at police headquarters tomorrow.

Arthur Quintilian of 131 Blydenberg avenue; Mrs. Frank Cooney and twin daughters, 37 Eastern avenue, and Frank Garabaldi, 6 Central avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

David Tannock of Stuyvesant, N. Y., formerly of New London, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. John Williams, Willetta avenue. Mr. Tannock was employed as foreman baker at the C. D. Boss Cracker shop, when that industry was flourishing years ago.

Miss Gertrude Thompson is entertaining Miss Dorothy Durst of Springfield, Mo.

Hibbard N. Alexander of the firm of White & Alexander, was a business visitor in Hartford today.

Harold Cooper Zicky of Hartford and Miss Nellie E. Shuman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Shuman, 41 Spring street, were married in the ball room of the Crocker house Sunday night by Rabbi Wolf Roggin, in the presence of a large assemblage of guests. Samuel Rome of Hartford was best man and Miss Betty Siegal of New York was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Viola Rosenberg of Norwich; Miss Nellie Waldber, Goshen, N. Y.; Miss Sophia Marcus, New York, and Miss Ludwick, Springfield, Mass. Upon the conclusion of a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Zicky will reside at 51 Acorn street, Hartford, where Mr. Zicky is in the milk pasteurizing business.

Mayor and Mrs. William C. Fox and son, William C. Fox, Jr., were in New Haven today.

The funeral of Caroline Anderson, widow of Frederick Bittere, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her residence, Quaker Hill, Waterford. The services were conducted by Rev. Herbert B. Hutchins, pastor of Quaker Hill Baptist church. The bearers were Hanson Shields, John Ashcraft, Frederick Schofield and Lawrence Eldridge. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

The A. Watchinsky store on Bank street has been purchased by Wilinsky & Berwisht, Flanders merchants. Mr. Berwisht, with his family, will shortly move to this city.

New Year's celebrations bid fair to be numerous as arrangements are being made for welcoming in the New Year and bidding farewell to the old. At several of the hose houses merry-making will be the order, with music and sociability. At several of the dance halls elaborate events will take place, while at the hotels dancing will be the popular form of diversion. The churches in several instances are planning watch-meetings, with services preceding the passing of the old year. Midnight performances will be given at three New London theatres and as a rule the playhouses are filled on such nights.

The vast accummulation of Christmas mail having been started from the post office to its destination and with almost normal conditions prevailing, the local post office force is again in the height of a rush with the handling of thousands of postal cards and other remembrances of the New Year. The clerks will welcome the passing of the old year for that will mean a great let-up in letter and postal mail.

Several New London young men have been thrown out of employment by the abandonment of the automobile by the American Tobacco company as a method of transportation about th estate by salesmen. As a Christmas present the employes of the tobacco company received the notice of their services no longer being required and the automobiles that they used are being sold, it is said, at a sacrifice. One automobile here, a Ford, was sold today for $200 and the purchaser stated that he could realize a profit of that amount because of the condition of the auto and the accessories that had been added.

At supper there was a large cake which had been baked by Mrs. Mary Cozens and which was served with ice cream.

LIBERTY HILL

The Christmas entertainment, including a loaded tree, was held at the church Friday evening. Although the weather was bad and traveling very slippery the children got there and gave an excellent concert. Their singing and recitations were very good. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Caples sang a duet and Mrs. E. E. Caples sang a solo. Each child had gifts and all had boxes of candy, an orange and pop corn ball. Mrs. E. C. Payson had charge of the program. Rev. L. L. Harris gave a pleasing talk to the children. The superintendent, John Clarke, announced the numbers and spoke. Mrs. C. B. Adams was pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hoxie spent the holiday with Mr. Hoxie's sister, Mrs. Fred Manning and family at Norwich.

No service was held in the church Sunday as it was too stormy to venture out in the snow storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Choquette entertained their son and daughter and families of Southington from Friday until Sunday. They went home in the big storm. They were four hours coming instead of two, the usual time, as it was so icy.

Miss Sarah S. Clarke is visiting her daughter and the latter's family in New Britain.

The meeting and roll call of Exeter, Liberty Hill church is to be held Saturday, at 1:30 p. m. at the church rooms.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

The five act vaudeville bill at the Palace, promises to please the most sceptical. The general public opinion as regards the class of shows at the Palace, seems to agree that there is none better. The Filipino Ramblers, presenting "a coctail of melody and dance," is not a prelVoistead coctail, but will no doubt have the same effect. Jones and Jones will keep you laughing for fifteen minutes, and that is a fact; Neilson and Warden in their offering of comedy, songs and chatter, promise to more than fulfill their end of the program; Moran and La Burt, will offer songs and dances de luxe; Dallas Trio have a novelty surprise that will be a sensation. All in all looks like a sure fire bill.

She watched an airplane dropping samples, got one, found a passage to Paris enclosed, and set out for Gay Paree. That's the way Bebe Daniels' new Paramount farce, Stranded in Paris, which opened at the Palace theafter this afternoon starts.

But everything goes wrong on the other side. Her purse is stolen and she fails to meet her wealthy admirer. Knowing ladies must live she starts working for a fashionable modiste. Delivering some gowns in Deauville, the inevitable happens. Bebe's identity is mistaken, and she is shown to the rooms of the Countess Pasada.

The real Count finds a beautiful girl posing as his wife. Bebe fails to get out but locks him in. The following morning, her fiance arrives to discover Bebe involved in a questionable escapade. He sees her leaving the count's room, whereupon she ducks into another where—!

Stranded in Paris is undoubtedly the best comedy Miss Daniels has yet made. And, as she is unquestionably the screen's cleverest comedienne, nothing more need be said. James Hall, Ford Sterling and Iris Stuart head the supporting cast. Arthur Rosson drew a directorial plum when he got this one.

The German Police dog puppy will be given away free tonight. This cute little animal was bred at the Chase Cliff kennels in Norwich.

Breed Theater

Forever After, First National picture starring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, which will open at the Breed theater today is a romantic tale of the love affair between a New England belle and the son of the town's impecunious lawyer.

Their romance ilits through the adolescence of high school, the gay days of college and finally crashes to a dramatic climax in a battle-scarred hospital of war time France.

Mary Astor lends her graceful beauty to the leading feminine role. Lloyd Hughes gives a vigorous portrayal of the ambitious young lover who seeks to win fresh laurels for his love on the football field and battlefield.

The supporting cast presents a wealth of well known screen names, including Alec Francis, the ever lovable character actor of First National; David Torrence, Hallem Cooley, the charming Eulalie Jensen and Lila Leslie.

In addition, the picture has the unusual distinction of showing the crack University of Southern California football team in action as part of the sequence. Several of these young collegians screened so well and showed such camera presence they were given minor roles in the rest of the story.

The combination of splendid photography by Karl Struss, and truly artistic and beautiful technical settings that utilize to their fullest advantage the great variety of backgrounds of the story, are other factors that make Forever After a real entertainment treat of popular appeal.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Elks' New Year's Frolic

All preparations for the annual Elks' New Year's party which will be held in the club house on Main street have been completed and all that remains now to be done is to count the slow passing of the hours until the arrival of Friday evening.

The hall has been prettily trimmed under the direction of the committee and arrangements made for one of the most tuneful and jazziest orchestras for the furnishing of the music for the evening's galety.

A bounteous and tasteful lunch has been selected and favors for the ladies will be distributed during the evening. The vaudeville will be of the best and taking the list of entertainment as a whole it bids fair to be one night of constant enjoyment.

The committee who have charge of the evening's entertainment have already furnished several evenings of enjoyment for the members of the Norwich Lodge of Elks and they have set out to make this evening stand out head and shoulders above any of the previous entertainments they have arranged.

The sale of tickets to members has progressed nicely, but there are only a limited number left now and those who want to make reservations should do so at once, as none will be sold after the limit is reached.

In charge of the New Year's party are the following Elks, Brothers James Egan, Ralph Patrick, Walter Carrigan, John Thoma and William Enos. Music will be furnished by D'Atri's orchestra which will be conducted by Brother D'Atri and he has arranged a special programme for the evening.

Broadway Theatre

An all powerful and forceful New Year's program opens a three day engagement at the Broadway theatre today.

Five unusual Keith-Albee acts are scheduled. They have been chosen purely for their entertaining value, therefore a show that every man, woman and child will greatly enjoy.

Whirring dynamos, humming generators, dangerous high tension wires and electrical factors form the unusual background for the plot of the latest Gotham production, "The Silent Power," which, with Ralph Lewis in the stellar role, comes to the Broadway theatre today.

It is claimed by the producers that this is the first time that electricity itself had formed the basis for a screen plot and one does not require a very vivid imagination to realize the possibilities of the subject.

Many unusual dramatic situations are disclosed in this picture which is staged in and around one of the largest hydro-electric plants in the U. S.

In the supporting cast will be found Ethel Shannon, Charles Delaney, Vadim Uraneff and many other prominent screen artists.

Notice is also called to the Midnight Show of vaudeville and pictures to take place at this theatre New Year's eve starting at 11 p. m. and concluding at 1 a. m.

(STERLING HILL)

Mrs. Gilbert Randall and Miss Ella Gardner attended the funeral of a friend in New London last week.

A pleasing program of songs and recitations was given by the Sunday school children in the church at Sterling Hill Friday evening, under the direction of Mrs. Jane Randall and Mrs. Hilliard. Santa Claus was present and distributed the gifts from a well-laden tree.

E. A. Douglas and daughter, Florence, left last week for New London, to spend Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frink, after which they will visit for a while with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Byles in New York before going to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. John Frink and Mrs. Byron Gallup were guests Christmas day of Clark Gallup and family at Moosup.

Mrs. Mary Freeman, Edward and Bertha Freeman spent Christmas at Olin Potters in Moosup.

Mrs. George Kenyon entertained a large company Christmas day.

Mrs. George Gallup is visiting her son, Carl, and his family in Plainfield. She will soon leave to join her husband in Florida.

Word was received here Monday morning of the death of Mrs. Parmelia Watson at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Bucklyn in Mystic. She was tenderly cared for by her four daughters during her weeks of suffering. She was a former resident here, where many friends mourn the loss of a kind neighbor. Notwithstanding her advanced age she was interested in the affairs of her family and always ready to greet friends cordially and give aid wherever needed. She was a sincere Christian and ready to go. A private funeral was held Wednesday. Burial is to be at the convenience of the family.

Miss Margaret Libby is spending Christmas recess at her home in Grey, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tanner and son, Francis, spent Christmas with George Tanner and family.

MOHEGAN

Mr. and Mrs. Nonsuch, of Hartford, spent Christmas day at the Mathews home.

Miss Gladys Tanta-Quidgeon has returned to Philadelphia, after spending Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Quidgeon.

Julian Harris of Hartford, called on friends here Christmas day.

Dawley, Thomas Tornowsky, Town of Colchester and Walter D. Brockett, Continuance and Second Order of Notice.

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss Norwich, December 17, 1926.

Upon the complaint of the said Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company, Trustee, claiming foreclosure of mortgaged premises in the town of Colchester in said County, brought to the Superior Court to be holden within and for the County of New London on the first Tuesday of September A. D. 1926, it appearing to and being found by the subscribing authority that the above named defendants, Joseph W. Pincus, Brackett, Shaw & Lunt and Paramount Radio Corporation, were not inhabitants or residents of this state at the commencement of this action and have not appeared or answered thereto, said action is continued and postponed for a period of three months from this date, and it is hereby directed that notice of the pendency of the action be given to said defendants by publication in the Norwich Bulletin of Norwich, Connecticut, once a week for two weeks, successively, commencing on or before the 24th day of December, 1926.

And it also appearing to and being found by the subscribing authority that the defendant, Walter D. Brockett has not appeared or answered to this action and is now residing at 34 Foxon Street, New Haven, Connecticut.

Therefore, ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given said Walter D. Brockett by some proper officer leaving a true and attested copy of this order of notice and of the complaint in this action with said Walter D. Brockett or at his usual place of abode on or before the third day of January, 1927, and return make to this court.

By order of Court.

Brown, in a special session of Third District court Wednesday, before Judge Oliver H. Williams charged with a violent assault of Rose Simone, Monday last. Gaccione was taken into custody Tuesday on a warrant by Westerly Police Officers Michael Curtin and LeRoy H. Norman.

Gaccione pleaded not guilty and was released on $1,500 bail for appearance in the regular Friday session of the Third District court. The assault was reported to have been taken place on Oak street.

Miss Dominica Terranova of Oak street was operated on at the private hospital Wednesday. James Tasca of Pawcatuck and Miss Grace Turano of Westerly have been discharged from the hospital recently.

Funeral service for Rosario Castagna, 80, were attended by numerous relatives at his home, 42 Garden street, Pawcatuck, at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. At 9 o'clock a high mass of requiem was celebrated in St. Michael's church by Rev. J. F. X Quinn, who also read the committal service at St. Michael's New cemetery. The floral tributes were beautiful. The bearers were Dominic Dolce, Rosario Dolce, Joseph Tasco, Joseph Cristino, Thomas Castagna and John Cristino.

William H. Lugar, who died Christmas morning at his home, 29 Prospect street, Pawcatuck, was the son of John C. and Sophia J. Lugar and was born at Sag Harbor, L. I., May 3, 1851. As a young lad he served on a revenue cutter and from 1871 to 1880 was assistant keeper of the lighthouse on Montauk Point. Oct. 7, 1876, he married Ellen Louise Shaw of Sag Harbor, who died Jan. 9, 1918.

In 1882, two years after leaving the U. S. Lighthouse service, Mr. Lugar moved with his family from Sag Harbor to White Rock. Later they came to Pawcatuck, first residing on Mechanic street and later on Prospect street. Mr. Lugar was employed at the plant of C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co. from 1884 until February, 1924, when he was stricken with a shock. Since last July he had been confined to his bed. The deceased leaves three daughters and a son, Miss Mary Lugar, George Lugar and Mrs. Minerva Burdick, all of Pawcatuck, and Mrs. Alice Sisson of Hebronville, Mass. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ella Lane and Mrs. Bella Rackett, both of Shelter Island Heights, N. Y., and leaves nine grandchildren. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, 29 Prospect street. Rev. Byron U. Hatfield officiated. Burial was in River Bend cemetery. The bearers were, William Potter, Edson White, Harry Geary, Andrew Fallon, Alonzo Peabody and George Winterbotton.

Having completed Wednesday afternoon the work of shipping the 400 horse-power DeHaviland airplane, in which Lieut. William G. Manley, U. S. M. C., of Fall River, Mass., and Lieut. John M. Sheehan of Boston, Mass., crashed on the Perry G. Hoxie farm in Charlestown, R. I., Christmas eve, when en route from Quantico, Va., to Boston, Lieut. Manley left Westerly on the Federal express Wednesday evening to return to Washington, D. C.

Miss Helen Keenan, a student nurse at the Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, returned to that city Wednesday after visiting with relatives and friends in Westerly.

Lewis J. Powers of Springfield, Mass., a summer resident at Watch Hill, occupying "Windover" cottage on the Westerly-Watch Hill road, which was moved bodily to that location from Springfield, returned to his Massachusetts home Wednesday afternoon. He attended the Westerly town council hearing on the petition to change the Westerly zoning ordinance to make a business area out of a residential area near his Watch Hill home.

Miss Elsie Jessup of Westerly has been a vacation visitor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Jessup, at Wareham, Mass.

Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck held its 543rd stated communication Wednesday evening, when the newly elected master, W. George A Stillman and associate officers worked the entered apprentice degree on a class of candidates.

STRUCK BY AUTO-TRUCK, MRS. ALBERT BARNES DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 29.—Mrs. Eunice F. Madison Barnes of Westerly, while alighting from an electric car in Pawtucket, R. I., this evening at 5:30, was struck by an auto-truck and died from the injuries received. She was returning from her employment at the city home and following the accident was taken to the Memorial hospital, Pawtucket.

Mrs. Barnes was well known in Westerly as a pastry cook, where she had been employed in a number of restaurants and has been employed in Pawtucket for about two years. She was born in Exeter, R. I., June 19, 1878, daughter of Albert and Hannah Andrews. Besides her husband, Albert Barnes who resides on the Shore road, Mrs. Barnes is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Brown, who resides with her father, and Mrs. Henry Miller of Worcester, Mass.

a successful Boy Scout programme as applied to Norwich or elsewhere. As a matter of fact, I am sure every one of the executive council who has kept in touch with our own status will agree that there is no definite ratio between the increase of enrollment and the development of a scout programme. It is my conviction that we are a very considerable distance from having a real Boy Scout programme in effect in our community and I can explain this situation in no more definite way than by calling your attention to the serious handicap we work under by reason of our lack of troop leadership in sufficient numbers as to attack a real Boy Scout programme and put it through.

Several of our troops are doing well. This appears to be the case in the Taftville section and Troop No. 1, both of these units are not only growing numerically but are growing consistently in scout work. The Norwich Town troop, Troop No. 20, has been growing in numbers due in part to the work of the troop committee in that section, in part to the enlargement of their shack, giving them now the most ideal location and conditions for boys' work, and in part to the devotion of their scout master, whose faithful work has done much to keep the boys together. A new troop at St. Joseph's church got under way with a rush, and appears to have the edge on our other troops in numbers. I understand they have a full troop of 32 boys. Troop No. 12 has had a year of progress despite the fact that their scout master had to resign to take up his work in another city. In the meantime, Victor Davis, from the Taftville troop has co-operated splendidly in keeping Troop No. 12 together.

The West Side troop like some of the other troops needs leadership of a more technical character than can be extended by their leader with the burdens of his regular work heavy upon him. It is a fine tribute to Boy Scout ideals, this holding on despite the handicap of time and opportunity to delve into the real work of scouting, and we are thankful for the loyalty of this leadership. The spirit evidenced by Father Reilly in connection with St. Patrick's troop has been commendable. For the first time, the boys from this troop participated in the regular summer camp of this council and I certainly hope and know I express your unanimous opinion also, that the experience of this season may encourage a continuance of this co-operation. We have organized a Sea Scout troop during the year and I trust Mr. Craven will give you a report upon this novel and interesting unit of scouting.

The report of our treasurer, will at once show you the economy with which we have worked. Our budget for this year was smaller than last year and for as many reasons as all of could conjure up, we did not raise sufficient funds to meet our original plans. The financial campaign upon recommendation of the financial committee and the executive council was carried on last spring very quietly, at that time it seemed the politic thing to do. While contributions for the year may not be sufficient for the needs of the council we shall close the year with our bills paid.

During the year your president has visited several councils in other cities generally in company with the executive. This work took us to the camp of the Middlesex and the New Britain councils and near at hand to the fine new lay-out of the New London council at Gardners Lake. We had excellent co-operation of this and the Middlesex county council during the year, and I would especially thank Mr. Woodworth, president of the New London council for his readiness to help us from time to time. Scout Executive Fowler of Middletown has also been much to assist us. We appreciate his helpfulness. We have had a closer co-operation from the regional director's office in Boston this year, both Mr. Converse, the director, himself, and Mr. Severance, his deputy having stepped right up and assisted generously on our plans and our incoming executive council may feel themselves fortunate over the boost these higher officers have agreed to give during 1927.

The Old Scouts' camp of 1926, composed entirely of our business men, was a good beginning of a worthy adjunct to this council and I could ask for no better development of interest in Boy Scout work than lies potentially in this body of 30 odd men who were our original Old Scouts. What a fine place in 1927 to develop a camp committee.

This council and city at large are beholden to Arthur L. Peale who as a member of the executive body of the Norwich organization and leader of Troop No. 1, has been consistent in his scout loyalty for 15 years. We are indebted to John J. O'Rourke who as chairman of the financial committee has worked hard for this body. We are indebted to Arthur E. Story, who as treasurer of the council has handled the monies faultlessly. We are indebted to George H. Young, who as a member of this council has been vigorous in his work for the scouts. We are indebted to Dr. R. R. Agnew, who has never failed to show his interest in substantial ways when his practice permitted it. Henry D. Johnson has fulfilled his secretaryship commendably. We are greatly indebted to Dr. F. S. Wilcox for a substantial help during the year particularly as it involves Troop No. 20. The generosity of the Norwich Electric Co., the Norwich gas and electric department, Harold D. Larrabee, Lewis M. Carpenter, Weston C. Pullen and Jacob Sloaberg, are inspiring illustrations of the interest we have in Boy Scout work in Norwich.

The Norwich Belting company made a fine contribution of leather trimmings during the year and this material will save us a substantial sum when our programme reaches the leather craft stage. Nathan A. Gibbs attended the national conference in Washington at his own expense. The council is indebted to Mr. Gibbs for this contribution. Possibly the executive's report will thank those 50 odd friends who took between 200 and 300 boys to the Yale-Brown game last November, and the friends who took our boys to the pow-wow at Hartford. These are a few of the good works and I sincerely trust that the year 1927 under our new executive council and its leader, we may go on with ever increasing speed and thoroughness in this work for our community. Certainly no other similar work that I have been privileged to help in has been quite the inspiration that Boy Scout work has been and I am indebted to this council for the opportunity and the honor of acting as your president for the last two years.

In bringing my report to a close may I not direct your attention to one very important aspect of our scout programme, namely, the matter of a permanent site for the summer camp. Here is a matter about which revolves a large portion of our work. Thanks to our many good friends, the Briggs family of Voluntown, we have had free access to their property at Beach Pond for several years and unless some unforeseen calamity overtakes us, shall probably do so for years to come. Despite this very fine co-operation on the part of our benefactors we shall continue to be handicapped until we either own a site or have a long term lease. I say this because I am mindful of the offers this council has had this last year of permanent equipment. Had we been in a position to assure our very good friends of a permanency of location we might at this time be the proud possessors of as good a mess hall and cook shack fully equipped as any council in Connecticut can boast and I certainly hope that progress may be made in the coming year to bring about a situation which will make the receipt of such gifts possible.

RALLY IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, rallying sharply during the afternoon after an early period of weakness. In the absence of any news developments to explain the sudden up-swing in prices, Wall street was inclined to regard the recent reaction as a technical one designed to correct an obviously over-bought position. Early losses in many issues ran from 1 to 5 points, but most of these were substantially reduced, or wiped out, and in many cases converted into net gains ranging from fractions to points.

Speculators for the decline found plenty of ammunition for their attacks in the day's news, particularly the decline in freight car loadings for the week ended Dec. 18 compared with the corresponding week last year, the falling off in steel production reported by the weekly trade reviews and the publication of a bearish market forecast by a large investment firm, not a member of the New York stock exchange.

Money rates held relatively firm, but not general reduction is expected until after the turn of the year. While the volume of brokers' loans is causing uneasiness in some quarters, hope is still held out in others that the New York Federal Reserve bank, and others, will reduce their rediscount rates in January.

The recovery in prices was led by standard industrials, such as U. S. Steel common, General Motors, Allied Chemical, American Smelting and Baldwin, all of which closed 1 to 3 points net higher. The strong buying support forthcoming for these issues when bear traders renewed their attacks on the general list led to extensive short-covering in other quarters, some of it probably inspired by the belief that the reinvestment demand will act as a bullish influence.

Heavy accumulation of Hudson Motors, which closed nearly 3 points higher at 54 1-8, revived talk of possible mergers although details were lacking. Wall street was inclined to regard the bullish demonstrations in most of the other motors as the traditional "window dressing" on the eve of the opening of the New York Automobile Show. Rubber shares held up well despite the disappointing earnings report of the Fisk company, showing profits well below those of a year ago. Oils moved upward under the leadership of Marland and Union Oil of California.

Rails advanced with the industrials, but the gains, as a rule, were small. Southern Railway was one of the outstanding active and strong features in that group.

Commodity prices were mixed. A further recession took place in wheat futures on selling inspired by doubts concerning the size of the world surplus of the commodity. Cotton and coffee prices were slightly better while raw sugar was unchanged.

Call money held steady at 5 1-2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone, with demand sterling quoted just around $4.86 and French francs around 3.95 1-3 cents. Other changes were nominal.

TAFTVILLE

Funeral services for Leonard Dupont were held at his late home on South A street Wednesday morning at 8:30, followed by a high mass sung at Sacred Heart church by the pastor, Rev. U. O. Bellerose. There was a large attendance. The bearers were John Bissonnette, Joseph Legare, Joseph Lague, Amede Pion, Joseph Fregeau and Amable Deslanes, and the honorary bearers were Treffle Parent and Oscar Archambeault. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike, where Rev. Father Bellerose read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The regular monthly meeting of the standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church was held Tuesday evening. George H. Young, the chairman presided. The committee took up the matter of the 1927 church budget, and also considered the nominations for church officers, which will be presented to the annual meeting of the church in January. Several bills were ordered paid, and other routine business was transacted.

E. Tracy Clark of Boston, a former Taftville resident, was in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles Meyer, of New Brunswick, N. J., spent the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Seidel and family of Providence street.

Because of the great number of whooping cough cases in the village, the Taftville chapter, American Red Cross has arranged another free clinic for this (Thursday) afternoon at the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. At the past two clinics, a great many took advantage of the opportunity to consult the attending physician and the nurses in charge, and 67 children have been treated with the whooping cough serum.

PRETTY COSTUME PARTY AT WAUREGAN HOTEL

Mrs. Edward Andrews gave a costume party for her children's dancing classes Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel. The ball room was tastefully decorated and with the beautiful costumes, colored streamers and rose petal made a charming scene.

One of the prettiest parts of the program was given by the kindergarten class. Its charming costume they gave the following dances by Chalif:

Lady Crinoline (Hollander); Flower Babies (Gillet); Grieg's Bird Nest. The advanced class gave the following numbers: Waltz, fox trot, Paul Jones, Lancers, Irish Lilt, minuet, Swiss Mountaineer and Valencia.

This class also gave several beautiful exercises for technique by Chalif, a Myrtle Fuller dance with unusual grace and charm, Sharing and Evelyn Durbeck interpreted with child like simplicity Chalif's Cupid.

There was a prettily decorated tree with a gift for each member of the class. Dainty refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The misses are preparing an afternoon of Grieg sometime in February.

COOKING CLASS LESSON DEVOTED TO BUDGET TALK

Thirty-five housewives at the lecture room of Norwich Gas & Electric dept. Wednesday afternoon, were given a practical talk on the advantages of a budget, by the home service expert. Miss Gladys L. Peckham. Her emphatic advice was to keep an accurate record of all expenditures, to make a budget without delay, and to pay bills promptly.

The earnest advice made a deep impression upon the class members. Miss Peckham having many questions to answer. So anxious is she to promote this valuable form of economising that she is to devote the coming Friday afternoon to talking over the plan with any woman who cares to make a personal appointment to consult her. This conference will be strictly confidential.

The budget system is devised to enable householders to spend their money more wisely, and is valuable for families of any size.

Monday evening of this week Miss Peckham's class was given an interesting lesson on desserts, making pineapple charlotte, chocolate blanc mange, snow pudding and boiled custard.

I. O. O. F. AUXILIARY ENDS SERIES OF WHIST PARTIES

The final of a series of whists conducted by Rose of New England auxiliary, No. 40, I. O. O. F., was held Wednesday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel. The prizes winners were Mrs. Fred Bermann, first, Mrs. Casper Graff, second and Mrs. Benjamin Lahn, third. The hostesses were Mrs. Abraham Curland and Mrs. Alexander Pasnik.

The honest theatrical manager believes that every man is entitled to a show for his money.

ASKS RE-ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES FOR LAND TAKEN FOR HIGHWAY

He was badly injured and incapacitated from pursuing his duties as a house painter.

HEBREW ASSOCIATION TO ELECT OFFICERS NEXT MONTH

The Norwich Hebrew Benevolent association held its annual meeting at the High street synagogue, Dec. 23. Abner Schwartz who has been the president of the association since its organization presided. Important matters were discussed at the meeting and amendments to the by-laws were considered and voted upon.

The following board of directors was elected for the coming year: Abner Schwartz, A. Ableman, Max Stamm, A. H. Manes, H. Ragovin, Jacob Wechsler, L. Schachter, Morris Sussman, Jacob Bucovetsky, Kive Swartsburg, Sam Taylor, D. Nowick, Jacob Sears, N. Swartzburg, Alec M. Paanik.

Secretary A. H. Manes made a financial report for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1926, same being approved by the finance committee, consisting of Abner Schwartz, president, Morris Sussman and A. Ableman.

An address made by President Schwartz was received with considerable favorable comment by the members present.

At a meeting of the board of directors to be held in the latter part of January, election of officers for the coming year will take place. After a very interesting meeting the members adjourned to the banquet hall and enjoyed the refreshments prepared by the entertainment committee.

"WET" DRIVERS WHO HAVE LOST LICENSES

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are 20 names on the list. Two cases were appealed. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles:

Adam Cernauskas, Waterbury; John Derlaga, Bridgeport; Flory J. Fay, Glastonbury; William Hayne, New London; Archibald McArthur, Monroe; Edward Moore, Garden City, L. I.; John Narsis, Bristol; Albert D. Newton, Woodbridge; Richard Olsen, Hartford; Haywood Penny, Stamford; Albert E. Sturgeon, Plainville; Henry H. Taft, Stamford; Charles Thompson, West Haven; Harry Venker, Waterbury; Nick Wawruk, Glastonbury; Otto Wiesach, Groton; Wales A. Wilcox, Warehouse Point; E. T. Wilson, New Haven; Joseph W. Wootteon, Danbury; Leo Zyjewski, New Britain.

JEWETT CITY MAN HEADS BIG CONCERN

Nine years ago last April two brothers, Shepherd and Arnold Brown, sons of the late Fred S. Brown of Jewett City, went to Malden, Mass., and started the business of "The Multiple Winding Co." Shepherd learned the business in the A. B. Burleson Co. in Jewett City, where he worked for 13 years.

Three years ago he severed his connection with the Multiple Winding Co. for another position. His place as general manager was filled by Frank Upton of Providence, R. I. Today Arnold, the younger of the brothers, succeeds Mr. Upton as manager of the entire plant which has been steadily growing larger.

WILL OBSERVE 10TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY THIS EVENING

Mr. and Mrs. L. Andrew Reinhard of Englewood, N. J., and fifty of their friends will join with them at a dinner and dance, this Thursday evening in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary. The dinner and dance will be given by the Architectural league of West 57th street, Englewood. Mrs. Reinhard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rush of No. 283 West Main street this city.

URGES MUNICIPAL ATHLETIC FIELD FOR NORWICH

Need of a municipal athletic field and more municipally owned playgrounds was forcibly brought before the members of the Norwich Rotary club at the weekly luncheon of the club Wednesday noon by William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the Norwich recreation commission, who was the speaker of the day.

In opening his talk Mr. Fitzgerald reviewed briefly the history of the playground and recreation movement in Norwich saying that prior to 1922 the playground movement was in the hands of a volunteer organization which depended largely on public contributions for the support of the work. In 1922 through the efforts of the chamber of commerce and Mayor Milo R. Waters the need of a more thorough organization was seen and a recreation commission appointed. There were seven members of the commission, four men and three women, all intensely interested in the welfare of the children of this community. The project was first viewed with apprehension by a large percentage of the people but the commission knew that it was needed and set to work to show just how much benefit was to be derived from an organized playground program in Norwich.

A superintendent of playground work, a man with much experience in this line, was secured and the work put on a systematic basis. A definite program was worked out and the city made an appropriation of $4,000 which was used for equipment and for 17 paid instructors.

There is one municipally owned playground and the rest are the school yards of the various schools. Using the school yards is not the idea of the commission as the majority think that it is imposing upon the good nature of the residents near the schools. The school yards are at the present time the only available places for the playgrounds. Hockey, baseball and basketball leagues are organized each year and the winners are awarded trophies at the close of the season. Besides the recreational part of the program there is instruction in many useful occupations taught at the grounds.

This year there was an attendance of 70,000 children at the playgrounds and at the Jail Hill grounds which were opened this year there was an average daily attendance of 150 children. Can you imagine the hours of worry that parents were relieved of when they realized their children were enjoying themselves with play the supervision? Such a work cannot be measured in money alone. At the end of the season there were picnics and a day's outing at the beaches for the children.

Now Norwich has no publicly owned grounds large enough for a regulation baseball diamond or running track in any central location. The Norwich Free Academy granted the use of the baseball diamond and track and the Duwell A. C. also gave the use of their field. Now it is understood that the athletic field has been taken away from the Duwell club after the members have spent their time and money in improving it. In my opinion said Mr. Fitzgerald, this land should be condemned by the city and taken as a public playground. I also would advocate making Hollyhock Island a municipal athletic field and then acquiring places in the city for playgrounds before every available place is taken. In Greeneville we are now without a playground as the owners of the property have taken it for their own use.

Mr. Fitzgerald urged the members of the Rotary club to lend their moral support in this matter and it was voted to have the boys' work committee of the club confer with the recreation committee to see if something could not be done. Mr. Fitzgerald's talk was heartily and enthusiastically received and he was accorded a rising vote of thanks.

At the business session President E. A. Harris presided and there were reports from the chairmen of the various committees. Charles R. Butts, chairman of the board of trustees of the John S. Blackmar fund, reported that the fund now amounted to $4,336. A. G. Bliven, chairman of the boys' work committee emphasized the boys' week that comes next May and said that his committee was even now planning for this week.

James L. Case, chairman of the public affairs committee in his report told of the part played by many Rotarians in the public benefits secured during the year. He mentioned the Thames river project, the Franklin street white way, the zoning plan and a number of other public affairs in which members of the club had been connected.

Charles W. Taggart, chairman of the program committee for January, announced his program as follows:

Jan. 5—Speaker, James P. Alexander, a member of the New Haven Rotary club, on White Coal. Song leader, H. S. Lyon.

Jan. 12—Speaker, Charles Clement Elwell, a member of the public utilities commission of the state of Connecticut. Song leader, James L. Case.

Jan. 19—Subject, Business Methods, in charge of James Roantree and the business methods committee. Song leader, John J. O'Rourke.

Jan. 26—Speaker, William E. Severence, deputy regional executive of the Boy Scouts of America. Song leader, Alfred Bliven.

WILL ENTERTAIN CHILDREN AT PALACE THEATRE

Plans for the annual New Year's free show for the poor children of the city, to be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Palace theatre, have been completed by the Lions club. This annual show has become a feature of the Lions' program and the members have joined enthusiastically into the plans for the affair.

Max Hanover is chairman of the committee, assisted by Louis Fontaine, Edward Carpenter and John Barry. George Madden is in charge of providing the candy for the children and Earl Taggart is in charge of transporting them to and from the theatre from the county home and Rock Nook home. Cars have been offered by Edward A. Rich, C. Edward Carpenter, Abner Schwartz, Earl Taggart, Louis Fontaine, Rudolph Henschel, Herbert Corey and Charles W. Taggart.

The feature of the show is to be Peter Pan, a picture loaned through the courtesy of the Paramount Co., and a comedy picture donated by the management of the Palace theatre, which has also loaned the use of the theatre and is to provide several vaudeville acts for the bill.

The Lions and management of the theatre look forward with pleasure to the good time they are to provide for the children and it is anticipated that there will be a large attendance.

NEW MEMBERS FOR MAYFLOWER SOCIETY

The board of assistants of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut held a meeting recently at the home of the governor, Edwin H. Bingham of Gillett street, Hartford. The following were unanimously elected to membership in the society: Miss Annie M. Ackerman, New London, 11th in descent from William Brewster; Mrs. James Van Deusen Reed, Waterbury, tenth from James Chilton; Mrs. Andrus Beers Trudgian, New York city, ninth from John Howland. The secretary, Miss Jane B. Watson, reported the loss by death of the following members: Captain Percy Coe Eggleston, New London, on Oct. 31; Mrs. John F. Arnold, New Haven, on Feb. 26; Carlyle Fuller Barnes, Bristol, April 4. The society now numbers 433 members. Mrs. George B. Kingsbury, former secretary of the society for several years, died on Christmas day.

WARNS AGAINST BUYING FROM UNKNOWN SALESMEN

Be loyal to Norwich, always buy at home, says the current monthly membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, mailed Wednesday to the chamber members. During last October, certain traveling jewelry salesmen "worked" Norwich, the letter says. To what extent we were "worked" is not known. These salesmen sold the well known trade name of Rogers table cutlery for $13, claiming that advertising costs were being eliminated so as to allow selling at a lower figure and that this silverware was worth $24. As a matter of fact the actual value of the merchandise offered was $12.50.

This is but another instance of buying from house to house canvassers who are strangers. A box of this silverware awaits the salesman at the city prosecutor's office, who strongly advises those who bought these particular sets to stop payments on them. There was misrepresentation of values when offered to the customer.

Another matter of importance to our community is the necessity of local firms purchasing postal stamps in Norwich. And the reason is this. When additional clerks and carriers are needed in any city, the first thing that the post office department does is to look up the revenues of the office in question.

It follows very logically, that when business concerns send out from 5,000 pieces of mail to 50,000 and the stamps are purchased in Boston, New York or elsewhere, depending upon the city in which the mailing agency is located, that Norwich suffers from the loss of that revenue. When we need additional men for the working force for the local office; or when we need sufficient appropriations to take care of the local Christmas rush; we are at a big disadvantage because our post office receipts do not show the material increase they should. If the 50,000 or 100,000 stamps, used for mailing circulars or letters by local concerns were bought in Norwich.

ATTORNEY CASSIDY ASKS $7,500 FOR HIS SERVICES

Atty. John H. Cassidy of Waterbury, formerly of this city and son of the late Dr. Patrick Cassidy of this city, is claiming $7,500 for his services as executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Susan Dowling Brennan of Waterbury. The hearing on the final account of Atty Cassidy as executor of the estate was opened Tuesday in the Waterbury probate court before Judge D. J. Slavin.

Atty. Lawrence L. Lewis of the firm of Bronson, Lewis & Bronson appear for the executor and Atty. U. G. Church for St. Ignatius college of Chicago, the residuary legatee.

Every item is being gone over with Atty. Cassidy explaining them in detail and Atty. Church asking questions about some.

Mrs. Brennan is the person who after a country wide search and exciting court scenes was declared to be the heir to the $65,000 estate of the late Dennis J. Phelan.

Atty. Cassidy is asking $7,500 for his service as executor. He recited in court for two hours, the litigation, trouble and effort he was put to in settling up the estate of Mrs. Brennan, who received about $35,000 when the affairs of the Phelan estate were settled.

St. Ignatius college, it is understood, may object to the $7,500 fee as somewhat unreasonable. Atty. Cassidy is prepared to show he considered it a just charge.

Mr. Cassidy recalled case after case of persons having claims settled at ridiculously low figures. He said he was certain he saved the estate large amounts.

The account shows the estate paid $500 to defend in superior court recently the suit of Atty. Joseph A. Bergin against Atty. Cassidy for additional money for services rendered Atty. Cassidy as counsel for the executor.

Another item shows Mr. Cassidy paid $20 to have the date of Dennis Phelan's death inscribed on his headstone Judge Slavin asked if the Phelan estate or the Brennan estate paid for this, and Mr. Cassidy replied that it came out of the Brennan estate.

He said he felt that as long as no one else did it he should do it.

OTIS LIBRARY WILL BE CLOSED TODAY AND TOMORROW

Announcement was made Wednesday evening that the Otis library will close today (Thursday) and Friday pending the re-arrangement of the 50,000 volumes at the library. During the two days the library officials will replace in sections of shelves all the books in the library so that every book will be quickly available.

These changes mean that every one of the 50,000 books must be handled. Owing to the huge task confronting the library officials it will be absolutely necessary that the library be closed today and tomorrow. A place is being provided for the children on the south side of the front room, the entire side of that room being set aside for that purpose.

The executive and administrative departments are being moved to the north side of the room. All stacks of books have been removed from the front room and are being grouped by sections, there being a section for fiction, one for biology, one for history, etc. Within a week's time the library ought to be a place of stimulating interest for the readers in Norwich.

NANCY PHILLIPS HERLINGER A NATIVE OF NORWICH, 100

John Troland, of Winchester place, Norwich is in receipt of a most interesting letter and clipping from some recently discovered kin in Seattle, Washington. The correspondence concerns Mrs. Nancy Elizabeth Herlinger, of 1427 West 62nd St., Seattle, who on Dec. 12 celebrated her 100th birthday.

She was Nancy Elizabeth Phillips, born in Norwich, Dec. 12th, 1826. She married Mr. Herlinger, Nov. 14, 1843 and they moved to Minnesota in 1855, going to Seattle in 1901. She has two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Govey and Mrs. Cyrus W. Chandler, both of Seattle, there are two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The daughter, Mrs. Chandler, a member of Lady Stirling chapter, D. A. R., writes Mr. Troland that the Daughters of Minnesota desire to mark Charles Hopkins Phillips' grave, since she was the daughter of a Revolutionary soldier. Mrs. Chandler and her cousin, Mrs. Swanson, of Perry, Iowa who are promoting the project, are members of the Hopkins family, descendants of George and Nancy Davis Hopkins of Plainfield, Conn. Mr. Troland has informed them that their farm and family burial ground of more than 200 years ago are still in possession of Charles E. Hopkins and under his care. He, too is a direct descendant. Mr. Troland has been able to forward to Mrs. Chandler, some valuable family records long treasured by his wife, the late Ruble H. Hopkins Troland.

Mrs. Chandler's mother, pictured in the clipping from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, is very active at 100, although her sight and hearing are slightly impaired. She received over 150 cards for her birthday and cut a 65-lb. fruit cake, frosted in white and adorned with 100 pink candles.

When interviewed by Seattle newspaper representatives Mrs. Phillips gave as her secret for a long life, "First, be interested in other people; second, be happy and gay and third, don't fret over life!"

Good-natured criticism is the kind a man always dishes out to himself.

DEATH OF ROBT. P. BRINDELL, ERSTWHILE LABOR LEADER

Former "Czar" of Building Trades in New York Died in Hospital in New York—Had Been Convicted and Imprisoned For Playing the Game of Graft Both Ways From the Middle—Once Powerful Figure Faded Away From the Eyes of His Friends and Family—The Fortune He Had Amassed Had Melted Away.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Big Bob Brindell is dead. Robert P. Brindell who held the New York city building trades in the hollow of his hand.

Brindell whom Samuel Untermyer convicted of playing the game of graft both ways from the middle.

Brindell whose name was whispered in connection with scandals even while prison walls enclosed him.

The body of the great hulk of a man who fought his way up from a dock carpenter to the somewhat doubtful fame of "czar" of the building trades lay in a hospital cot tonight, shrunken by disease from its former 196 pounds to hardly more than 100.

And just as he was broken in health during his life's end so his friends say today he was broken financially. Just how great a fortune Brindell amassed from his activities prior to being sent to prison was never known but that it was large cannot be doubted.

Brindell was said by the government while he was in prison on the ground that in 1920 he only reported income of $21,287 whereas in reality it was $100,650 A settlement, never made public, ended his action.

Brindell came here as a humble dock carpenter and forced himself to the front by the use of shrewd wits in a field where fists had previously been the chief method of persuasion. He had real ability for selecting henchmen who would give him unquestioningly loyalty and by arranging their appointment as minor officers of the building trades council he was eventually able to install himself at its head.

Then began a tempestuous period in all the fields of the building profession which was brought to an end only six years ago with the Lockwood housing investigation. Samuel Untermyer was appointed special attorney general and he prosecuted Brindell in a sensational trial which ended with the labor leader's sentence to five to 10 years in state prison for extortion.

After three years and nine months he was unconditionally paroled "in consideration of his perfect record for good conduct in prison."

During the past year little had been heard of the once powerful figure. Illness was taking its toll of Brindell's strength and he seemed to be fading away before the eyes of his friends and family. Most of his time was spent at Schroon lake, from which he returned only recently.

At his bedside when he died were his wife, daughter, two sons and a priest.

He was 47 years old and was born in Quebec. Before coming to New York he lived for some time in Providence, R. I., where relatives survive him.

NEWEST PHASE IN CASE OF AIME M'PHERSON

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 30—(AP)—The county grand jury today heard Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff's newest story of her connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson disappearance case. Meanwhile, Roland Rich Wolley, former attorney for the evangelist and now charged by Mrs. Wiseman with having had knowledge of alleged manufacturing of false evidence and Kenneth G. Ormiston, phantom radio man, awaited their turns before the inquisitorial body.

When the body recessed District Attorney Keyes apparently has not definitely decided whether he would ask the dismissal of criminal conspiracy charges against Mrs. McPherson, Ormiston, Mrs. Wiseman and others.

Keyes admitted last night that he was in a quandary in view of Mrs. Wiseman's flat declaration that she had perjured herself on the stand in the evangelist's conspiracy hearing. He branded Mrs. Wiseman "informer," a "turncoat" and perjurer and indicated that he might ask dismissal of the charges.

J. H. Lambert, Hill street haberdasher, also waited outside the jury room. It was Lambert who gave some of the most important testimony at the conspiracy hearing.

HAD DISCUSSED NEW OIL REGULATIONS OF MEXICO

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—The special meeting of the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico held today to consider the refusal of President Calles of Mexico to grant an extension of time on the new oil regulations which go into effect January 1, adjourned with the announcement that no action had been taken. Spokesmen for the association declared the matter was considered "in a broad sense," but that no decision had been reached.

Officials of the association declined to state whether they would file application for confirmation of rights under the new laws, or allow their claims to lapse and seek a recovery of their properties through state department channels. They also declined to state whether a meeting of the association would be held tomorrow but intimated that the future course of action might depend upon advices from their representatives in Mexico City.

MEX. TROOPS SEARCH FOR KIDNAPPED MERICANS

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 30—(AP)—Federal troops have been ordered by the Mexican government to pursue the bandits who kidnapped two American mining men, J. W. Wiley and E. B. Conpors, near Parral, Chihuahua, Tuesday. The Americans, whose home towns in the United States are not known, are being held prisoners for 10,000 pesos ransom.

The American embassy learned of the kidnapping today and immediately sent a note to the Mexican foreign office making urgent representations to the government for the release of the prisoners and adequate punishment of the bandits. The embassy is without details of the occurrence, only being informed that fourteen bandits were implicated in the outrage. The bandits called themselves revolutionists and carried off Wiley and Connors from the little mining town of San Francisco Del Oro, where the Americans were employed in a British owned mine.

12-YEAR-OLD GIRL AS WATERBURY BARTENDER

WATERBURY, Dec. 30—(AP)—While her father wandered about among the customers, a 12-year-old girl tended bar in an old fashioned barroom which the vice squad visited here this afternoon. At the girl's feet stood a jar of moonshine whiskey. In a house in the rear were found a 30-gallon still and 150 gallons of fermenting mash.

Lieutenant James F. Murphy and the vice squad arrested John Mitkas, 581 North Riverside street, alleged owner, on charges of keeping liquor with intent to sell and with the manufacture of liquor.

Fully 80 per cent. of the drunkenness in the Brooklyn district of the city is due to women, the head of the vice squad said, women send their husbands to work in the shops, while they themselves stay at home and take care of the liquor business.

WOMAN'S PARTY TO REMAIN "PROUDLY FEMINISTIC"

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—So long as there is in any part of the world any discrimination, whether legal, educational or otherwise against women, the National Woman's party will remain "proudly feministic," Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers asserted today.

Mrs. Rogers, who is a member of the national council of the party, made the statement in reply to the recent plea by Miss Sarah Schuyler Bulter that women in active politics "drop their feministic attitudes and get down to practical political work," starting with ward and district work for their political parties.

Feminism, instead of being out of date, has "just begun its battle" with the initial victory of a woman's suffrage in this country, Mrs. Rogers said.

Miss Butler, daughter of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university and prominent in woman state republican politics, has asserted that it was her belief that the day of the "feministic crusader was over."

"We believe that there exist at the present day differences between men and womn which make it necessary for women to organize for their own interests," Mrs. Rogers said. "We are practical and definite; and we went to be judged by results as Miss Butler suggests."

GIRL CHARGED WITH BEING PROVIDENCE BANK ROBBER

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—A smiling, 23 year old girl, charged with being a Providence, R. I., bank robber, was held in $500 bail today after her arrest had been described by the presiding magistrate at her arraignment as "a ridiculous performance."

According to Louis J. Jackvony, assistant Rhode Island attorney general, Miss Elizabeth Kelso, alleged sweetheart of John Gilbert Miller, now in prison on a charge of bank robbery, is wanted for conspiracy to rob the Phenix Trust Co., at West Warwick, R. I., of $26,422.

She was arrested today at a Broadway restaurant where she had been employed as a waitress. She told Magistrate Corrigan that she did not want to return to Rhode Island and that she did not know anything about the robbery. She was committed to jail when she was unable to meet the bond of $500 that was set.

The magistrate told her that he believed the attorney general wanted her back merely as a material witness and advised her to secure counsel and fight extradition.

WOMAN REPORTER TRUE TO TRADITION OF CALLING

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—The tradition of the newspaper profession, which calls on the reporter to get out his story regardless of personal cost, has been carried on by the daughter of John W. Davis, former presidential candidate.

Not even a taxicab that tumbled her headlong in the street could stop Mrs. William Adams, Mr. Davis' daughter, in the pursuit of her profession as a reporter for the Associated Press.

Mrs. Adams' most recent assignment was to get an interview with Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers on women in politics as a follow up story to a previous interview she had obtained with Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler.

She got the interview but while returning to write it she was bowled over and badly shaken up by a taxicab that passed a traffic signal in Madison avenue. Mrs. Adams brushed herself off, continued to the office, wrote her story, and turned it in.

Even then she did not mention the accident, information about which was obtained by chance when she asked permission to go home for several days' rest.

MRS. HILL ALLOWED $650 A MONTH ALIMONY

LIVINGSTON, Mont., Dec. 30—(AP)—Mrs. Walter Hill, who is suing for divorce from the son of the late railroad magnate, James J. Hill, today was allowed $650 a month temporary alimony, $2,500 costs and $6,000 attorney fees to be available Jan. 5. The order was entered by District Judge Ben E. Law of Bozeman.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 30—(AP)—Peter Augustus Jay, the American ambassador is making final arrangements preparatory to his departure for the United States aboard the steamship Pan America.

PARIS, Dec. 30—(AP)—Vivian Stranders, a former British officer under arrest here, has admitted, the police say, that for the last year he acted as a spy on French aviation for the German espionage service.

LONDON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Fear that the city of New York may become a city of cave dwellers was voiced by Sir Alfred Mond, British industrialist, in giving the American chamber of commerce the impressions he gathered on his recent visit to the United States.

ADVOCATED COMPULSORY AUTO ACCIDENT INSURANCE

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 30—(AP)—Compulsory automobile accident insurance was advocated here today by Judge Robert S. Marx of Chicago, in an address before the American Economics association. Such insurance, he said, would largely prevent the heavy death and injury toll, eliminate personal injury suits and provide prompt and certain redress for injured persons.

Experience with workman's accident compensation, Judge Marx said, has proved that "it is effective in reducing industrial accidents" and similar results could be expected with the general adoption of required automobile insurance.

"Upwards of 22,000 human beings are killed annually in America by automobiles," he said. "The total number of injured exceeds half a million. In the majority of cases, the automobile owner or driver is not financially responsible and not one cent can be recovered by the injured person or the dependent family of the dead."

DRUG SMUGGLING RING UNCOVERED IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 30—(AP)—Five alleged drug peddlers, the vanguard of what officials predict will be the arraignment of many more members of the largest drug smuggling ring on the continent were under arrest today as the result of three months investigations by United States and Canadian authorities.

Fred Monaghan, Charles Galley and Joseph H. Farley of Montreal and Sam Reed, a porter on the Chicago-Montreal train of the Canadian-Pacific railway were charged with conspiracy to smuggle and sell drugs and George Edwards, negro porter on the Canadian Pacific, was charged with the possession of drugs.

Monaghan and Edwards were held under bonds of $25,000 and $10,000 respectively while the other three men were given verbal remands of the request of the crown prosecutor.

Drugs worth more than $15,000 were seized.

RESENTS SENTENCING OF BOY TO JOIN THE NAVY

NEWARK N. J., Dec. 30—(AP)—The navy is no reform school, Commander Walter B. Decker, in charge of recruiting here today wrote Recorder Joseph A. Corio of Atlantic City, who last week sentenced a disorderly youth to "enlist in the navy or go to jail for six months."

"Further," Commander Decker's letter read, "if the facts are as reported it appears to me that the least you can do is to make public apology.

"May I inform you that the navy is not and never will be a reform school. There isn't room in the service for disreputable characters. Your action is an insult to the enlisted personnel of the service."

Dan Maloney, the defendant, will not be enlisted, the commander asserted. Maloney, a bell boy, appeared three times before the recorder on charges of disorderly conduct.

EARTHSHOCKS IN CENTER OF STATE OF WASHINGTON

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 30—(AP)—Violent earth tremors, which sent persons running from shaking buildings, were felt throughout central Washington this morning.

The disturbance centered around Entiat in north-central Washington where a chimney was shaken off of a house on one of the main streets and where many residents reported that dishes were rattled and furniture moved about.

Employes in the Federal building at Yakima reported that their desks were moved back and forth by the shock.

A shock lasting two minutes was recorded at 9:57 a. m. by the seismograph at the University of Gonzaga here. Its center was located 500 miles away. A few minutes later residents of Yakima and Wenatchee felt the tremors.

386 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Dec. 30—(AP)—Hartford, Bridgeport and New Haven, with 55, 45 and 33, respectively, led the state in the number of automobile accidents reported during the week of December 19-25, according to information released by the state motor vehicle department today.

The total for the entire state was 386, of which number 258 represents city accidents. In the corresponding week last year, there were 409 accidents reported in Connecticut and 201 in Connecticut cities. During the week ending with Christmas, 1926, there were five fatal accidents resulting in six fatalities as against five deaths in five accidents in the same week, 1925.

TWO DEATHS DUE TO WOOD ALCOHOL AND CREOSOTE

BOSTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Two men are dead and another blinded, at least temporarily, as a result of drinking a mixture of wood alcohol and creosote Christmas night at the Long Island alms house. City Institutions Commissioner Kinney tonight announced that Arthur J. Cole, 58, and John J. Cashman, 60, were dead.

They had been sent to the hospital for three months, suffering from alcoholism. Patrick Lynch, 60, is still in a serious condition although his recovery is looked for. A preliminary investigation was disclosed that the men broke into the institution paintshop probably on Christmas night. They were found in great distress by one of the physicians next day.

Certainty Over Oil Lands in Mexico

Deadlock Continues Between the Mexican Government and Foreign Oil Companies.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 30—(AP)—The Mexican government theoretically will become one of the biggest owners of oil lands in the world on January 1 unless there is a last minute alteration in the situation brought about by promulgation of the new petroleum and land laws and the failure of the oil companies thus far to accept the laws.

Under the terms of the new regulations all oil lands under foreign title, the holders of which have not applied for confirmatory concessions before January 1, will automatically revert to the Mexican government. President Calles has refused to grant an extension of time for making these regulations effective.

Neither government officials nor representatives of the oil companies here have accurate statistics regarding all the property involved, but unofficial estimates with no pretense to exactitude, are that many thousands of acres with a potential value of perhaps billions of dollars are affected.

Fundamentally the deadlock between the Mexican government and the most important foreign oil companies continues apparently unchanged, with much uncertainty as to what will be the specific developments after the new year. There is a feeling among some that although the law provides that the titles shall revert to the Mexican government, the government may not actually take over the lands at once, thereby affording no grounds for direct complaints from foreign interests of confiscation. Thus the present status of uncertainty might remain indefinitely.

Senor Morones, secretary of commerce and industry, has announced that the government will not turn over to third parties the leases on the oil lands reverting to the government because of failure of the present titleholders to apply for new confirmatory concessions. The oil interests were fearful that concessions to their properties might be granted to other individuals or companies which would accept the new laws and make formal application.

Both government officials and oil men in Mexico City are eagerly awaiting word from New York as to whether the headquarters of the biggest oil companies interested have decided to accept the new laws, or still remain firm in their refusal to apply for new concessions under the present regulations.

Secretary Morones also gave out today a long list of individuals and companies which have applied for confirmatory concessions. This however has not clarified the situation because it is not known which applications have reference to rights acquired before 1917, which is the only international issue involved. So far as is known here, none of the large foreign oil companies has applied for new concessions for properties acquired before 1917. With respect to such properties the United States government has pronounced the new law retroactive and confiscatory.

BRIDGEPORT MAN A VICTIM OF ALCOHOLISM

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 30—(AP)—One victim of alcoholism was reported today when the death of John Ryan, 268 Gilbert street, occurred. According to Medical Examiner H. Le Baron Petters death was due to excessive drinking of liquor that probably contained wood alcohol. He was found dead in a room at a rooming house where he lived.

PETITION FOR RELEASE OF D. C. STEPHENSON

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 30—(AP)—The habeas corpus petition seeking the release from the Indiana state penitentiary of D. C. Stephenson, serving a life sentence for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, was denied in superior court here this afternoon by Judge Harry L. Crumpacker.

CHEMISTS SEEK WAY TO MAKE ALCOHOL UNPALATABLE INSTEAD OF POISONOUS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Prodded by Secretary Mellon, government chemists turned again to their test tubes today in an effort to find some denaturant for industrial alcohol which is not poisonous.

Realizing that such alcohol is seeping into bootleg channels, Mr. Mellon is not willing to poison drinkers to enforce the prohibition law. He wants the alcohol denatured so that it will be too distasteful to drink but at the same time not poisonous.

The chemists, however, are not so enthusiastic about finding a non-poisonous ingredient. If industrial alcohol is to be made nauseating they feel it must contain a small portion at least of wood alcohol which they declare is the least injurious denaturing ingredient.

Mr. Mellon believes also that a quantity of two or four per cent of wood alcohol will not prove very injurious. He is not alarmed over the new formula which goes into effect on Jan. 1, containing four per cent of wood alcohol instead of the customary 2 per cent because this formula will not contain the pyrodine used heretofore.

Complete enforcement of the prohibition laws is an unreasonable expectation the treasury head declared today, and some people are going to continue to drink whatever they can get. He wants the substitutes and industrial alcohols so treated that drinkers will be warned by the taste and smell that it is not good.

Mr. Mellon does not believe that the numerous holiday alcoholic deaths resulted from denatured alcohol but rather that probably too much drinking was responsible. Even before prohibition, he recalled, there were deaths from the use of poisoned alcohol which was reported to by some dishonest dealers and drinkers. James M. Doran, chief of prohibition chemists went today to Philadelphia and New York, but officials would not say that he was investigating the numerous deaths from alcohol in these cities recently.

As to industrial alcohol, Secretary Mellon is of the opinion that its leakage into bootleg channels has proved one of the main problems of enforcement as a result of them shutting off of the sources of supplies from Rum Row and domestic distilleries. A special squad has been ordered by Assistant Secretary Andrews, dry chief, to block this source of supply.

In a prohibition review and prophecy, W. H Stayton, national chairman of the association against the prohibition amendment, referred to the use of poisonous denaturants in alcohol and declared that the "definite movement away from fanatical restrictive legislation, especially in the field of prohibition enforcement will witness decided acceleration in the coming year."

"As the year closes," he said, "the drys are showing signs of desperation as they endeavor to maintain their fast slipping hold on congress. They have clost out in the effort to secure a large appropriation for 'snooping' and spying, which means that the people's money, while much will go to perpetuate the prohibition farce for another year, will not be spent for purposes of deceit and falsehood, for the creation of the very evidence on which to convict offenders against the prohibition laws.

"But they cling tenaciously to a sorrier piece of legislative villainy, namely, that which contributes to the death of an untold number of Americans annually through the drinking of illegal beverages made of alcohol into which has been put a poisonous denaturant by order of the government. The Anti-Saloon league is particularly fearful that this murderous feature of enforcement methods will be abandoned.

"Mr. Wayne Wheeler has classed those who lose their lives through drinking such poisoned decoctions as guilty of 'deliberate suicide.'

The same, it will be recalled, was said of those who dared to go on board the Lusitania after the insolent warning of the central powers.

Business Quite Active In New England Dist.

Lower Than a Year Ago, But Somewhat Higher Than the Five Year Average.

BOSTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—The coming of the New Year finds factories active and retail distribution of merchandise progressing in large volume, according to the monthly review of industrial and financial conditions in the New England district by the federal reserve bank of Boston. Business activity is at a lower rate than a year ago both in this district and in the country as a whole but is somewhat higher than the five year average, the report sets forth.

"Industry starts the year 1927 with factories quite active," the report begins, "with retail distribution of merchandise in large volume, with prices of basic raw materials having shown a decline for about eighteen months, and with loans of commercial banks at nearly the largest amount on record and money rates fairly firm.

"Business activity at the beginning of 1927, however, is at a lower rate than a year ago, both in this district and in the country as a whole. In both cases the current rate of activity is somewhat higher than the average maintained during the past five years.

"Business conditions in the country as a whole were extraordinarily stable and free from fluctuation in 1926, but in New England there was a recession in activity during the summer months followed by a partial recovery in the autumn.

"The total value of business in the leading New England textile centers during 1926 was less than in 1925, and but little better than in 1924. The important shoe cities, on the other hand, reported the largest value of business in 1926 for several years. Metal trade centers reported the largest value of business since war times.

"The decline in basic raw material prices since the summer of 1925 has been an important factor in the business situation, and has tended to reduce the dollar value of trade, as distinct from the physical volume of trade. Some shrinkage in inventory values has been caused by declining prices, and the value of check payments has also been affected.

"Retail distribution of merchandise through the New England department stores, and in fact, through department stores in the entire country, was larger in 1926 than in any previous year for which records are available. The increase in New England department store sales in 1926 as compared with 1925 was entirely due to larger sales on charge and installment accounts, there being no increase reported in the total volume of cash sales.

"There was not as much building activity in New England during the past year as in 1925, but with that exception there was the largest volume of building in New England on record.

"Both total deposits and total loans of member banks in New England averaged higher in 1926 than in the previous year. The growth in deposits was even more noticeable in the so-called country banks than in the banks in Boston.

"Money rates on the whole were somewhat firmer than in 1925, continuing the upward trend in effect since the third quarter of 1924."

GOV. SMITH OF NEW YORK CELEBRATED 53D BIRTHDAY

ALBANY, Dec. 30—(AP)—Personal friends and political supporters of Governor Alfred Smith in all parts of the country joined today in celebrating his fifty-third birthday and the fourth occasion when that anniversary was a preliminary to his induction as head of the state government.

Congratulatory messages came in unusual number from out-of-state points to supplement the flood which attested the governor's popularity within New York.

The gifts, too, while in the main of personal character, represented a larger territory. One drawing particular attention of politically-inclined guests at the executive mansion being a cake in the shape of the white house. It was baked by the governor's own cook, however.

CENSORSHIP OF RADIO IN NICARAGUA IS REMOVED

Admiral Latimer Has Notified the State Department—The Admiral Also Informed the State Department That 70 Wounded Soldiers in the Diaz Army and 71 in Sacasa's Had Been Taken Into the Bluefield Zone From Pearl Lagoon.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—The dispute whether an American censorship had been established on radio stations in the Nicaraguan neutral zone was settled today when the state department announced that one had been in effect but had been lifted.

The department said it had just been informed by Rear Admiral Latimer, in command of American forces in Nicaragua, that a censorship had been established at Puerto Cabezas and Rio Grande Bar "to maintain the neutrality of the zone by preventing the sending out of military instructions or informationby either side" in the factional strife in the country.

"The admiral reported further," said the departmental announcement, "that all censorship on radio stations in the neutral zone has been removed by his direction."

Until the announcement was made, state department officials had insisted they were without information of any censorship, as charged by Dr. T. S. Vaca, representative here of the Sacasa liberal faction in Nicaragua.

Vaca called at the state department today but was told by officials that Secretary Kellogg could not receive him inasmuch as he was not the representative of a government recognized by the United States.

He said he called because he had heard the department had not received the censorship protest, which he delivered yesterday to a messenger in Secretary Kellogg's office. He learned, however, that his protest had reached the secretary.

Vaca has been insisting for several days that he could not get radio messages through to his superiors at Puerto Cabezas, and had been informed that no radiograms in code would be transmitted.

In addition to informing the state department regarding censorship, Admiral Latimer advised the secretary of the navy, that 70 wounded soldiers in the diaz army and 71 in Sacasa's had been taken int othe Bluefields neutral zone from Pearl lagoon.

The Nicaraguan legation tonight made public a cablegram from Cuadra Pasos, foreign affairs minister in the Diaz cabinet, in which the charge that the Mexican government has been giving assistance to the Sacasa liberals was reiterated.

"The diplomatic ministers of Mexico in Central America," the message, dated yesterday, said, "without concealment are the agents for the revolution, to foster and pay for a hostile propaganda against this government and the United States, whose beneficial policy of pacification in Central America upsets the plans of the Mexican government and arouses its anger.

"At this very moment a new Mexican military expedition is on its way trying to land on the Pacific coast."

Declaring that Central America has been disturbed by the communist and aggressive Mexican policy," the cablegram continued:

"The government of Nicaragua, which has obtained the moral sanction of recognition by the United States, is strong and possesses the necessary efficiency to repress all revolutions that may arise with elements purely Nicaraguan, but it needs must call the attention of the civilized world to the insistent attacks of the communistic government of Mexico, which in its desire to bring to us its pernicious doctrines does not cease in its aggression, supported by the resources of a country which, as has been remarked by attacks of the communistic government of Mexico, which is the of a country which, as has been remarked by President Diaz, is 20 times larger and richer than Nicaragua."

NASHVILLE CONTINUES TO SUFFER FROM FLOOD

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 30—(AP)—The Cumberland river, in record flood stage at Nashville, continued a very slow rise today in its expansive trail through Nashville.

The official reading at 2 p. m. today was 53.7 feet, a rise of only one tenth of a foot in seven hours. The weather bureau's latest prediction was a crest for Nashville of above 56 feet by Saturday or Sunday.

Revised official estimates of 4,000 persons homeless in Nashville lowlands, 200 city blocks inundated and 1500 persons out of work were not added to materially today.

The Cumberland was a mile wide from Fifth avenue west of the river into East Nashville and its back waters extended for three miles over the North Nashville and Edgefield sections, submerging hundreds of homes and inundating industrial plants and business blocks.

Sand bags us d to dyke the waters from Woodland street at First street, East Nashville, so far have saved the only approach to the eastern section of the city, over Woodland street bridge.

The water, however, tonight was approaching the street car rails on Woodland at that point.

Eight thousand dollars has been raised in relief funds for the needy, and appeals continued for $7,000 additional.

$10 COVER CHARGE IN NEW YORK HOTELS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Hotels, whose banquet halls will be the Mecca of thousands of celebrators tomorrow night, announced today that all plans for the biggest, latest and most festive New Year's observance in New York history, have been completed.

All that remains, their managers said is for New York to turn in early if it wants to get a running start into 1927.

No curfew law, although it is now on the statutes, will interfere, according to Mayor James J. Walker, who announced that for this "special occasion" the three o'clock closing of night clubs and restaurants with music "is all off."

Private parties in homes, cafes, clubs and halls will contribute to the indoor feature of the celebration.

Ten dollar cover charges will be the standard price at the big hotels, with here and there an extra five added for an "imported novelty for the ladies," or because the dancing will be supplemented by a tableau.

Orchestras will syncopate the seasonal festivities in five restaurants in the Waldorf-Astoria, and in sixteen other rooms from cellar to roof.

At the Hotel Plaza, 3,500 New Year's eve guests are expected to sit down to the $10 dinner. The Ritz-Carlton has boosted its cover charge to $15 and announced today practically all possible reservations had been made.

PLAYING WITH PISTOL FATAL TO BRIDGEPORT BOY

FAIRFIELD, Dec. 30—(AP)—John Grassi, four, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas A. Grassi of 21 Greenfield road, died at St. Vincent's hospital Bridgeport this afternoon shortly after he shot himself with a pistol.

The boy, with three other children was playing in a bedroom when he discovered an automatic pistol owned by a cousin which had been pinned under the mattress. A cartridge exploded while the boy was handling the gun and the bullet pierced through his body entering just below the chest. He died on his way to the hospital.

Police of Fairfield with Medical Examiner H. R. De Luca of Bridgeport, are investigating, but it is believed that it is an accident.

HARTFORD BANKER DIED AT MEETING OF TRUSTEES

HARTFORD, Dec. 30—(AP)—Henry H. Pease, vice president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, dropped dead about 1 o'clock this afternoon while attending a meeting of the trustees of the bank. Mr. Pease was president of the State Bankers' association in 1924.

PAN-AMERICAN FLIERS ARRIVE AT VERA CRUZ

VERA CRUZ, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Led by Major Herbert A. Dargue, commander of the United States army pan-American flight squadron, the four planes which were held up for a week at Tampico, reached Vera Cruz this afternoon. They were the New York, St. Louis, San Antonio and Detroit. The San Francisco, in command of Captain Ira C. Eaker flew to Vera Cruz last week after futile attempts had been made to recall her on the original start of the squadron at Tampico. The American aviators swept down to the bay and found a safe mooring place; then the fliers came to shore while bands played the national anthems and the authorities and populace gave them a great reception.

Major Dargue said the flight from Tampico to Vera Cruz, a distance of 136 miles, was made without incident. The flying time was two hours and 40 minutes. Favorable winds added speed to the American planes for the first 100 miles from Tampico; then came head winds, and for more than 30 miles the aviators had to face powerful air currents. Tonight they were enjoying themselves at the Naval academy.

Puerto, Mexico is the next goal, and, if all goes well, the fliers will hop off at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

FORMER BASEBALL PLAYER MAKES DEBUT AS A SINGER

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A voice that once shouted "Are you blind?" when sandlot umpires called a strike, boomed through the Metropolitan Opera House today.

The voice was that of Joseph MacPherson, who four years ago was playing semi-pro baseball on vacant lots in Nashville, Tenn. MacPherson, 26 years old and with only three years of vocal training as preparation for the test, made his debut, singing the King in Verdi's "Aida" at a benefit matinee.

Tullio Serafin, Metropolitan conductor, said of MacPherson's voice: "It is pleasing and rich. There is much promise. He sings with security, even under the strain of a debut." Members of the cast called the debut a success.

Back stage, in a two-by-four dressing room, MacPherson sat, completely relaxed, after the second act, the last in which the king appears.

"Gy golly," he said, "that was worse than coming up to bat with the bases loaded and two out and the score tied in the ninth."

MRS. INGERSOLL LEFT NO LEGACY TO HUSBAND

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The will of Mrs. Robert H. Ingersoll, filed today, left no legacy to her husband, the dollar watch manufacturer, but directed the executors of her $135,000 estate to cancel a $30,000 mortgage she held in real estate he owns in Lansing, Mich. Mrs. Ingersoll committed suicide in her Park avenue apartment on Dec. 19. The balance of her estate is left to her mother, Mrs. Ammande M. Bannister, of Spokane, Wash., and her nephew, Ellis Noland, Jr., of Queens Village, Long Island.

On the night that Mrs. Ingersoll was found shot to death in her apartment by her own hand, Wallace Probasco son-in-law of Robert G. Ingersoll, famous agnostic, was found seriously wounded nearby. He told police that Mrs. Ingersoll had shot him prior to killing herself because he had sought to break off a relationship between them, having become reconciled with his wife.

MILITARISM TABLED AT STUDENT CONFERENCE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 30—(AP)—The national student conference at its general session tonight voted to table a resolution condemning compulsory military training in colleges and which also would put the conference on record as opposing "the imperialistic policy of the United States government."

The conference, however, went on record as explaining that its action was not the result of any sentiment against the move but because it was the policy of the conference not to adopt any resolutions.

C. C. CASE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF EXCHANGE CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 30—C. C. Case was elected president of the Willimantic Exchange club for the ensuing six months at the weekly meeting held in the Nathan Hale hotel Wednesday night. Other officers elected were: First vice-president, Alfred Abbe; second vice-president, Lyndon E. Little; third vice-president, Robert H. Fenton; secretary, Arthur E. Morrill; treasurer, George Stiles; board of control, George Stiles, George H. Gurley, John F. Carr, Patrick J Twomey, Harry Garrigus and Dixon Van Zandt.

Plans for the Old Home, Old Church and Old School Week for the coming year were outlined by Allen B. Lincoln. His outline met with the approval of the membership. Egbert A. Case addressed the members in endorsing the movement and he included a praise for James L. Harroun, principal of the Natchaug grammar school for his thirty years of service to the community as an educator.

Edwin J. Donnelly and Robert H. Fenton were appointed a committee of two to confer with a committee from the Rotary club and one from the chamber of commerce and representatives of local banks to plan a survey of the town with a view of bringing about improvements of its general condition. Rev. H A. Coolidge of Union, who was to be speaker of the evening could not attend and he will be heard next week.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam was at the office of Attorney Harry S. Gaucher in this city Thursday to meet various attorneys interested in some dozen cases of local defendants which will come up in the next criminal term of superior court which opens in Putnam next Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. The cases were reviewed and tentative arrangements to settle a number out of court were discussed.

A touring car which was traveling in the direction of this city about 3 o'clock Thursday morning skidded on the Columbia state highway near the Mathieu farm and getting out of control of the driver, rolled against an embankment. The machine then bolted across to the other side of the road where it plunged down a six foot bank and overturned. None of the occupants was injured and the car was but slightly damaged. The machine was righted by a wrecker and it continued on its journey to Boston.

Only six warranty deeds were recorded at the office of the town clerk of Windham during the month of December showing that real estate transactions are on the wane during the holiday period. The transactions were: Olivine Handfield to Mary Rose Alice Handfield, tract of land bordering on Mansfield and Handfield avenues; American Land Co. of Providence, R. I., Joseph A. Auger, trustee, tract of land on Ash street to Ernest Pannetta; Elijah B. Woodworth of Cambridge, Mass., two lots on Prospect street to Joseph L. D. Vertefeuille.

DANIELSON

EXPECT MORE AGITATION OF NEW HIGHWAY PROJECT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 30.—A trunk line highway project that has been dormant for a year or more is expected to become a matter of live interest in 1927. This involves construction of a new trunk line over the old stage coach route from North Scituate to the Connecticut line near East Killingly and the construction by Connecticut of its part of the route from the state line at East Killingly down to the state highway at Dayville four corners and from a point about midway between Dayville and Goodyear to the Putnam-Willimantic state highway in the town of Pomfret. Connecticut made a survey of its part of the route two or three years ago. In Rhode Island there has been agitation for the building of this route for several years, and newspaper comment in Providence papers indicates that the matter will be revived this winter, with a view to having construction started in 1927. East Killingly would welcome construction of this route, restoring it once again to the place it held in the sun for so many years as an important point on the old Providence-Hartford stage coach route.

Property owners here are complying with the requirements of the New England insurance exchange as to making changes and improvements tending to reduce fire hazards. A group of investigators worked in Danielson for many weeks inspecting buildings and the surrounding of properties, filed reports of changes deemed desirable and it is on these reports that recommendations for changes are being made. The checkup made not only covered Danielson, but other parts of the town of Killingly.

Thursday at 11 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Y. Wood in East Killingly there was a prayer service for Mrs. Wood's father, John H. Nicholas, followed by a funeral service Thursday afternoon at the Knotty Oak church at Washington, R. I. The services were conducted by Rev. Irving F. Barnes, pastor of the Dexter street Advent Christian church of Providence, assisted by Rev. Almer E. Gallup of Danielson and Rev. C. E. Fisher of the East Providence Baptist church. During the service Mrs. Barnes and Miss Barnes sang in the Christian's Home in Glory, and Asleep in the Arms of Jesus. The bearers were Walter Y. Wood, William F. Johnson, Charles A. Haines and Axel S. Djunggren. Burial was in the Woodland cemetery at Washington. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

At his home in Foster Thursday afternoon funeral services for George A. Young were conducted by Rev. Gilbert S. Cutler of North Scituate. Relatives and many friends attended the services. Burial was in the Hopkins Hills cemetery. The bearers were George Hopkins, Leroy Hopkins, Ralph Nichols and Frank Cameron. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Killingly's holdings of horses have shrunk to 283 head. This is decided contrast to the more than 1,000 that were owned in this town 20 years ago and is indicative of the manner in which the motor car has replaced these faithful friends of man. Relatively few horses now owned in this town are in the hands of others than those owning farm lands. A few driving horses are still kept in Killingly and some are used for delivery purposes. Even on the farms the number of horses has been reduced, for in many cases a car can perform services for which horses formerly were employed.

People here are still pestered by a veterans' organization having headquarters in Boston for the return or payment of boxes of Christmas cards that it is claimed were sent out and which the people who are now being bothered refused to accept from the postoffice. The situation is a particularly unfortunate one. Numbers of Danielson people who never accepted the cards are simply ignoring the requests for payment, having learned from experiences of the past that there is nothing to be gained by entering into correspondence in such cases.

The textile business in Killingly at the close of 1926, while not especially profitable to some of the manufacturers is sufficiently active to be very encouraging to the hundreds of people who are employed. Not only are the plants operating, but some of them have night as well as day forces. The Quinebaug mill has some departments running at night, as has the Paco Manufacturing company, and the Goodyear Mills, Inc.

A car with a Massachusetts registration drove into the yard at the state police barracks to deliver to officers there a set of 1927 Connecticut commercial plates picked up on the highway, the number being 26-893. Sergeant Albert S. Field communicated with the motor vehicle department at Hartford about the matter, but there was such a rush seeking registrations there that time could not be taken to ascertain to whom the plates were issued.

A minimum temperature of 12 degrees above zero was recorded here Thursday morning.

Closing of a school at East Putnam is of interest in this town because three of the eight pupils who have been attending there since last September are resident in Killingly. They will be transferred to one of the schools in this town.

Attorneys here are engaged with the consideration of cases that will be heard at the next criminal term of the county superior court, in January. There are several Killingly cases on the list.

A watch night service is to be held at the Methodist Episcopal church tonight from 9 o'clock until midnight.

Motor vehicle registrations for 1927 may be put in use today, Dec. 31, and it was indicated Thursday that many will take advantage of the privilege, that they may not have to replace the old plates with new ones on the holiday. New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania cars carrying the 1927 markers were noted here Thursday.

Danielson is one town where a plentiful supply of calendars is the rule this year, as for many years past. Business houses, banks and concerns in various lines have given away thousands of calendars.

Killingly, with 1486 automobiles taxed, has one machine for about every four persons. However, Killingly is a town that gets a liberal return from its investment in motor cars, for two big manufacturing concerns with fine payrolls are devoted to turning out fabric that goes into tires.

Twenty-two stitches were required to close a gash that Clifford Dann made in his foot while he was engaged at his work in the woods near North Sterling.

Edward S. Carpenter has rounded out a half century as tyler of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Danielson, and declined re-election for the coming year.

George Fontaine of this town was rendered unconscious a few days ago when he slipped and fell, striking his head on an icy sidewalk in the business center of Putnam. He was not seriously injured, however.

E. A. Winter of Willimantic was a visitor in Danielson on Thursday.

Face and neck covered with eruption

Resinol cleared it away

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 20:—"I think Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are wonderful—I was a sufferer from skin trouble and I know what they did for me. I had only a few pimples at first, but this infection soon spread until they covered my face and neck and made me look disgraceful. They irritated me so I could scarcely keep my fingers off them. I tried various treatments, but none gave more than temporary relief. A friend recommended Resinol and I bought a jar of ointment and a cake of soap. After the second application of each, the itching stopped and when I had used the Resinol products for five weeks, there was not a trace of the trouble left." (Signed) Arthur Smith, 489 Hudson Ave.

Dr. J. H. Schenck & Son, Philadelphia

—the only drudge in America

We have said over and over that we are a progressive people; a free people; a people proud of being first to abolish the slavery of manual toil.

And yet, in homes where there is an automobile, a radio, a telephone — thousands of women work without labor-saving machinery of any kind — millions of tons of water are lugged in and out of those same homes every year.

Obviously it is not a question of money. Can it be that the American family has acquired the habit of seeing mother drudge until the sight no longer hurts the family eyes?

PEACE AND ARMAMENTS

In making the address at the observance of the 150th anniversary of the battles of Trenton and Princeton at Trenton, President Coolidge took occasion to amplify his position in regard to disarmament and naval construction and to set forth that we want peace today quite the same as Washington and the patriots of his day wanted peace, but he was frank to say that he doesn't believe that "we can advance the policy of peace by a return to the policy of competitive armaments."

While making it clear that he doesn't believe that we should subject ourselves to danger through failing to provide an adequate army and navy he is "opposed to any effort to militarize this nation" and insists that "we can render no better service to humanity than to put forth all our influence to prevent this world from slipping back into the grasp of that ravaging system."

There is unquestionably a widespread sentiment throughout the nation for international peace. That sentiment doesn't favor subjecting ourselves to unwarranted risks but bringing about understandings with other nations, quite the same as has been done through the Washington conference, for the maintenance of adequate navies on a fixed basis and restricting the nations from exceeding such limits.

When the president says that "the world has been striving to advance in this direction, to discard the old theory of relying entirely upon force and to adopt the method of relying more on reason," he says what everyone is familiar with ever since the close of the war, and when he adds that "we are in danger of slipping back into the old formula," he is apparently hitting at certain efforts which have been put forth in behalf of naval construction without regard for the effect which such action would have upon other nations, for "we cannot establish the new principle unless we are willing to make some sacrifices, unless we are willing to put some courage into our convictions."

We may indicate what our cruiser strength ought to be in our opinion judging by what the strength of other countries is, but when we proceed to indulge in a wholesale construction of cruisers we create a feeling of uncertainty and distrust. It might not be wise to wait too long before indulging in cruiser construction, but having indicated what would bring us close to the strength of other countries and what we have in mind our future course could be governed by the outcome of a conference in the near future with other countries relative to further restrictions concerning navies. It is easy to be swept off one's feet by alarms which are without reason but put forth for certain purposes the president appeals to reason and urges looking before leaping.

CONCERNING NICARAGUA

Senator Borah has gotten around to conferring with the state department and as the result he takes a different attitude in regard to our position in Nicaragua. Perhaps he has been misquoted before, but now his statements are in accord with what might be expected of the chairman of the foreign relations committee supposedly in sympathy with the present administration.

Senator Borah after his conference with Secretary Kellogg is convinced that the United States is confining its efforts in Nicaragua to the protection of American life and property. There has been no reason for him to think otherwise. This government, or this administration has had nothing but the best interests of the Central or South American countries at heart in any steps that have been taken where trouble has developed and it hardly becomes senators of this country regardless of the party to which they belong to rush into criticism of their own government as the result of claims which are being made by revolutionists and before they have acquainted themselves with the facts from sources which are at their command.

When the senator from Idaho declares himself against intervention in Nicaragua it is wrong to infer that we have any such intention. It is quite clear that in giving Admiral Latimer authority to deal with the situation regarding Nicaragua where a neutral zone has ben established for the protection of Americans it is certain that he knows the attitude of this government and that so is acting in accord with instructions and his best judgment as he faces the situation.

As has been the case on many previous instances the representatives of the revolutionary force in Nicaragua are busy with their propaganda both in this country and Mexico. They are to do what they are placed in these respective countries for—endeavor to sway public opinion and break down the government in Nicaragua which has been recognized by Washington, and the strangest part of it all is that they should have gotten the ear and assistance, for a time at least, of certain United States senators who should be in better business and much more disposed to back up their government in action of this kind than to rush to the assistance of revolutionary leaders.

This country has recognized what it believes to be the constitutional government in Nicaragua and it has recognized the importance of taking care of the interests of Americans and affording them protection before there has been destruction of life and property that would call for different action. We have been guided in our action by fairness without regard for what Mexico might do or has done and while Senator Borah points out that we should not intervene he knows full well that no such step has been taken or contemplated. Such flourishes and the statements by senators as to what they are going to do to call the government to account react to the detriment of those who make them under present circumstances. It is a case of rushing ahead just to get publicity and a chance to back up.

GASOLINE STATIONS

Perhaps it might seem that gasoline stations are among the least of the causes of danger in the highways, and yet, because of the manner in which autos stopping at such points occupy part of the highway which is required by moving traffic, they do cause congestion and interruption of traffic.

The curbstone filling stations have long since been regarded as undesirable and their decrease has been rapid. Since 1919 it has been necessary for those desiring to establish such station to get licenses based upon safety of location. The purpose of this has been to eliminate the dangerous sidewalk stops and give traffic the proper use of the highway. At the last session of the general assembly by an amendment to the law the approval of the mayor of a city or selectmen of a town, in cities or towns with over 10,000 population was required in order to have the location of a station sanctioned.

In his latest bulletin dealing with this question Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel points out that this provision, which does not apply to trunk line or state aid highways wherever located, has worked out in most cases, but it occasionally happens that some location is certified by the city or town authorities which does not meet the requirements of the state." This has resulted in conflict with the state insisting upon the demands of safety.

In order to change this situation and overcome the conflict it is recommended by the commissioner that cities or towns of 10,000 population or more except on state highways, should have the supervision and control of the location of gasoline stations within their limits, and that the state enforce its station control on state highways and in towns of less than 10,000.

The desirability of having all stations in the future meet certain requirements and of eliminating definitely traffic hazards cannot fail to make its appeal in these days of more motor vehicles and greatly congested highways. Putting the responsibility where there will not be conflict of authority will eliminate any friction that might otherwise develop and yet the authority wherever placed will be expected to meet the requirements.

THIN ICE VICTIMS

With two Rhode Island boys losing their lives when ice in the Blackstone river broke under them, and a third narrowly escaping a similar fate, attention is painfully directed to the danger which prevails during the winter season in venturing onto thin ice, or of taking chances where indications point to risky conditions.

It would be an unusual season if there were not some cases of this kind to act as reminders of the well known peril and yet unless each community has such a case brought directly home to it there is a strange refusal on the part of young people to keep away from that very danger, or on the part of parents to safeguard their children.

There isn't any more exhilirating and enjoyable sport than skating, and when the skating place is reasonably safe as to depth and the ice sufficiently thick to withstand the weight of the skaters the danger is at a minimum. But it is the refusal to wait for such a time, or the insistence upon going onto the ice following a rain or a thaw as a dare, that is invariably the cause of so many deaths from thin ice.

There are perils enough these days without inviting more and yet those who venture onto unsafe ice are much like those who dash madly into the street without first looking to see whether they are throwing themselves in front of a motor vehicle.

Sad and deplorable as such drownings are it is regrettable that the lessons which are taught by them fail to register among those who need them most. The sacrifice of such lives may be the means of saving others, but it is too bad that such sacrifices are necessary.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Whatever else you do see that your New Year's resolutions are sent away to a good start.

Those who doll out in their new automobile numbers today will not have to do it tomorrow.

Whether it seems so or, bet the next Connecticut general assembly is only just around the corner.

If everyone means what he says, and says it without crossing his fingers, 1927 ought to be a humdinger.

A geologist says Niagara will be dry by 5100. Perhaps that is about the time prohibition will be effective.

The man on the corner says: Whether it is with regrets or not this is the day when we must part with 1926.

The year 1926 is about to leave us forever. Has it been a good or a bad year to you so that you'll regret or applaud its going?

The government is planning to make denatured alcohol taste much worse, but that will have no terror for those who let it strictly alone.

It may be that the idea of making good resolutions for the New Year is out of date but they were never kept in mind for any great length of time.

We talk about safety first and yet here were 634 auto fatalities in 78 cities in the past four weeks. We don't even get excited about that but we hold up our hands in horror at battlefield casualties.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

When the Dix Amies received an invitation to send a delegate to the annual luncheon of the League of Welfare Workers, I said, during our informal discussion, that if no one else cared particularly to go I would be glad to represent our organization.

"That's very, very kind of you, Lucile," remarked Ursula Moore, our president, and it was quickly moved and carried that I should act as delegate, and I asked if the treasurer would give me the money for the ticket, or send me a check for the $3.

"Oh, doesn't the delegate pay her own way?" asked Polly Gray crudely. "No wonder you were willing to go, Lucile." I merely smiled and said pleasantly that, although our little society had had no experience in the matter, I supposed that it was customary for clubs to pay the expenses of delegates.

"You are an adept at making precedents," said Polly and the girls all laughed in an odd way, and I politely joined in the merriment, though I did not see what it was all about, and I could not help feeling that there was a lack of appreciation of my offer to serve the club, which, realizing how many members shirk work, seemed strange to me.

Sometimes I think we should change our name from the Dix Amies to the Ten Cats. However, I did not let that disturb me, and I went early to the luncheon in the hope of having a little visit with Frank before the affair began.

"What a dear you were to come!" he exclaimed when we met in the hotel corridor. "When I sent you the program I did not flatter myself that you would be among those present to hear my bungling remarks."

"I always stand by my friends," I shivered gayly, and he said that if I lived through his speech I would rate a theater party as a reward. I could see that he was delighted to have me there, and I was glad that I had suggested to father's friend, Mr. Waynrite, the executive secretary of the League of Welfare Workers, that our earnest little Dix Amies should not be left out of the annual luncheon.

As I was entering the beautiful ballroom, where the tables were set, I noticed Miss Bell was sitting on a lounge by the door. As she is associated with Cousin Fannie in her settlement work I stopped to speak to her. "Aren't you going in?" I asked.

"No, Lucile," she answered, "not for lunch. I simply can't afford it, but I shall slip in in time to hear the speakers. You know I'm tremendously interested in this sort of thing. I'm a delegate from one of our settlement clubs, but I wouldn't let the club pay for my lunch when we need our funds for so many more important things."

"Then I'll see you later," I said, and I kept thinking of her as I waited for the affair to begin, and I felt that she was foolish not to have let her club pay for a luncheon ticket for her. I have long since discovered that such self-abnegation never gets one anywhere.

"Mercy on us, isn't this thing ever going to begin?" exclaimed a masterful looking woman sitting next me. "I'm not going to wait all the afternoon." She rose and walked majestically away. Seized with one of my kind impulses, I took the luncheon ticket she had left at her place and ran out with it to Miss Bell. I explained that it would just be wasted if she did not use it, and after a moment's hesitation she gratefully followed me to the vacant seat. The waiter had taken our tickets and was bringing the first course when to my dismay my recent neighbor reappeared.

"I had this seat reserved," she said haughtily glaring at poor little Miss Bell.

"I thought you had left," I hastened to explain, and see she then transferred her insolent lorgnette to my direction.

"Where's my luncheon ticket?" she demanded, and I had to say that it was gone, but I said I would get another at once. Miss Bell started to rise, saying she did not care for lunch after all.

"No, you sit still," commanded the imperious person, and Miss Bell sank back tearfully into her seat and I ran out to the desk for another ticket, which that dreadful woman took without a word of thanks. It was really money wasted, for Miss Bell did not appear to enjoy her luncheon at all, and Cousin Fannie told me later that she owned to her that she was frightfully embarrassed. It makes me feel that I shall not put myself out again very soon to do any one a favor.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prince Hirohito, who ascends the throne of Japan with the passing of his father, the Emperor Yoshihito, is 25 years old and for several years has governed as prince regent during the illness of the emperor. Since 1919 when he became of age he has occupied a seat in the house of peers of the imperial diet. Five years ago, with the consent of his father, he broke an ancient Japanese tradition by being the first crown prince of Japan to make a trip abroad. He visited the principal countries of Europe and impressed those he met as a young man of observing disposition, a retentive memory and a keen desire for knowledge. In 1924, about two years after his return from abroad, he was married in Tokio to Princess Nagato, a descendant of a former emperor of Japan. As ruler of Japan the crown prince regent gives promise of carrying on the "Era of Enlightenment," by which the reign of his grandfather, Emperor Mauhito, was known.

Sir Robert Hadfield, who has advanced a scheme for setting up a national industrial council in Great Britain for the settlement of disputes between employers and employes without stoppage of work, is an inventor and engineer of world-wide reputation. Contrary to tradition, Sir Robert is not only an inventor, but an eminently successful man of business. He is a director in many great corporations and the active head of one of the largest firms of steel manufacturers in the world. One of his most important inventions was manganese steel, out of which were made the "tin hats" worn by the allied soldiers in the World war. He also has invented other improvements and developments in the steel industry, on which subject he has written extensively, and he has received honors from many countries. Two of these honors, it may be mentioned, came from the Franklin Institute of America.

Former Norwich Leaders

BENJAMIN DURFEY

Benjamin Durfey, one of the oldest residents of Greeneville, died at his home Saturday after a long illness of Bright's disease. Mr. Durfey was perhaps the most prominent man in Greeneville. He was the first who located in that place and has remained there ever since. He was one of the constitutent members of the Congregational church and also of the Ecclesiastical society, and has served both with an earnest devotion to the end. He has been an important citizen holding various offices of trust, and filling them with marked ability and unswerving integrity. Probably in no man's death could Greeneville have suffered a greater loss.

R. P. STANTON

(From The Norwich Bulletin, April 28 1875)

The funeral of the late Benjamin Durfey took place yesterday in the Congregational church in Greeneville. It was attended by a large number of friends of the deceased, among them many from out of town. The pall bearers were H. W. Carey, Rufus Sibley, John T. Parker, William F. Clark, James Lindsay and James Houston.

The Rev. Mr. Stanton, of whose church Mr. Durfey had been a prominent member, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Mr. Stoddard of the Methodist church. The former preached an elequent funeral sermon, in the course of which he spoke of the public and religious life of the deceased as one who had known him for many years. In the course of his remarks he said:

Benjamin Durfey was born in Griswold in July, 1801. He was one of a large family of seven brothers and sisters, and the last survivor of the seven. He came here in 1828 when the whole area between the old Providence road on the west and the Shetucket river on the east, the Roath road on the south, and Twelfth street on the north was occupied by a single dwelling, indeed the first foundations had not been laid nor a single street opened.

In the following year he married and commenced housekeeping in the old farmhouse still doing service a little way above the corner of the old Providence road and Twelfth street. Think for one moment of Greeneville as it then was; one family, consisting of the deceased his wife, and a houseful of boarders in men who had come to this wild rugged spot with spade, hammer and drill, to strike the first blow and lay the first foundation.

Mr. Durfey might well be regarded as the patriarch of this community. On every page of its past history, his name stands conspicuous. There has not been a blow struck in converting what was a rocky waste into this large busy, thriving village, now an important part of the city of Norwich, of which he has not been an eye witness, and more than an eye witness.

There is scarcely an important civil office in the gift of the people of this town which he has not been called to fill. He has been manager of the Water Power company from the beginning; president and treasurer of the Fire association of Greeneville. He has been on the board of relief, board of assessors; constable; justice of the peace. He has represented this town in the state legislature and maintained a character of unspotted integrity to the end.

But it is of his deep and continued interest in the moral and religious prosperity of this community that we love to think. Before the first stone in the foundation of the first factory was laid, a weekly prayer meeting was established at his boarding house. Soon a Sunday school was organized at the same place, and religious worship was established on Sunday, January 1st, 1832. The deceased and 19 others, the greater part of whom are fallen asleep, were constituted a Congregational church by an ecclesiastical council called for the purpose. On the 18th of that month an ecclesiastical society was formed with Mr. Durfey as a member of the executive committee. In 1836 he was chosen chairman of that committee, which office he has held for 36 years.

It is safe to say that no man has felt a deeper interest in the prosperity of this church and society than the deceased. As an instance of his faithfulness as a servant of Christ and this church I would mention that when you entrusted to him the duty of presenting your call to the present pastor of this church, as it was in mid winter when heavy falls of snow had made the transmission of mails uncertain, he made a journey of 70 miles in cold and storm that he might present the call in person.

YOUR HEALTH

THE FUTILITY OF FALSE MODESTY

By J. F. Montague, M. D., New York Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

It may seem curious that any question should be raised as to whether deceney may at times be so exuberant as to be harmful, yet physicians daily see people who have suffered for years with some ailment or other rather than submit to a medical examination.

Assuredly modesty is a jewel, but then, too, one may wear too much jewelry. So the natural query is raised as to whether there is a point where modesty ceases to be a virtue.

With the exception of disease produced by licentious living, the majority of morbid conditions are misfortunes of existence to which no shame may be rightfully attached. Among these innocently obtained ailments are rectal diseases. That the rectum should at times suffer disorder is quite as natural as that any other organ, such as the stomach or lungs, be affected. Yet to many persons, both male and female, there is associated with rectal diseases a pernicious reticence which leads to neglect, harmful attempts at self treatment or else the clandestine consultation with some "quack" doctor.

Almost any physician can relate to you cases in his practice where the continued bleeding from hemorrhoids has led to that lamentable thinning of the blood known as anemia, in which condition a person's resistance to all disease is greatly lowered. Again, in neglected cases, infection occurs and is accompanied either by such a torturing itching as to distort one's nervous system cruelly, or else by intense pain which wracks the body and makes life miserable.

Should absorption of such infective material occur, the complaints commonly known as rheumatism, arthritis, or neuritis occur with all their attendant aches and disabilities. Finally, the neglect of a diseased rectal condition may, as in any other part of the body, result in cancer whose final price is death—preceded by untold suffering.

Such are the consequences of false modesty and reflection on the situation will immediately suggest the question, "What Price Modesty?"

What can the modest one offer as an excuse for such shameful neglect, such a flagrant violation of ordinary good sense? In confidence one of the ultramodest people will put forth one of three explanations: the dislike of such exposure as she or he believes is necessary for a medical examination; the fear of pain incident to examinations; an over-weening self-pride which will not allow one to consult his friend, the family physician, concerning an ailment of this type. All three objections are based on false facts or sentiments.

Unfortunately almost everyone recognizes the wisdom of good counsel except he who has need of it, but "he who refuses cheap advice much buy dear repentance." Shakespeare has said that "self love is not so vile a sin as self neglect."

CHILDREN AND BOOKS

Children And Their Books

The most vital educational problem will always be how to make the best use of the child's earlier years, not only for the reason that in them many receive their entire school training, but also because, while the power of the child to learn increases with age, its susceptibility to formative influences diminishes, and so rapid is the working of this law that President Eliot thinks that

"the temperament, physical constitution, mental aptitudes, and moral quality of a boy are well determined by the time he is 16 years old."

Great waste of the child's time and mental energy in the precious early years is caused by disregard of the way in which his mind unfolds. Not only are children set at work for which they are not yet fitted, but frequently they are kept at occupations which are far below what they might profitably engage in. The child should be guided, not driven; to force his mind is an educational crime. Long continued attention and concentration are injurious, but by using tact a great deal may be accomplished without strain.

Peter Looks for Paddy the Beaver

Anticipating ice and snow,
The better doth his wisdom show.
In days of plenty he prepares
And nothing knows of winter cares.

—Old Mother Nature.

Not since before the coming of Jack Frost had Peter Rabbit been over to the ponds of Paddy the Beaver. You know, Paddy used to have just one pond over there in the Green Forest. Then later he made another pond. When Peter last saw him, Paddy with Mrs. Paddy and two of the children were cutting food logs, getting ready for winter.

At that time this had seemed a very foolish thing to do. It had seemed as if Paddy was going to a whole lot of unnecessary trouble. You know, Peter isn't forehanded. Peter doesn't look ahead. He is much more inclined to look behind than he is to look ahead. Paddy, on the other hand looks ahead and behind. Out of the experience of the past he prepares for the future. It is a pity that more people are not like Paddy.

Now that there wasn't much to do, a few days to see, Peter decided to run over to the ponds of Paddy the Beaver. "I'll just see how the Beaver family is getting along," said Peter to himself. Then he began to wonder if he really would see how the Beaver family was getting along. He had tried it on one or two other occasions in other winters and he had seen very little. But it was something to do and somewhere to go; so Peter went.

"It is so far over there that I probably will stay two or three days," he told little Mrs. Peter as he left the dear old Briar-patch, and pretended not to see the worried look in her eyes. "It will be perfectly safe over there, my dear. In fact, I probably will be safer there than here, for Old Man Coyote and Reddy Fox do most of their hunting around here. Of course, they will not know that I am going over there, and so I shall be quite safe."

Peter kicked up his long heels and away he went across the Green Meadows, which were now white with snow.

Little Mrs. Peter sighed and anxiously watched him until he was nothing but a little brown speck bobbing along. At last he disappeared in the Green Forest. As for Peter, having made up his mind where he was going, he headed straight for there. Only once did he get anything in the way of a fright. That was when quite unexpectedly he discovered a mean great, round footprints in the snow. Peter's heart gave a jump. His heart jumped up and his stomach sank down, and that combination gives one a terrible feeling. Yes, sir, it does so. It gives one that all-gone feeling.

"Yowler the Bobcat," he whispered under his breath. "He's been around here."

But a little sniffing at, and a little examination of, those footprints set Peter at rest. His heart and his stomach both seemed to come back where they belonged. Those were old footprints. They were several days old. Once more Peter started out, lippety-lippety-lip, but he wasn't quite so carefree as he had been in the first place. This was well, because it kept him on guard with ears and nose and eyes.

When at last Peter reached the first of Paddy's ponds he sat up behind an old stump for a long look. Before him was a perfectly smooth, white plain. Way out over owards the farther side a white mound seemed to rise right out of the white plain. You see, Paddy's pond had frozen and then the snow had fallen. The white mound was the roof of Paddy's house. It was just exactly as Peter had seen it in other winters, and just as he had expected to see it this winter. Yet, somehow, there was just a little feeling of disappointment. Somehow he had had it in the back of his head that somewhere in some unknown way he might see Paddy the Beaver. You know, it is most unsatisfactory to try to call on people and not be able to do it, even when you know they are at home. It is even worse than going to make a call and not finding them home.

The next story—Paddy's New Year.

Looking Ahead

A new year means new problems to solve, new conditions to meet. To guide us in our work we must take not only a physical inventory but also an inventory of the principles followed in the successful operation of our business.

As we look back over our ninety years of history we find many reasons for our steady growth, but none stand out more prominently than the practice of stocking only the highest grade of coal and lumber. For we believe that the best of any thing is always the most satisfactory in the end. This principle has always been scrupulously followed and will continue to be our guide for the future.

May the New Year be a most happy one for all of you.

The Port o' Heart's Desire

Down around the quay they lie, the ships that sail to sea,
Oh! shore the brown-checked sailormen they pass the jest with me,
But soon their ships will sail away with winds that never tire,
And there's one that will be sailing to the Port o' Heart's Desire.

The Port o' Heart's Desire, and it's, oh, that port for me,
And that's the ship that I love best of all that sail the sea;
Its hold is filled with memories, its prow it points away
To the Port o' Heart's Desire, where I roamed a boy at play.

Ships that sail for gold there be, and ships that sail for fame,
And some were filled with jewels bright when from Cathay they came,
But give me still yon white sail in the sunset's mystic fire,
That the sunning tides will carry to the Port O' Heart's Desire.

If you may have the gold and fame, and all the jewels, too,
And all the ships, if they were mine, I'd gladly give to you
I'd give them all right gladly, with their gold and fame entire,
If you would set me down within the Port o' Heart's Desire.

Oh, speed you, white-winged ship of mine, oh, speed you to the sea.
Some other day, some other tide, come back again to me;
Come back with all the memories, the joys and o'en the pain,
And take me to the golden hills of boyhood once again.

OBITUARY
Harry Cohn

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 30—(AP)—Harry Cohn, 78, financier and president of the closed American Savings Bank and Trust company died unexpectedly today of a heart attack superinduced, it is believed, by grief over the closing of his banking house and alleged defalcation of several trusted employed.

The aged banker was found lying on the floor of the basement wash room of the bank by a clerk. He was hurried to a hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Mr. Cohn's death was the second tragedy of the bank failure. Clarence Hienchsberg, assistant cashier, killed himself at his home here two weeks ago, after telling a friend that he was short $300,000 in his accounts.

He went to Palmer three days ago and was suddenly stricken. He has been in ill health for several years. Mr. Thompson was born in Norwich, Ct., and previous to his removal to Springfield four years ago, had resided in Palmer. He had been employed at the Rathbone Pinion Wire company previous to being taken ill. Mr. Thompson leaves his wife, Mrs. Hattie S. Thompson of Springfield and his daughter, Mrs. Smith.

FUNERALS
Mrs. John Worthy

The funeral of Mrs. Sally Worthy, widow of John Worthy, was held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Grace Memorial Baptist church, Mt. Pleasant street, many relatives and friends attending. The service was conducted by the James M. Pattison, pastor, assisted by Rev. Dixon A. Brown, pastor of the McKinley Avenue M. E. Zion church. Members of a New London lodge also held a service at the church. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Pattison. The bearers were Henry Lacey, George Strong, T. W. Wormsley and Harrison Payne. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker C. A. Gager.

CONTRACT FOR NEW HYDRO-ELECTRIC PLANT

Archibald Torrance has been awarded the contract for the building of the superstructure of the new hydro-electric plant, to be constructed on the property purchased by the city Norwich Gas & Electric department from the Atlantic Carton company. Mr. Torrance's bid was $7,259, the lowest of the six bids submitted to the commissioners of the gas and electric company Wednesday.

The bids submitted were as follows: Connecticut Engineering and Contracting Co., $11,200; W. S. Spencer, $10,980; Peck McWilliam Co., $10,824; P. F. Sweeney, $8,041; Central Engineering & Construction company, $7,865; Archibald Torrance, $7,259.

The board of gas and electrical commissioners at a meeting in August voted that the department purchase three tracts of land, with rights and privileges for the purpose of constructing a generating plant on the canal from the Atlantic Carton company, this action being approved by the common council.

The new plant will cost about $105,000 when ready for operation and will be an 800 K. W. plant with capacity to produce 4,2000,000 K. W. hours per year. The Norwich plant now dispenses approximately 9,000,000 K. W. hours per year, of which 50 per cent. is obtained from the Uncas Power company. The steam plant on North Main street produces the other 50 per cent. When the new plant is operating the steam plant may be dispensed with in great part, at a saving of nearly 70 per cent. in coal consumption, which will amount to about $13,000 annually.

In constructing the new plant arrangements are being made to increase its capacity 400 K. W., thus giving it a full capacity of 1200 K. W., and if both steam and new plants are operated 7900 K. W. may be obtained, an increase of 33 per cent. over the present load.

Work on the new plant has been under way since October 1 and Contractor Torrance will start work on the superstructure about February 1. It is expected that the work will be completed during the month of April.

PROGRESSIVE MISS. CLUB RE-ELECTS ALL OFFICERS

CAPT. N. C. PIERCE TAKES COMMAND OF LOCAL COMBAT TRAIN, 192ND ART.

Members of Headquarters Battery and Combat Train, 1st Bn, 192nd Field Artillery assembled at the state armory on McKinley avenue Thursday night for the first time under the command of Captain N. C. Pierce, the evening being given over to instructions by the newly appointed officers and a summing up of activities and reports by the several committees.

With the assigning of Captain Pierce to the command of the Combat Train it now has its full quota of officers. The recruited strength of the battery, however, is somewhat below the average desired. Seventy-four men is full strength and Captain Pierce is desirous of bringing the enlisted strength up to 60 men at least, the battery now numbering but 52 enlisted men, with a number of these nearing an expiration of service.

The new officers of the combat train besides Capt. Pierce are Lieutenants Arthur E. Wilbur and Ulmer M. Jewett. Capt. Pierce is a graduate of Sheffield Scientific school and Yale university as an electrical engineer. He was formerly with Battery B and during the war was an engineering officer in the U. S. navy. Lieutenant Wilbur is a graduate of several radio schools and was radio chief in the U. S. navy during the World war, serving on the U. S. S. Chester and also constructing radio stations on Cape Cod. Lieutenant Jewett is a graduate of Norwich university and served for several years in the regular army and in the cavalry reserve, having received cavalry training while at Norwich university.

Following instructions to the men, announcement was made that the battery is soon to construct a radio broadcasting station in this city in order to be able to communicate driect with the battery in New London. Plans were also made to prepare for the federal inspection on March 15, 1927 and to get things started toward preparing for the 1927 encampment.

In speaking of the battery Thursday night, Capt. Pierce stated that under the instruction of Lieut. Wilbur there is a fine chance for Norwich young men to receive training in radio engineering, as classes in this branch will soon be started, making it an important feature of the training in the company.

In announcing the changes Capt. Pierce issued the following battery order for Thursday night's meeting:

The undersigned has assumed command of this organization in accordance with special orders, No. 143, A. G. O., Hartford, Conn., dated Dec. 1, 1926, Vice Capt. Herbert Burdick transferred to N. G. R. I have been commissioned captain, Field Artillery, C. N. G., and am assigned to duty with and in command of Hq. Battery and Combat Train 1st Bn.

Lieut. Arthur E. Wilbur has been commissioned second lieutenant of Field Artillery, C. N. G., and assigned to duty with Hq. Battery and Combat Train, 1st Bn by special orders No. 143, A. G. O., Hartford, Conn., dated Dec. 1, 1926. Lieut Wilbur has seen a large amount of service in the U. S. navy radio work, and he will be in charge of radio and communications in the Headquarters battery.

Lieut. Ulmer M. Jewett, Cav. Res., has been commissioned a second lieutenant of Field Artillery, C. N. G., by special orders, No. 146, A. G. O., Hartford, Conn., dated Dec. 13, 1926, and is assigned to Hq. Battery and Combat Train, 1st Bn. He is in charge of the combat train section of this organization. Lieut. Jewett has had several years of regular army training.

Let us build up a bigger and better organization of which we can all be proud, the citizens of Norwich as well as the members of the battery. The New London battery during the past year has made a very great improvement, and we ought to be able to do at least as well.

MERCHANTS LEAD IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY MAKEUP

Farmers will be fewer in the incoming general assembly apparently than for many seasons, the preliminary manual and roll of membership under preparation by Secretary of State F. A. Pallotti, will show. It is customary to secure from each member-elect a few facts about themselves for information of all others. The diversity of occupation of the new members is practically striking, especially in the counties which are almost entirely agricultural. In Litchfield, Middlesex and Tolland counties combined only 22 recorded themselves as farmers out of 87 members-elect, while of the entire house membership of 262 only 69 said they were farmers. On the other hand, there are only a few members of the bar, the number 16 in the house making the task much easier than usual, for the speaker to name 11 to the committee on the judiciary. The senate, however, has 11 lawyers, one of whom is also a physician and only these 12 can be named to the same committee.

The house will be a married folks organization as will the senate, the former having 214 married members and the senate 31 of its 35 members. Of the 48 members of the house in single blessedness five are women. There are nine other women members. The one woman senator is married.

In the entire membership only two gave direct connection with financial affairs by acknowledging themselves to be bankers but one other put himself down as "vice president and treasurer." There will be 26 merchants, 16 manufacturers, 11 insurance agents, 6 lumber men, seven with occupations in industry, three clergymen, three physicians, three undertakers, one theatrical manager, one editor, one journalist, one newspaperman, one advertising manager, one state policeman, one ornithologist, one county commissioner, one town clerk, one jeweler, one state investigator, four civil engineers, one druggist and two station agents, among others. Members who have "retired" from active pursuits number 24.

Among the 14 women members in the house one is a home-maker, five house wives, two house keepers, one each school teacher, social service worker, investigator, retired physician, two have no recorded avocation.

LIONS WILL ENTERTAIN CHILDREN THIS MORNING

President William A. Anderson was in charge of the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions' club, held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel and Earl Taggart was acting as song leader. The meeting opened with the singing of America and grace was said by Rev. R. B. Day.

Max Hanover reported concerning the annual New Year's theatre party of the Lions, which is to be held at the Palace theatre this (Friday) morning at 10 o'clock. Transportation is being provided for the children and wives of the club members are serving as guardians for the children. Social and welfare workers have also been invited to attend and assist in this respect. Girls from the Norwich Commercial school have volunteered to aid in distributing the candy. Following the naming of the committee to plan a masquerade the meeting adjourned with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

BAPTIST PRIMARY DEPT. HAS CHRISTMAS SOCIAL

The annual Christmas party for the members of the primary department of the Sunday school of the Central Baptist church was held Thursday afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock in Bushnell chapel. About 45 little folks attended the party and the hours were spent in singing Christmas carols, the giving of recitations, piano and vocal solos and the playing of games.

A Christmas tree, electrically lighted, stood in the hall and the children gathered about this to await the arrival of Santa Claus. On his arrival Santa gave presents to the children and ice cream and cake were served.

The pleasant affair was arranged by Miss Alice Dean, superintendent of the primary department, assisted by Mrs. Harry H. Pettis, Mrs. Olive Potter, Mrs. Henry Aurelio and Mrs. David Tongren.

MOOSE WILL INITIATE NEW YEAR'S EVE CLASS

Norwich lodge, No. 950, Loyal Order of Moose, will close its charter this (Friday) evening, New Year's eve, with a class of 35 candidates. The New Haven degree team will pay a visit to Norwich lodge and there will also be officers from Meriden, Danbury and Waterbury. Music will be furnished by the Moose Ideal orchestra. Ed. Brenham, leader. A roast pork supper will be served with all the fixings in the new dining room after which a special entertainment from Boston will give a show to run into the early morning, closing one of the biggest years of the lodge. The committee will now begin to work for the big convention coming to Norwich June 24-25.

ANNUAL REPORT OF LOCAL SCOUT EXECUTIVE

Much progress has already been made toward a larger and more efficient scout membership, says the annual report of Scout Executive Frederick J. Bielefield, presented to the Norwich Scout council at its annual meeting Wednesday evening. The report is as follows:

During the month of February a complete check-up of the council records and troop records was made, and the national standardized office system of the Boy Scouts of America was set up in the council office. Upon completion of the check-up, the records were audited on March first. The records showed assets of $1,174.69, and liabilities of $417.37, making the net assets of the council $757.42. Troop records showed a total of 107 scouts, of this number 62 being tenderfoot, 34 second class, and 11 first class and merit badge scouts. There were 3 active troops, 3 scoutmasters, 10 assistant scoutmasters, and 24 troop committeemen.

In anniversary week in February, four of the troops held troop banquets, and on the Sunday following scouts were invited to the Y. M. C. A. for Scout Sunday, a moving picture being shown and an interesting talk given. Hikes were taken by all troops for the purpose of feeding game birds, the feeding grounds later being visited periodically to replenish the grain. All the woods around Norwich were covered by scouts in this work.

Scouts gathered during March and April over 2,000 egg masses of the tent caterpillars, and destroyed them. Four council hikes were taken to various points of interest during these months, scouts of four troops participating. During the forest fire season scouts assisted at a number of fires, four fires being put out entirely by scouts before much damage was done. Scouts cleaned up part of the grounds of the Miantonomo monument in Greeneville, taking two Saturday afternoon hikes for this purpose. In April and May scouts painted all of the American Legion grave markers in Norwich cemeteries, and also painted 400 others of the G. A. R. Scouts helped at the social workers' conference in this city. On May 1, 40 scouts at the invitation of the United Commercial Travelers, participated in the opening of the Nipmuc trail, making the trip by automobile to Webster lake. Fourteen scouts representing the council troops attended the patrol leaders' pow-wow of Eastern Connecticut at Camp Pioneer. The pow-wow was arranged by Norwich, Hartford and Middlesex councils. On Memorial day scouts participated in the parade and exercises. A number of troop hikes were taken during June.

Camp Tippecan opened July 7 and closed August 8. Scouts from all troops in the council, excepting one, attended camp for one week or more. After the boys camp closed, the Old Scouts invaded the camp and spent four days at camping and camp site improvement. The Old Scouts helped in breaking up camp and stowing away equipment for the winter.

An exhibit of scoutcraft materials was set up at the New London county fair which attracted widespread attention, and scouts were busy during the fair running errands, ushering at the grandstand, parking automobiles, and finding lost children. A number of minor injuries were treated at the scout first aid tent. Some of the material for exhibition used at this fair was transportedto the Pachaug fair and set up there. Scouts participated in the Fort Shantok celebration on October 12 October 16 opened the training course for patrol leaders, which was held at the armory. Ten meetings were held to December 20, for the purpose of training patrol leaders for their troop work. On Armistice day all council troops participated in the parade and exercises, after which an entertainment consisting of scout-moving pictures was given to visiting scouts by Troop 12 at the Park church parish house. Troop 12 also made the arrangements for feeding the visiting scouts and scout officials. On Labor day before Thanksgiving scouts helped in the distribution of Thanksgiving baskets in and around Norwich. Scouts of one troop prepared and served the supper for the men's club of its church. Troop 20, with the aid of the troop committee, completed a large addition to its meeting place in Norwich Town, and gave a Christmas party to boys who were not scouts just before Christmas.

During the year much has been done to strengthen the troops through the troop committees. Beginning with a total of 24 troop committeemen in February, the number has been built up to 40 at this time. Instead of having the 3 minimum number of three committeemen for each troop, it has been the aim of the council to build up each committee to six members, and so have each member take an active part in the troop activities. Two fish and two rallies were held the first at the Uncas church community house, where President Woodworth of New London council and Scout Executive Fowler of Middlesex council spoke. The second was held at the Odd Fellows hall, and the committeemen present were addressed by Scout Executive Burdick of New London. A state-wide conference of scout leaders was held at Middletown on Nov. 13, all the councils of the state participating, and to this conference Norwich had a delegation of fifteen scoutmasters and troop committeemen, one of whom was a leader of one of the discussion groups. At present five troop committees are actively engaged in work with their troops, and the number is steadily increasing.

Since February, 90 scouts, 3 troops, 3 scoutmasters and 3 asst. scoutmasters, and 7 lone scouts have been registered, making the total scout enrollment at this time 204. Of this number there are 124 tenderfoot, 48 second class, 23 first class, 2 merit badge and 1 star scout. The council now has 11 troops, 11 scoutmasters, 11 assistant scoutmasters. Since February the scout growth has been entirely positive, and no scouts were dropped from active enrollment.

The total camper-weeks of Camp Tippecan totaled 107. The Old Scouts camp added 30 to this number. A fee of $6.00 per week per scout was charged for camp, of this amount $5.50 was expended entirely for food. Camp running expenses totaled $894.53, of which $566.90 was received from scouts, discounts and sales, and $327.63 appropriated by the council. The budgeted appropriation for camp was $400, leaving an excess of $72.53. In running expenses Camp Tippecan compares favorably with other New England camps, our total expense per camper being $11.81, as compared with the average of $9.87—$12.65. A number of improvements were made in the camp site. Sanitation was improved upon and a daily inspection of tents and grounds was made. Tents were set up in a newly cleared grove, and were airy and comfortable. Food was the best procurable, and campers were given plenty to eat. There was no sickness at camp and all scouts gained weight.

On March 1, the council records showed a bank balance of $53.13. To date from March 1, receipts from all sources have been $4,225.19, and expenditures have been $3,827.43, leaving a balance on hand of $14.06 and a balance in the bank of $386.70. There are accounts receivable of $18.06, and a total of unpaid pledges of $102.

The statement of assets and liabilities of the council of this date shows current and fixed assets of $1,549.61, with liabilities of $337.70, making the net assets of the council on December 29, 1926 $611.91. Administration of the council for the year has been carried on with a minimum of expense.

Much progress has already been made toward a larger and more efficient scout membership, and the program of leadership training has been started with the first council elementary patrol leaders training course. Troop efficiency and scout advancement is pushing ahead steadily. One of our great problems is the recruiting and training of leaders necessary for new troops, and troops are being registered as fast as leaders and active troop committees can be established. We have yet to cover the greater part of our council territory, and part of our work for the coming year is the organization of the council into districts necessary to the existence of troops in this territory.

JUDGE BROWN ON BAR EXAMINING COMMITTEE

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 30—(AP)—Examinations for admission to the bar of Connecticut were held today at the supreme court building on Capital avenue in this city and were in charge of Edward M. Day, of this city, a member of the state bar examining committee. Of the one hundred and thirty candidates to take the examination only one woman was from Hartford, Miss Frances Keene, of 171 Victoria road.

At the close of the examination tomorrow the papers will be forwarded to Judge John W. Banks and Judge William B. Boardman, of Bridgeport, chairman and secretary respectively of the committee, and the papers will then be allotted under subjects to different members of the committee for percentage markings. Results of the examination will be announced in Hartford, Saturday, January 15.

The members of the examining committee are: Judges Banks and Boardman of Bridgeport, James E. Wheeler, J. Dwight Dana and Samuel A. Jarsky, of New Haven, Edward M. Day and Judge William M. Maltbie, of Hartford, Dennis J. McCarthy of Rockville, Charles L. Torrey of Putnam, Judge Allyn L. Brown, of Norwich, James E. Cooper of New Britain, Ernest A. Inglis of Middletown, Frederick C. Taylor of Stamford, William W. Gager of Waterbury and Howard F. Landon of Salisbury.

STUDENT NURSES HELD THEIR ANNUAL BANQUET

The 12 members of the nurses' graduating class of the William W. Backus hospital with their friends, held their annual banquet Tuesday evening at 6.30 o'clock in the private dining hall of the Wauregan hotel. The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, tomato bisque, roast chicken, green peas, mashed potato, celery with olives, combination salad, rolls and coffee, bisque porponi. Between the courses parts of the class book were read by the author, some of them causing considerable merriment. The table was decorated in the class colors with favors and sprays and California fir at each plate. The enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the singing of the school song.

The annual dance of the graduating class was held Wednesday evening in the reception room of the nurses' home. The room was prettily decorated in Christmas colors and the music was furnished by D'Atri's orchestra. Punch was served and dancing continued to 12 o'clock.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment of the Sunday school of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church was held Thursday night at the Sunday school rooms and with a large attendance of members and friends.

The program included the singing of carols by members of the primary department, recitations by Mary Louise Grant and Nelson Miller, a song by the junior department and a recitation by Walter Potter.

Santa Claus then arrived and the distribution of gifts to the children took place, each child receiving a present and a box of candy.

The committee in charge of the entertainment comprised: Miss Isabel Shearer, chairman, Miss Mary Gray, Miss Gladys Newbury, Mrs. Grace Greenlaw, Miss Isabel Rodier, Ernest N. Newbury and George Armstrong.

ANOTHER $50 CHECK FOR POLICE FUND

Chief George Lantz has received another contribution, $50 for the police pension fund. The latest gift comes from the Norwich Savings society, and was accompanied by a letter stating that the check was sent in appreciation of the courteous and painstaking work of the members of the department.

YALE GRAD SAYS THE THRILL OF FOOTBALL IS PASSING FOR ALUMNI

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The thrill of football is rapidly passing to Yale Alumni, in the opinion of Matthew A. Reynolds, Yale '94 L, a New Haven attorney and a member of the city board of finance. In a communication to the Yale Alumni Weekly, Mr. Reynolds who is secretary of the class of 1894 says:

"A team which failed to give its best either through its own fault or through deficiency in training never could and never can convince the general body of alumni that it truly represents Yale, nor can coaches who demand and receive all the traffic will bear appeal to this body as the highest type of loyal Yale alumni.

"But the thrill of the game is passing rapidly. We are apparently in error in taking the game so seriously, if we accept the views enunciated by some youthful editor of the News or of the head coach. The game's the thing. We may have moral victories in defeat, moral victories in victories as well as in defeats. Nor is it conceded by those in control that we alumni are entitled either to opinions nor to the expression thereof. The matter should be left entirely in the hands of a chosen few who consider they are well able to manage affairs. We should grow more interested in sport for sport's sake.

"Our part is done when we are permitted to pay higher prices for tickets and to contribute generously in cash whenever Yale needs the money. When collections are in order every alumnus is fully entitled to speak.

"All of this is having a decidedly bewildering effect upon many of us and we are gradually adopting the calm attitude of the Yale captain who can take defeat as a matter of course, of the head coach who can nonchalantly spend the second half of the Maryland game watching the Yale team slaughtered while he sat in Portal 10, behind the goal line, and of the News editor who endeavors to convince us that the football season just passed wasn't so bad after all.

"These lessons are not entirely lost for many of us last year had learned to view the Harvard game from a standpoint of a neutral and this year from the standpoint of one curious as to why we were there, for the game meant nothing particular in the football world though somehow it would seem that this game should hold a position of importance.

"Possibly we have all been in error in taking the game so seriously, but it must be admitted that the thrill is passing."

COLLEGIATE A. A. RECOMMENDS ONLY THREE WEEKS PRACTICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic association today recommended to its member colleges that pre-season football practice be limited to a period of three weeks prior to the opening game, with such practice limited to the college grounds.

This recommendation, featuring a report designed to curb over-emphasis on the intercollegiate game, was adopted after a spirited debate but not by a unanimous vote. Representatives of Brown and New York university voted against it.

There were mingled boquets and brickbats, for the gridiron sport throughout the day's session. Its alleged evils were discussed by Professor R. E. Williams of the University of Chicago and its virtues extolled by Dr. S. V. Sanford of the University of Georgia president of the Southern Intercollegiate conference. Its growth as "the most popular of college sports" was noted by Brig. General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the N. C. A. A. and its praises also sounded by Edward K. Hall chairman of the National rules committee.

The suggested curb on fall practice was adopted on the motion of Professor J. P. Richardson of Dartmouth, chairman of a "committee of five" which also expressed itself in advocacy of limiting daily practice to two hours, as now is done in the western conference; abolishing the use of motion pictures of games in coaching and opposing "glorification of the individual" in all-American team selections, a "futile pursuit" which, it was reported, is on the wane.

FOOTBALL TEAMS DRILL FOR NEW YEAR'S GAME

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Two field generals of football drilled their teams in widely different fashion here today for the Rose Bowl clash New Year's day, between the University of Alabama and Stanford university.

Coach Wallace Wade, two time winner of the right to carry the flag of the east at the annual tournament of Roses Football classic, drove his men through hard scrimmage while "Pop" Warner, coaching the Red Shirts from Palo Alto, put his western champions through a mild, but snappy signal drill.

Eli Post got the most action in the backfield general's position, and it is expected he will direct the opening skirmish against the Crimson tide. Walker, Shipkey, Poulson, Harris, Swan, Robesky, McCreery, Hyland, Hoffman, and Bogue likely will finish out the red squad which takes the brunt of the battle.

"Biff" Hoffman, reversing artist and pass heaver, is throwing the ball lower and faster, were critics said, than he did during the regular playing season. Hoffman also is kicking faster and farther and fills the triple threat bill almost to perfection.

Deepest secrecy surrounded the work of Alabama. "Sherlock" Holmes again took the field today and expects to play the pivot position Saturday. As on yesterday, much time was spent in kicking.

POWELL BUYS PROVIDENCE FRANCHISE IN EASTERN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Albert H. Powell of New Haven, today completed a transaction which gives him full control of the Providence Grays, champions of the Eastern league in 1926, and announced that Patsy Donovan, manager of the Jersey City in the International league last year, had been named manager of the Providence club for 1927, with George T. White, business manager in 1926, to be president and business manager in the future.

The deal makes the Providence Grays an independent team for it involved a complete divorce of Boston National club interests from the champions. Mr. Powell turned over his interest in the Braves to Judge Emil Fuchs president of the Braves and Judge Fuchs, in turn, released his claims on the Providence club, which has been used as a "farm" for the Braves. Mr. Powell originally owned the Worcester Eastern league franchise which was transferred to this city in 1926.

As a result of the deal, many of the players with the 1926 championship team will be taken over by Boston, to whom they originally belonged, and an almost new team will be put in the field by Mr. Powell.

LANDIS INVITES RISBERG TO TELL WHAT HE KNOWS

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Charles (Swede) Risberg, former shortstop for the Chicago White Sox, tonight was invited by Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to come to Chicago and formally place before him the information Risberg has been quoted in newspaper interviews as saying he can give and thereby connect with baseball scandal a score of major league players never before mentioned in connection with crookedness.

Risberg's fair compensation and expenses were guaranteed in a telegram Commissioner Landis sent to him tonight at Rochester, Minnesota.

"The earlier the better," was the Landis reply to Risberg's "challenge to the commissioner," printed in today's newspapers.

"Landis and the big bosses of baseball don't want to know the facts," the newspapers quoted Risberg, who was ousted from organized baseball in 1920, along with the other "Black Sox" of the Chicago team of 1919, as saying. "This is a challenge to the commissioner. Let's see what he'll do about it."

Frank D. Navin, president of the Detroit baseball club slipped into Chicago unheralded today.

He conferred with Commissioner Landis behind closed doors.

"I have absolutely nothing to say," was all the information coming from Commissioner Landis.

"Did you send for him or did he come of his own accord?" the commissioner was asked.

"That is something I refuse to discuss," the commissioner said.

President Ban Johnson of the American league, gave no indication that Navin came here at his behest. He said he was unaware of Mr. Navin's presence in the city until informed by newspaper men.

If Navin came to Chicago concerning the latest slant in the scandal—the fact that Fred West, employe of Navin field in Detroit, said he took the money given him by Dutch Leonard and bet it on a horse race instead of the Detroit-Cleveland ball game—Navin finds himself in the strategic position to ascertain the facts in the case.

DANIELSON TOWNERS TAKE CLOSE GAME FROM STAFFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 30—The Danielson town team again earned a hard victory over the fast Stafford Springs team in town hall tonight in a very fast and clean and cleverly played game of basketball defeating the fast Stafford Boys 34 to 31. At the start it lookde like an easy victory for the local boys but the game went on the Stafford team exhibited some very brilliant basketball and increased their score so that the local boys had to speed up to keep the lead.

Time after time both teams showed a brilliant passing game and received much applause from the large audience. Reeves and Armington led the locals in baskets while Keach, Godfrey and Poirier played their usual exceptionally fine game both on the offense and then on the defense. The Stafford honors was about equally divided although B. Calcheri was the leading basket shooter.

A fast preliminary game was played between the St. James school and the Boy Scouts being won by the former. The referee was Bill Reddy. The summary:

ACTION TO CLEAR PLAYERS TO BE TAKEN TODAY

DETROIT, Dec. 30—(AP)—Definite decision regarding the nature of action to be taken to clear the names of Joe Wood, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker of stigma in connection with the present baseball scandal is expected to be taken following conferences starting here tomorrow between the principals in the case, it was indicated tonight.

Wood, Cobb and James O. Murfin, Cobb's attorney, meeting here to map plans for the fight, will be joined today by Speaker and William Boyd, the ex-Cleveland pilot's attorney.

Murfin tonight said announcement regarding contemplated procedure would await conclusion of the conferences with Speaker and Boyd.

None of the conferees would comment regarding the departure from here today of Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club for a conference in Chicago with Commissioner Landis.

The trip, however, caused considerable discussion in baseball circles where it was interpreted as forecasting the drawing up of lines between the groups at odds in the case, preliminary to an expected court battle.

Meantime, Fred O. West, former ball park attendant, here, who was alleged to have handled the bets on the game in question, and who declared yesterday the money was not placed on the game but instead wagered on a horse race became uncommunicative. He declined to discuss the conflict between his statement and his testimony he was quoted as having given before Commissioner Landis, regarding the wagers.

TAFTVILLE CELTICS SWAMP THREAD CITY COLLEGIANS

Playing brilliant basketball at the Parish hall court Thursday evening the Taftville Celtics ran rough shod over the Willimantic Collegians winning 48 to 23. The Collegians played good basketball but were handicapped by the professional rules under which the game was played. Gauthier, Pingree and Coady were the high scorers for the evening while honors for Willimantic were about evenly divided.

In the preliminary game the Wheel club five won a close game from the Nordics, 23 to 20. The summary:

NO RADICAL CHANGES IN FOOTBALL EXPECTED TO BE MADE THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—While no radical changes in football rules are contemplated or considered necessary for 1927, legislation dealing with alleged evils of the huddle method of calling signals and the shift will be considered by the National football rules committee, its chairman, Edward K. Hall, declared today in his annual report.

Mr. Hall's report, submitted to the annual convention of the National Collegiate A. A., contained a vigorous defense of the forward pass, to which, he said, "we are indebted in a very substantial degree for the greatly increased and widely diversified strategy of the modern game."

For this reason the report pointed out, "artificial restrictions on its use, which in turn necessarily impair its value as a threat, must be approached only with the greatest of care."

The chairman prefaced his report by pointing to the beneficial effects of changes made in the rules last year, among them the new method of putting the ball into play after a safety, which has "entirely stopped the abuse of the safety" and the five-yard penalty for certain incompleted forward passes, which "reports X X X indicate has had a wholesome influence in checking to some extent at least the excessive use of the pass."

Indicating that the 1926 changes made in the gridiron code probably will stand, Mr. Hall's report went on:

"I think I speak for all my associates on the committee when I say that no radical changes in the fundamentals of the present rules are contemplated or considered necessary. The committee probably will wish to consider the huddle method of calling signals and whether or not provision can be made so that it can be retained without offering opportunity for unnecessary delay of the game or other unfair advantage over the team which is on the defensive. It will undoubtedly also consider the shift for the purpose of ascertaining whether the rules governing it can be so adjusted as to prevent its use in ways not contemplated by the rules."

The Western conference, Eastern Football Officials' association and American Football Coaches' association all have gone on record as favoring a curb on shift plays. The consensus of their recommendations is that a two-second pause be made before the ball is snapped.

While admitting that criticism of the forward pass as a "feature of basketball which has been granted on football has diminished during the past season, Mr. Hall's report takes up the cudgels for the aerial game.

"The primary and practically the sole purpose of the pass was to make a running game possible," says the report and adds that "this season more than any other, has furnished the answer to the argument against the forward pass.

"We have seen better line-plunging, better end-running, more diversified strategy and generally better and more successful carrying of the ball than in any season before. But we have seen it principally in teams that have had an effective forward pass attack. This attack becomes a real threat, thus forcing the secondary defense back."

Noting the fact that in 1926 "smaller colleges held their own in matches with teams from larger institutions" the report declares this is due to "the fact that the game as it now stands presents an almost unlimited opportunity for strategy and no single team, no matter how good, can be expected to be ready to meet at all times and at all points the diversity of attack now at the command of the opposing quarterback."

N. C. A. A. WITHDRAWS ITS MEMBERSHIP IN A. O. A.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic association's annual convention today voted to withdraw from membership in the American Olympic association as a result of opposition to the control exercised by the Amateur Athletic union in preparations for this country's participation in the 1928 Olympics.

The action of the N. C. A. A. marking the climax of its 21st annual conference, was taken by unanimous vote after the delegates had listened to an attack by their president, Brig. Gen Palmer E. Pierce, upon the alleged unfair tactics of the A. A. U. in gaining control of the Olympic association.

General Pierce declared that the A. A. U., in seeking control over international inter-collegiate competition, had overstepped its authority. In effect, he said, "War has been declared against the N. C. A. A.," adding that the "time has come to challenge the right of the Amateur Athletic union" to govern track and field competition or other sports over which it claims jurisdiction.

"It is my belief," he asserted, "that the A. A. U. cannot succeed in its efforts to perpetuate its system of control upon amateur sports. It is un-American and out-of-date. It places responsibility for amateurism upon the individual instead of on the organization he represents. The athletics of the United States have become too well and completely organized to make it necessary or desirable that every athlete should be required by the order of the foreign organization (the International Amateur Athletic federation, with which the A. A. U. is affiliated) to sign a registration card and pay a fee to the A. A. U. before he can compete in the Olympic games."

ACADEMY FIVE HOLDS FINAL DRILL FOR GAME

The Academy basketball squad was sent through a hard workout, their last of the week, Thursday afternoon in preparation for their game Saturday night (New Year's) here with the Al-Heller five of Willimantic. Coach McKean drilled his charges extra hard in anticipation of rugged opposition from the Heller family team.

Word comes from Willimantic that the five Heller brothers are putting in some stiff practice sessions in preparation for the coming game, which they consider one of the toughest of their holiday campaign. After taking the measure of the Co. C team of Willimantic early in the week.

N. F. A.'s opponents here Saturday are full of confidence and are quite confident of returning home fifth the decision over the ocial high schoolers.

The largest crowd of the season by far is expected to be present at the "Y" gym for this clash. While the Heller outfit is naturally a great drawing card because of their deeds in the world of sport, at the same time they are also a smooth well-drilled machine capable of holding their own with the best in the state.

Jockey Fractures Skull.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Jockey L. Craver received a probable fractured skull when his mount, French Lady, fell in the third race at Jefferson Park race track this afternoon.

SELIGSON AND SHIELDS REACH JUNIOR FINALS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Julius Seligson, of New York, title defender, and Frank Shields, also of New York, will fight it out New Year's day here for National Junior Indoor tennis supremacy. On the same court tomorrow Wilbur F. Coen of Kansas City, who is National Boys' Outdoor champion, and Sydney Wood, young New Yorker seeded No. 2 to the Missourian, will battle for the Boys' National Indoor title.

Seligson today in the semi-final round of the National Indoor Junior and Boys Tennis championships, hurled aside his most dangerous opponent in the lower brackets—Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore. Henry Johnson of Boston slipped to the underside of a three set match when Shields won ten of his own service games. Billy Jacobs fell before Wood in the semi-final boys round 6-2, 6-2. Henry Clabaugh, Maryland champion, was Coen's victim.

In the junior event Eddie Jacobs, after solving Seligson's service sufficiently in the first set to hold the New Yorker to a 6-6, score broke through in the second to take two games from the champion's racquet and clinch the set for himself 7-5.

In the third set however, his power apparently ebbing, and his nervousness increasing, he was able to save only one game.

Shields called upon his battering service to defeat Johnson, allowing him only seven points in the first set. The Bostonian pulled his match out of the fire temporarily in the second, when, with the score 5-2 against him, he cut through the New Yorker for five straight games, to win the set 7-5. Shields took the third 6-4.

Johnson and Malcolm Hill of Boston tomorrow will meet Alphonso Smith of Annapolis and Eddie Jacobs in the doubles finals. Hill and Johnson today defeated Coen, paired with Donald Strachan of Philadelphia, and Jacobs and A. Smith defeated Shields and Everett Smith of New York.

ROSENBERG-GRAHAM BOUT NOW SET FOR FEB. 4th

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Charles (Phil) Rosenberg will meet Bushey Graham for the bantamweight boxing title at Madison Square Garden Feb. 4. The match first set for Jan. 7, was postponed until Jan. 14 and finally today ordered for Feb. 4.

Rosenberg posted a forfeit of $2,500 with the New York Boxing commission for the championship match and was told that he will lose his title if he fails to make the 118 pound weight limit.

If he fails to make the weight and is outpointed, Graham will be declared the champion, and a victory for Rosenberg, if overweight, will bring a unanimous ruling that the title is vacant.

Rosenberg has declared that this will be his last bout as a bantam, his plans for the New Year including a transfer to featherweight ranks.

HE ALWAYS BOUGHT COUGH DROPS WITH HIS CIGARETTES . . . UNTIL HE DISCOVERED OLD GOLDS

They called him "Coughing Charlie." He seemed to have perpetual whooping-cough. For he let out more "hacks" than the town livery.

Cough drop manufacturers regarded him as a star customer . . . for whenever he bought a pack of cigarettes, he bought a box of Cough Drops.

It never occurred to him that his brand of cigarettes might cause the whooping and wheezing . . . until one day a friend invited him to try a package of OLD GOLDS.

When the cool and creamy smoke struck his abused tonsils, something happened! His irritated throat quieted down like a faithful watch dog obeying his master. Charlie barked no more.

Today when Charlie smokes, he smiles. For he gets a smileage ticket with every package of O. G. Gold for 20 'round trips to Cigarette Satisfaction, without a jar or jolt to throat or tongue.

20 for 15 cents

FUGAZY MAKES TUNNEY VERY ATTRACTIVE OFFER

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The most attractive offer for a display of his talent in the ring will decide the promotion of his first title bout, Gene Tunney said today, after a conference with Humbert Fugasy, the heavyweight champion said that Fugasy had made him a "very liberal offer."

"I have had Fugasy's very liberal offer under consideration for some time," Tunney added, explaining that the promoter met him to renew it, as the champion was about to leave for a vaudeville tour, that will keep him away from New York until March.

"Fugasy's offer was the first concrete one I have had," the title holder continued.

"There was nothing said in our talk about an opponent. That will be a matter for the promoter to decide. All I want is that he may be the best man and the promoter can be depended on to see to that.

"However, there are many angles to be considered before I can accept an offer from a promoter. There are only two leading promoters in the east. I mean by that that two men stand out and I consider them on an equal footing in integrity and honest dealing."

Tunney mentioned no names but it was evident that the two promoters he referred to were "Tex" Rickard and Fugasy.

"I will frankly admit that I look for other promoters to make me offers in a week or two," he added. "I have said that there are two leading promoters in the east but there are other promoters elsewhere and some of them may approach me.

"The proposed bout in any event will be in the summer, an open air affair.

No figures were mentioned by the boxer or promoter.

Tunney was asked if he thought Jack Delaney, the most likely choice as his opponent.

"I don't think it proper for me to discuss the merits or demerits of any boxer likely to be named as my opponent," the champion said.

"It would be indiscreet for me to commend or disparage any man's ability at this time. Certainly if a man is put forward to box for the championship he will be a worth while opponent. There are several good men around."

Tunney left tonight for St. Louis on the first leg of a theatrical tour that will take him to the Pacific coast.

EASTERN COMBINATION HAS SCRIMMAGE DRILL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Scrimmage appeared on today's practice schedule of the eastern football team which meets an all-star western eleven in the annual east-west charity game here New Year's day—a benefit for the Shriners' cripped calldre shospital.

The eastern squad worked out for two hours and at its conclusion, "Navy Bill" Ingram, head coach, said the boys were "full of business" and out to retrieve honors lost last year at the hands of the westerners.

The western delegation baxan tapering off in their practice session. Coach Orin E. Hollinsbery called it a day after an hour and a half's work. It included a light dummy scrimmage.

Those who have watched the teams in action favor the easterners by odds of 10 to 8 despite the fact that their rivals will have an average weight advantage of ten pounds per man.

WILL ACCEPT INVITATION TO MEET WITH LANDIS

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 30—(AP)—Charles (Swede) Risberg, former White Sox shortstop, said tonight he will be glad to accept the invitation of K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner to go to Chicago, and place before him, information he says he can give regarding "crooked" baseball.

Just when he will go he was unable to say. Intending at first to start tonight. His plans now call for him to leave in "two or three days." Until he decides definitely, he may not reply to the Landis invitation, he said.

He repeated his statement of today denying that he had said that "Landis and the big bosses of baseball don't want to know the facts," a declaration attributed to him regarding facts he asserted he has ready for consideration of the commissioner.

Risberg, banned from organized baseball in 1920 in connection with the White Sox world series play in 1919 has played professional ball here the past two years.

FRENCH NET STARS HOLD RANKING PLACES

PARIS, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The name of Susanne Lenglen, who forfeited her amateur status by becoming a professional, has disappeared from the premier place it held for so many years in the ranking of France's feminine stars. The men's 1926 ranking, as decided by the French Tennis federation, shows that Rene Lacoste, Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet will share honors for supremacy.

Lacoste, undisputed champion of the United States by virtue of his victory over Jean Borotra at Forest Hills, N. Y., last September, thus will have to divide first place with his defeated adversary and Cochet, conqueror of "Big Bill" Tilden.

Paul Feret, who joined the professional ranks with Mlle. Lenglen, likewise was dropped from the tennis federation's lists.

Suzanne's place at the head of the women players will be shared by Didi Vlasto and Helen Contostavlos, French girls of Greek origin.

The official ranking, which, although it became known today will not be published by the tennis federation until Jan. 1, places Jacques Brugnon in fourth place. He was partnered with Cochet in the victorious men's doubles team at Wimbledon this year. M. Landry and Jean Emile Couitteas are tied for fifth place; M. George and Gentien, divide seven place; George Gouttenoire is placed ninth, and Jean Samazeuilh tenth.

Mlle. Deve is given third place in the women's list; Mlles. Deeclerias and Grassin and Mmes. Golding and Caussard are tied for fourth place, and Mmes. Lebeanerais, Laforie and Mlle. Conquet are tied for the last three places.

What is probably the greatest collection of Chinese porcelains in the world has lain hidden in the cellars of the treasure house of the "Old seral" of the Turkish sultans in Constantinople, according to Professor Ernst Zimmerman of Dresden, one of the world's foremost authorities on ceramics. A large part of the collection consists of Sung and Ming pieces ranging in date from the tenth to the seventh Christian centuries. It is believed that the bulk of the art treasure was gathered by Sultan Soliman the Magnificent during the middle part of the sixteenth century.

On the Hawaiian islands may be found wonders of nature not seen anywhere else in the world. On Maui, the Garden island, the volcano of Haleakala rears its snow capped crest above the clouds. The rim of the crater is 20 miles around, and here it is that the rare silver sword plant may be found. From a distance it resembles the yucca of California. Thick felt-like leaves cluster at the base of a tall slender stem, crowned with a silvery plume of flowers. The silver sword is becoming scarce, due to the ravages of mountain goats. It grows in such inaccessible places that it is as difficult to gather as the Alpine edelweiss.

DILATORY CAR OWNERS SEEKING REGISTRATIONS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—The advice of the motor vehicle department of the state given to the owners of cars about the 1st of November to obtain renewal of registration before the end of the year did not have the effect of serving the purpose intended. This morning there was a long line of auto owners seeking the papers necessary, if they are to operate cars after Friday. The line of anxious ones extended far down Bank street from the motor department office and doubled up when it stretched out too far.

PRESCRIBED FOR OWN COLD—SAILOR'S DOSE BAD STUFF

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—Only one offender was presented in the police court this morning. He was a sailor of the coast guard who sought to cure a cold by the use of the average that in these times goes for whiskey. He mixed his drinks with aspirin, he said, and as a result he was very drunk and very ugly when he tacked up Bank street and attacked an officer of the city on the way. That meant a mixup and the sailor was given a bunk in the police station. He was penitent and humiliated this morning and so expressed himself representing that he was not an habitual user of liquor. He had overstayed his leave and for that will pay a penalty at the Coast Guard academy. A remedy for a cold that will be prescribed by a physician was recommended to him when he is afflicted again, and no other penalty was imposed on him.

George McPherson, superintendent of the Belchertown, Mass., state school at Belchertown, Mass., today communicated with the New London police, a request that a lookout be maintained for Agnes Fannion, who escaped from the Massachusetts school on October 31 and who it is believed is in New London. The girl is described as being 22, about five feet, two inches in height and weighs about 115 pounds. She was seen in New London two weeks ago, was driving a Ford automobile and had a male companion.

Colds and grip have attacked the members of the New London police force rather vigorously the last week of the year, but the afflicted ones have pretty generally recovered and are on duty again.

A dog that manifested symptoms of rabies was killed by Dr. Bitgood, veterinarian, a few days ago and an analysis by the state laboratory at Hartford verified the opinion of the veterinarian and disclosed the wisdom of putting the animal out of business.

The funeral of Hugh E. Kenyon of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Elder. Members of Pequot lodge, I. O. O. F., were bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Mrs. Gilbert Fahey and infant son of 8 West Pleasant street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

James Dygert of Eastern Point road, Groton, reported to the New London police last night that an automobile robe was stolen from his car while it was parked on Huntington street, between Church and Federal streets.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R B. Stoeckel today ordered the drivers licenses of W. Valentine Miller, 75 Bilnman street, formerly of Lyme, and Tony Cydyle, 336 Williams street and Alex Miller, 264 Ledyard street, suspended. Miller's automobile struck and fatally injured Frederick Beckwith of Station 15, Waterford on the New Haven turnpike last Saturday night. Miller will be presented in the Waterford town court tomorrow night on a charge of manslaughter. He is at liberty on bail of $1,000. Cydyle in the police court last Saturday morning was found guilty of reckless driving. Cydyle drove a five ton truck through Main street last Friday evening with such recklessness that it collided with three pleasure automobiles.

P. LEROY HARWOOD GOING ON THE PRESIDENT'S SPECIAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—When the Presidents special, the new train of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad company makes its first trip over the Miami extension to Florida next month, P. LeRoy Harwood, treasurer of the Mariners Savings bank will be included among the distinguished passengers. The train will leave New York Jan. 5 and the party will be absent about eight days. Mr Harwood, who is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, received his invitation to make the trip from L Davies Warfield, president of the association. The party will include officials of the railroad, bankers and financiers.

Louis Pettrozini, 159 Howard street was arrested tonight charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. It is hardly likely that he will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning, for the complainant, his lodging house mistress refuses to appear in court against Pettrozini. Pettrozini went to his room about 6:30 o'clock, drunk, and created a disturbance. The police were asked to remove Pettrozini and when Patrolmen William Riordan and Lawrence Fardy responded, Pettrozini was ugly and abusive. The officers, however, succeeded in landing Pettrozini in a cell without difficulty. Pettrozini made threats that he would commit suicide.

Walter N. Block, 275 Washington street, Norwich, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman William Manice, charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances in parking his automobile in restricted area on Bank street. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

Mrs Sarah E. Parker, 83, widow of Joseph Parker, and a former resident of New London, died recently at her home in Wallingford.

The funeral of Frederick M. Beckwith, 37, late of Station 15, Waterford, fatally injured when struck by an automobile driven by W. Valentine Miller, 75 Bilnman street, at Station 14 1-2, Waterford, Saturday night, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Maronie street. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. Burial was in Riverhead cemetery, East Lyme.

Louis Crane, of Niantic; Mrs. Mary Rottenberg 32 Walden avenue; Mrs. James Hubbell and infant daughter, Jordan Village, Waterford; Miss Alice Page, Groton and Master Robert Post, Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today. The Post boy was injured Christmas day when the automobile in which he was riding with a companion, Frank Mather, George avenue, Groton and driven by the Post boy's father, overturned on Mallory Hill, Groton. Mr Post who was also injured has been discharged at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital and the Mather boy was discharged from Home Memorial hospital yesterday.

Patrolman Lawrence Pardy is soon to become a benedict. This was revealed today wit hthe announcement by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miner, 72 Rosemary street of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Miner, to the police officer. Patrolman Pardy is one of the youngest members of the police department, having been appointed patrolman less than a year ago.

Mrs Claude Dowsett, of Golden street, is entertaining Miss Helen Hollander, Norwich.

Mr and Mrs. Steward Demosh, of Pequot avenue, are visiting relatives in Columbus, Ohio.

H D Barrows, State street merchant and residing on Broad street, was taken to Home Memorial hospital where he is a medical patient. Mr. Barrows is suffering with grip.

At a meeting of Mohegan lodge, I. O. O. F., last night Edwin P. Gray was elected noble grand. The other officers elected were: Vice noble grand, H. A. Beckwith; recording secretary, Andrew Morris; financial secretary, James Adams; treasurer, Edward Prince; paraphernalia keeper, R. I. Church; lodge physician, Dr. Ross E. Black; trustee Samuel Prince; pianist, H C Perkins. The newly elected officers will be installed Jan. 12.

Clyde M. Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, of Athens, Ala., and Miss Mildred L Fritts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fritts, of Phillips street, were married at the parsonage of the First Baptist church, Christmas day, by Rev. Chester H. Howe. Andrew Fritts, brother of the bride, was best man and Miss Bernice Beebe attended the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside at 1 Colver street, when they return from a wedding trip. Mr Gray is a chief petty officer, United States Coast Guard, section base 4, state pier.

James S. Herren, son of Mrs. Anna Herren of Great Bend, Kan., and Miss Emeline A. Opperman, daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. Ernest C. Smith. The newly elected officers will be installed Jan. 5 by Deputy Grand Chancellor Dr. F. M. Goldberg, of Wauregan lodge, Norwich. The lodge has been granted permission by the grand chancellor of the state to sell shares in the Connecticut Farm Home association among the members of the lodge.

The two marines who have been guarding the loading and unloading of mail matter at the union station for several weeks, will be withdrawn any time after the 5th of January, it became known today, although the definite date of the withdrawal has not been announced. The guards have been engaged guarding the mails ever since the mail truck was robbed at Elizabeth, N. J. at which time several other mail robberies of magnitude occurred in other cities. This form of robbery has apparently been abandoned and for that reason the withdrawal of the guards has been decided upon.

STONINGTON

A number of years ago when Theodore D. Palmer resided at Red Brook where the Streeter family now own, a number of the Stonington fire department was called there to put out a chimney fire. Extinguishers and other things were taken up in a sleighing one of the extinguishers was dropped down the chimney and it was impossible for the men to get it out. Grover White, while engaged in setting up a store Tuesday last put his hand in the chimney hole to see that the chimney was clear and he discovered the extinguisher. A rope was fastened to the extinguisher and hauled out none the worse for the years it had been lodged in the chimney. Mr. White is to keep the extinguisher as a souvenir.

Miss Arlene Bailey of Quiambog spent Thursday with Miss Lenora Bailey. They were in skating for the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Ross spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Griffith, of East Great Plain.

On Friday, school closed for the Christmas recess. Games were played and the gifts on the Christmas tree were distributed. Mrs. Harry Bedat furnished refreshments which were served by Mrs. Bedat, assisted by Mrs. Roy L. Beard.

Wednesday afternoon the Mission circle met with Mrs. George W. Woodem. Ten were present. Letters were read by Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell, Mrs. Charles E. Ellis and Mrs. Nathan E. Whiting, Mrs. O. B. Leffingwell presided at the meeting. The hostess served sandwiches, cake, coffee and tea.

Guest, Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Beard were Miss Catherine Holton of Franklin, Miss Winifred Holton of Madison, Conn., and Sherman Stone of Niantic, Conn.

CHAPLIN

Owing to the hard snowstorm Sunday the church services were omitted.

Rev. Joseph F. Cobb of South Windham is expected to preach next Sunday.

Many homes in town had Christmas guests, Mrs. Katherine Clark of Hartford was a visitor over the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Vail.

A. F. Sliswick and family motored to Springfield Saturday and visited with friends until Sunday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter E. Lanphear of Eastford, Miss Fannie Parkinson of New London, Mrs. Irene Paine of Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Swackhamer of Willimantic, Miss Mabel A. Lanphear of Manchester, George Lanphear of Wormwood Hill, Charles B. Russ, Miss Fannie Russ, Mrs. Cora Trowbridge, Mabel and Paul Trowbridge and Mrs. Oren Russ made up a Christmas party that dined on chicken pie, baked goose and other good things at the home of Mrs. Ellen Russ.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton M. Welch were Christmas dinner guests at Bernard Potter's.

Gustav Erickson of Hartford and Oscar Erickson of New York were Christmas guests at Charles Perry's.

Mrs. Ruth E. Barton of Hartford visited over the week end with Mr. and Mrs. George E. Snow.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Snow, Mr. Samuel C. Chapman, Robert and Betty Chapman spent Christmas day with the family of Robert O. Snow, in Willimantic.

Katie, Pauline and Louise Landeck were visitors Christmas day with the family of Peter Sank on Bear Hill.

The roll call service of the Congregational church is to be held New Year's day. The meeting at 11 o'clock will be followed by dinner and a social hour. The roll call service will be at 1:30 p. m.

A large deer with fine spreading antlers was seen the past week in the house lot of W. B. Gallup. The deer was trying to find apples under the trees.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Weather conditions have interfered with many plans for public gatherings in the last few days. Sunday school was omitted here this week and only a short service conducted by Rev. Mrs. Jones instead of the usual morning worship. The program of special Christmas music arranged by Mrs. J. N. Jacobson was postponed to next Sunday morning when a large choir will be assisted by a men's chorus. The Christmas party to have been given by Echo grange Tuesday evening was postponed two weeks.

The meeting of the First Congregational church is to be Friday evening. Supper will be served at six o'clock and will be followed by the roll call and business meeting.

Among Christmas guests in town were George C. Jenner of Rochester, N. Y.; Ray Davoll of Ridgefield and Miss Blanche Davoll, of New York; Mervyn Little of Wesleyan, Miss Jaska Manning of Durham. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lauder were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Colby of New Britain and Mrs. Otis Kingsley and Mr. and Mrs. William McFall of East Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dewey, of Springfield were at the home of Mrs. Dewey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dunham.

Paul Jansen has enlisted in the U. S. Coast artillery and is located at Fort Banks, Winthrop, Mass.

HOPEFUL FOREGAST FOR COTTON TEXTILE INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—More substantial basis exists today for confidence in the fundamental soundness of the cotton textile industry than at almost any other period, in the opinion of William D. Judson, president of the association of cotton textile merchants of New York.

TODAY'S EVENTS

"Years are worn away by the inaudible file of time."

One hundred years ago today died William Gifford, a shoemaker who became a famous man of letters and first editor of the Quarterly Review.

Greetings to Harry S. New, postmaster-general of the United States, who today celebrates his 58th birthday anniversary.

Frederick D. Underwood, who began his career as a brakeman, will retire from the presidency of the Erie railroad today after 26 years of service.

Stanley M. Bruce, Australian prime minister, today will be entertained at luncheon at the white house, where 75 years ago today Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, was the guest of honor.

The lid will be slammed down on the New Year's eve celebrations at the New York night clubs tonight, when the new curfew law requiring such places to close at 3 a. m. is to come into operation.

Catholic college students from all parts of the world will gather in Rome today to participate in a biennial celebration of the canonization of Saints Aloysius and Stanislaus.

People living within a radius of 30 miles of Philadelphia will be able to hear at midnight tonight the tolling of the death dirge of the old and the ringing in of the new year. The sonorous peals will come from a 17-ton bell, described as the largest single voiced instrument in America, which has been hung in the tower of one of the great department stores.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Wax Reporter for Canton News

Freddy Craig, Jr., who is appearing in an unusual vaudeville act at the Broadway theatre this week is a former newspaper man having been employed as a reporter for the Canton News, Canton, O. He was well acquainted with Don Mellett, editor of the paper, who was murdered early last summer in the yard of his home

Breed Theater

The announcemet of the Breed theater that it has contracted for a showing of The Prince of Tempters for a three day engagement is one of the most important theater notes that has been made in the past several months. The Prince of Tempters was made by Robert Kane for First National Pictures, Inc., and is the first American work of Lothar Mendes, the European director who was brought to this country by the producer.

Mendes was brought to this country to introduce some of the foreign styles of direction into the Robert Kane pictures, and we know by advance reports from the studios that this big production has unique camera effects such as are seldom see in American made pictures.

A larger than ordinary cast—even for a special—is announced by the Breed theater, with Ben Lyon, Lois Moran, Lya de Putti, the German sensation; Ian Keith and Sam Hardy heading the cast.

The Prince of Tempters will be shown Sunday, Monday and Tuesday January 2, 3, and 4. Forever After, which will be shown at the Breed thereafter today and Saturday, is a thrilling tale of a poor New England boy who falls in love with a wealthy girl and tries to distinguish himself for her sake on the football ad battlefields. Lloyd Hughes and Mary Astor are the stars.

The gridiron sequences, which make the film an unusual one by themselves, were taken in the famous Pasadena Rose Bowl with the championship team of the University of Southern California actually playing before the camera.

If a penniless man has nowhere else to go he should go to work.

Dance Tonight At Armory

Under the leadership of Captain N. C. Pierce and the newly appointed officers of Hq. Battery & Combat Train, 1st Bn, 192nd field artillery, C. N. G., a New Year's dance is to be held at the state armory on McKinley avenue tonight (Friday). The Ideal orchestra has been secured for the evening, the first appearance of the orchestra in this city. No pains have been spared to make the dance one of the finest of the year and it is expected that there will be a banner attendance.

Broadway Theater

A veritable avalanche of entertainment descended on Norwich yesterday and will continue to hold sway at the Broadway theater for two days more. We speak of the five Keith-Albee vaudeville acts and the photoplay.

Freddy Craig, Jr., opens the bill with a somewhat novel, if not unusual form of entertainment, entitled Concentration.

Orville Harris and Claire Kolte in Waiting for the Bus, written by Johnny Cantwell have something real funny to offer. Many have had the same troubles befall them and to this act is a relief.

The Four Caddies, instead of carrying sticks and following balls, are supplied with songs, dances and comedy. It is a very cleverly arranged routine called Fun Just Off the Golf Course.

Tom and Dolly Ward have a way with them that leads straight to popular approval and their comedy songs and sayings were a real hit.

Bill and Genevieve in Frills, Thrills and Spills have a delightful closing act.

It seems a remarkable thing but nevertheless, the first motion drama with the enormous power of electricity as its theme, has just been made. We refer to The Silent Power, the new Gotham production now playing at the Broadway theater.

While the star, Ralph Lewis, gives one of the best bits of real acting s n in many moons on the silver sheet, the giant turbines and generators in the background dominate the picture every minute. There is something fascinating in watching one mere man controlling the giants of chained lightning and the patrons of the Broadway theater have a refreshingly original screen entertainment in store for them.

The picture is pure melodrama, with a well defined plot that has many dramatic situations and thrills galore.

Don't forget the midnight show, a New Year's eve frolic at the Broadway theater tonight.

Palace Theater

Not one soul has been spared by the management of the Palace theater to make the vaudeville and movie program for today and tomorrow ring out the old and ring in the new year in a ever-to-be-forgotten manner. For weeks the best acts in the circuit have been reviewed in order to bring together a show to put the finishing touches on 1926 at the Palace with more pep and color than has been seen in this city for sometime.

The Filipino Ramblers, a peppy native string orchestra, offered a musical melange of song, dance, and music, which scored tremendously; Jones and Jones in their comedy act Railroaded was a laugh from start to finish; Nelson and Warden presented a variety program of comedy, songs, and character, very well done; Moran and La Burt were great in songs and dances de luxe; and the Dallas trio rough and tumble worked smoothly and very sensational. As a whole a very good variety bill.

Flashy, vigorous and extremely human is Stranded in Paris, Bebe Daniels' Paramount comedy of Parisian life.

Supported by James Hall, Ford Sterling and Iris Stuart, Miss Daniels, fresh from her triumph in The Campus Flirt which shattered attendance records in practically every city it appeared, has contributed one of the most deliciously peppery performances ever witnessed on a screen.

Starting with swiftness and gaining momentum as it unreels, piling situation upon situation, the climax is reached in a thrilling rally-ho chase down a steep, narrow incline.

The story goes from a drab boarding house in the United States to the famous cafes and modiste shops of Paris. One of the main attractions of the film is its photography. Cameraman William Marshal, and Director Arthur Rosson have contributed several of the most unusual effects yet shown to motion pictures. Just how they were attained will always remain a mystery for the studio, we understand, has refused to disclose the secret of their attainment.

No pains have been spared by the management to make the midnight show this year the best ever. A splendid program, generous in both quantity and quality, has been prepared, which should give you more than your money's worth on this night of nights. The show will commence at 11:15 with the regular vaudeville and pictures.

Starting Sunday for two days only, a big double feature bill will be presented Thomas Meighan in his latest The Canadian and Collegiate with Alberta Vaughn and an all star cast.

Connecticut College Concert

Not only do the English Singers of London, scheduled for a concert in Bulkeley auditorium, New London, Tuesday evening, January 11, offer a new form of musical entertainment but bring also a new repertory of songs, rediscovered wonders of the flowering Elizabethan era that abounded in motets, madrigals, folksongs, ballets and canzonets,—revelations of beauty long forgotten but lately made available through researches of Dr. Edmund Fellowa, chaplain of Windsor college, the world's greatest authority on madrigals. This rich collection of 900 separate items, representing the Golden Age of English literature and musical culture, is now for the first time presented in public performance. Many of these gems of an ancient art are so exquisite, delicate and lovely as to cause wonderment why they had lain dormant during these many years, but the real reason for their disuse was because musical art took a turn in another direction. The wheel of fate however never stops. Great things can never die. So it happens that, with the rediscovery and release of these marvellous specimens of craftsmanship that is unmatchable today, we are privileged to witness the renaissance of part song singing such as the world has not been blessed with during several centuries.

The English singers, six in number, are not merely vocalists in quest of gain and notoriety through their newly-resurrected art, but they are primarily lovers of music who sing because they enjoy that king of work more than anything else and enthuse over the unparalleled beauties of the compositions they sing. They communicate this spirit to their audiences who, in turn, catch it and carry it away with them as a precious memory.

A schoolboy wants to know how many square rods it takes to make a wisecre.

VOLUNTOWN

The Voluntown schools closed Thursday afternoon for the holidays and will open early in the new year. Perfect attendance records for December are as follows: Grammar room, 20 pupils, Mrs. Mary E. Peckham, teacher, Elsie Edmond; Marion Edmond, Marion Fletcher, Olive Fletcher, Ida Hamel, Jamse Rusel, Jane Whipple, Eugene Bebo, William Macomber, Arthur Rusel; grades 3, 4 and 5, 22 pupils, Miss Rebecca Pease, teacher, Evonne Boucher, Anna May Downing, Helvi Holm, Hazel Macomber, Helen Magrey, Raymond Frink, John Herbert, Paul Laine, Albert Perkins, Charles Roode, John Roode, Dens Rusel, Joseph Sheldon; grades 1 and 2, Miss Ella Gray, teacher, Anna Macomber, Letha Sheldon, George Edmond, Jr., Anna Sword.

The fall term records show that the following were perfect in attendance: Grammar room, Elsie Edmonds, Marion Edmond, James Rusel, Jane Whipple, William Macomber, Arthur Rusel, Eugene Bebo; grades 3, 4 and 5, Helvi Holm, Paul Laine, Charles Roode, John Roode, Dens Rusel, Hazel Macomber.

Dr. Browning of Jewett City on Dec. 16 made a survey of the teeth of the pupils of Center school to ascertain the dentistry work need for the children.

Wylie school, teacher, Miss Margaret Tanner, perfect in attendance were: Charles Hnatyahyn, Merton Hnatyshyn, Urho Leppanen, Arne Matson, Lauri Palonen, Arthur Palonen, Jeanette Gray, Ethel Gray, Phoebe Hartley, Alli Luoto, Annia Luoto, Edith Williams. The perfect attendance records at this school were materially decreased during December by an epidemic of measles which fortunately was confined to this district and is now over.

The first community Christmas tree ever held in Voluntown, proved an unqualified success. The tree was set up in Union hall and

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment characterized today's stock market, which closed irregularly lower. The price movement was confused by the extensive year-end readjustment of speculative accounts, some of which was believed to be for the purpose of registering income tax losses. This was the last day in which losses could be registered in the ordinary manner as Friday's transactions will not be cleared until next week although it will still be possible to register losses tomorrow by means of cash sales. Today's trading was only moderate in volume.

The calling of over $40,000,000 in loans, incidental to the heavy month-end demand for funds and the desire of many institutions to strengthen their reserve position on the last day of the year, sent the call money rate from 5 1-2 to 6 per cent, duplicating the high level attained on only a few days throughout the year. The higher rate was generally regarded as temporary, with an easing tendency expected next week when the huge sums withdrawn for interest and dividend payments start to flow back here. The New York Federal Reserve bank announced that the rediscount rate was unchanged at 4 per cent.

Refusal of the Mexican government to grant an extension of time on the new oil land laws, which go into effect the first of the year, inspired rather heavy liquidation in the stocks of companies having large property interests south of the Rio Grande. American smelting broke over 4 points and rallied 1. Pan-American B closed 2 points lower and smaller recessions were recorde dby Standard Oil of New York, and others.

Practically all of the standard industries lost ground. Baldwin reacted 3 points to 169 and then rallied feebly. General Motors closed 1 3-4 points lower at 155 4-6 and U. S. Steel common showed a fractional recession to 157 1-2 after having touched 158 1-8. Allied Chemical showed a slight gain.

Pools were active in a number of specialties despite the high money rates. New peak prices for the year, or longer, were recorded by Bloomingdale Bros., Outlet Co. common and preferred, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, and Union Carbide.

Rails yielded with the industrials although good investment demand was reported for Atchison, which crossed 170 for a gain of over 5 points and then slipped back to 168 3-8, and the Wheeling & Lake Erie issues.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity markets pointed upward. Active wheat futures advanced 1 to 2 cents a bushel on publication of bullish export figures and cotton moved up 10 to 15 points on reports that much of the late crop will be left unpicked. Raw sugar prices were unchanged, and coffee futures were slightly higher.

With the exception of French francs, which held steady around 2.95 1-2 cent, the principal European currencies were offered at concessions. Demand sterling ruled 1-8 of a cent lower around $4.84 13-16 and Italian lire were quoted just below 4 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—A slight downward revision of bond prices today was traceable to a year-end readjustment of investment holdings and uneasiness over credit conditions. An increase in the call money rate to 6 per cent, coincident with the calling of $40,000,000 or more of bank loans, curbed buying activity in all divisions of the market except the foreign group.

In view of the tighter money situation, the higher yielding European bonds attracted more attention than usual, several of them rising to new high records. Among the most active features were the new Belgian 7s which sold for the first time at 101, French 7 1-2s and 8s, both of which scaled new peaks, all of the French railway issues and the German 7s.

Disappointment over the failure of the Mexican government to delay the operation of the new oil regulations was reflected in the selling of Pan-American 6s, California Petroleum, Union Oil and some of the Sinclair issues were fractionally lower.

Profit-taking and a disposition to adjust accounts before the end of the year explained the liquidation of several railroad liens without any serious setback to prices. Northern Pacific, "Katy," Baltimore & Ohio, "Big Four" and St. Paul were among the issues to work lower.

Three new high records were established in the U. S. government list, by the first and third Liberty 4 1-4s and the treasury 4 1-4s, before a late reaction set in.

FARMING SUCCESS A MATTER OF INDIVIDUALITY

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

It is interesting and somewhat consolatory to learn, on the authority of the National Industrial conference board, that the average income of the American farm-owning and operating farmer increased by approximately 4 per cent in the crop year of 1926.

It is equally interesting, even if somewhat less consolatory, to be informed by the same authority that his average income, after paying 5 1-2 per cent interest on his farm investment, is now $440 a year.

It is still more interesting and still less consolatory to learn that this is not one-half the average income of tenant farmers and less than one-third the average earnings per individual of workers engaged in other occupations.

And, again, it is interesting but not at all consolatory to know that, while the average farmer's income has been increased during the year by about $17, the cost of his living has risen by somewhere between $19 and $20 during the same period.

That is, he has taken a four-inch step ahead, and slipped five inches back.

This undeniably indicates progress, though some might be tempted to object that it is progress in the wrong direction.

It would certainl puzzle even President Coolidge and Secretary Hoover to demonstrate, mathematically, how a gain of 4 per cent, in one direction, with a loss of 5 per cent in another, proves agricultural prosperity.

The only really manifest deduction I can draw from the figures is that a farmer who desires to increase his money income should abandon his farm get rid of injurest and taxes, and go work somebody else's farm as tenant-farmer, thereby doubling his intake. Or better yet, that he should sell the old farm, go into mining or railroading or some other mechanic occupation, and thus swell his income three times.

Sometimes, when I get thinking of the inexcusably stupid blindness with which "Big Business" mismanages the economic affairs of the world, I am almost inclined to wish that some such general abandonment of the farms might take place. It seems, at times, as impossible to grow ideas of broad-visioned, fore-sighted, clear-brained economic statesmanship in the sordid and coldly sour soil of "Big Business" as it would be to train a Berkshire boar to dainty table manners.

In moments of depression it comes to look as if the only way in which the farm world could secure a kindly or even sympathetic hearing from organized business was to cease production in toto till the said hordes of business were sufficiently starved to be scared into offering fair terms.

But this, after all, is a counsel of despair. There ought to be some way of during the patient's cold without first bringing on a case of double pneumonia.

As a rule, we farmers no more want to hold our present overlords in terror than we want to be held in terror by them for their own enrichment; nor do we hanker after leading them at heel, like hungry dogs whimpering for us to relent and fling them a few bones or crusts. There doesn't seem to be any insuperable reason why we can't all march, arm in arm and equal-footed, for the attainment of a common, mutual advantage.

But how shall such an alliance be brought about? How shall it be transmuted from golden theory to steel-edged accomplishment?

I wish I knew.

But, honest Injun, I don't.

Therein lies my sole claim to attention as a writer on agricultural topics. Of all the scores and hundreds who are constantly giving advice and writing prescriptions for the ailing industry, I am, so far as I know the only one who doesn't profess to have a sure cure. I do not pretend to know how to make a silver wh

TAFTVILLE

Announcement has been made that the regular Rock Nook Well Child's conference which is held on the last Friday of each month at the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building, will not be held this week owing to the holidays.

Mrs. Joseph Donovan of Bristol has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Bridget Flynn and her sister, Miss Margaret Flynn of North B. street.

Fifteen children suffering with whooping cough were treated with serum at the whooping cough clinic arranged for Thursday afternoon by the Taftville chapter, American Red Cross, in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. Dr. George M. Thompson was the attending physician, and several nurses were present to assist.

A good sized deer was struck by an automobile on the Newent road in front of the residence of Joseph Desmarais Monday evening. The driver, it without giving his name, called Mr Desmarais who was working in poultry houses, and upon finding the animal seriously injured, it was humanely killed. Mr. Desmarais then got in touch with the New London county game warden, who directed that the carcass be quartered and meat distributed to others by Mr. Desmarais.

The Basketry club held its weekly meeting at the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building Thursday evening.

Richard Cotton of Lynn, Mass., is spending the week at his home on North C street.

After spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Sharples of South Second avenue, Thomas Sharples has returned to Lynn, Mass.

Plans are being made for the serving of a supper preceding the annual meeting of the Taftville Congregational church.

The Workers conference which Superintendent Victor H. Davis had called for Tuesday evening, to be held in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church, had to be postponed because of the inclement weather.

Miss Hazel A. Tanner of Hasbrouk Heights, New Jersey and Miss Doris Palmer of Montclair, New Jersey are spending the holidays at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis.

At the Christmas tree exercises of the Taftville Congregational church school a pantomime was presented entitled "Why the Chimes Rang". Those taking part were as follows:

Reader, Mildred Dunlop; Pedro, Victor S. Davis; Little Brother, Thomas Sears, Jr.; Woman in the Snow, Margaret Stitcht; King, Herbert Airey; Knights, Walter Wohollehen and Albert Airey; Archer, Richard Oat; Author, Frank Moore; Musician, Marjorie McNally; Artist, Edith Adams; Rich Woman, Jean Copeland; Rich Man, Wilton Davis; Old Man, Edmond Mathewson; Young Man, Leonard Pinaree; Young Woman, Phyllis Airey; Women with gifts, Dorothy Troeger and Helen Troeger; Carollers, Edith Heap, Dorothy Aberg, Mary Alice Watts, Mildred Terrington, Gladys Kinder, Dorothy Hunt. The music was rendered by Miss Nellie Howie the organist, who included in her program the "March of the Magi," by Theodore Dubois and valuable assistance was given by Mr. William Chamberlain and Mr. George Mydderman.

Wilfred Cormier of Norwich avenue, is spending the holidays in Baltic.

Watch Night Service Tonight

A watch night service will be held at Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, tonight, at 11:30 o'clock and will be followed by the celebration of the Lord's supper.

The town of Coventry was [illegible] without a community Christmas tree as the two big trees on each side of the library steps were wired for colored lights, making an attractive showing.

FIRE CHIEF ROSE SUES AUTO DRIVER CLAIMING $15,000 DAMAGES

Charles H. Rose, chief of the New London fire department, has filed suit in the superior court for this county, asking damages of $15,000 from the Eastern Dairies company of Massachusetts, with a branch office in New London. The papers in the suit were filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

Chief Rose in his complaint claims that while responding to a fire alarm May 2nd last and while he was riding in his car, driven by Fireman James A. Wood, on Pearl street, New London, a truck owned by the defendant company failed to grant the right of way at a street intersection and ran into his car. The chiefs machine was pushed from the street onto the sidewalk and the right side was badly damaged. Chief Rose was seriously injured in the crash and the injuries have weakened his physical condition.

Faces Two Suits

Eugene W. Jones of Groton and the Groton Lumber company have brought suits against Fred Kiess, Waterford contractor, the former claiming damages of $2,000 and the latter damages of $3,000. The suits are brought on the common counts.

Files $10,000 Damages

Marguerite H. Buzzell of New York has started suit against Leon C. Buzzell of East Lyme and Robert E. Hall, Hartford, trustee of the residuary testamentary trust under the will of the late Grace C. Buzzell. Damages of $10,000 are claimed by the plaintiff who formerly resided in New London.

On Nov. 3, 1922, Leon Buzzell, by his note, promised to pay to the plaintiff $6,704.62 on demand, which note is now alleged to be due. Robert Hall, it is alleged, was by the probate court for the district of East Lyme, appointed and qualified as trustee of a certain residuary testamentary trust created by the will of the late Grace C. Buzzell, and is now acting as such.

By the terms of the trust, as set forth in the will of the late Grace C. Buzzell, the defendant, Robert E. Hall, as trustee, was directed to pay to the defendant, Leon C. Buzzell, in equal quarterly payments as nearly as may be for and during the term of his life, the entire net income of the trust estate, excepting two annuities, aggregating $500 yearly, according to the complaint.

It is further alleged that the will of Grace C. Buzzell contained no provision for accumulation of the income of the trust estate and the trust is not expressly given for the support of Leon C. Buzzell or his family.

There will be accrued in hands of Robert E. Hall, trustee, large sums of money as income from the principal of the trust estate and will be due and payable to the defendant, Leon C. Buzzell, the papers set forth.

The plaintiff, besides asking damages of $10,000, petitions that an order be entered directing the defendant, Robert E. Hall, trustee, to pay over the net income derived from the trust estate to the plaintiff, as the same may accrue, until the indebtedness of the defendant, Leon C. Buzzell, to the plaintiff is satisfied.

CHRISTMAS SOCIAL AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Nearly 300 members and friends of the Central Baptist Sunday school were present to enjoy the Christmas entertainment on Wednesday evening. The program opened with the singing of Christmas carols by a group of girls from the Central Sunshine club and Four-Fold Comrades. The girls carrying lighted candles, marched around the balcony and then on to the platform where they sang two additional numbers. Recitations entitled "Christmas Symbols" were given by Julia Ludlow, Marjory Hill, Caroline Noyes, Dorothy Miller, Beatrice Adams, and Helen Pendleton, each one carrying a symbol of Christmas.

Santa Claus Toy Shop was then presented and proved a hit with the audience. The participants were: Santa Claus, Howard Ludlow; Helpers, Gilbert Adams, Cleland DeGrenier, toy soldiers, Gavin Pitt, John Hanson, Edwin Wigley, Nelson Packer, Lloyd Chapman; Brownies, George and Edward Ellsworth; fairies, Dorothy and Mary Stewart; dolls, Betty Spencer and Marion Chapman; cat, William Hazard, clown, George Lambert; jigging doll, Earl Swan; jumping Jack, Lawrence Clegg.

Following this were tableaux during which Mother Goose (Emily Gallup) asked Santa Claus to bring some of her children Christmas gifts and explained that others had been bad and deserved none. Betty recited the nursery rhyme, following which Mother Goose recited a new version. The tableaux were as follows: Little Miss Muffet, Mildred Potter; Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary, Alice Peck; Little Jack Horner, Omar Racine; Simple Simon and the Pieman, John Hanson and Lloyd Chapman; Tom, Tom the Piper's Son, Gavin Pitt; Ding, Dong Bell, George Ellsworth; Little Bo Peep, Mary Strong; Old Lady That Lived in a Shoe, Mrs. Lila Allen, with all the children. The committee in charge of the entertainment were Mrs. Harry Kromer, Harold S. Burt, Miss Crystal Whitney, Arthur Wyman, Miss Emily Gallup.

The orchestra which entertained during the evening included Joseph Adams, Robert Otis Shepard Palmer, Jr., Earl Swan, Norman Geer, Reginald Laubin, Ralph Marsh, Frank Dodge, Edward Smith.

WILL HOLD NEW YEAR'S EVE CELEBRATION TONIGHT

Decorations were completed Thursday night in the Wauregan house ballroom for the Knights of Pythias great New Year's eve celebration for which every reservation has been taken and the committee has been obliged to turn away about 400 applications. Seventy-five couples is the limit which was set for the big evening, which will provide a surpassing social event for the Pythians, according to the predictions of the committee of Wauregan lodge, No. 6, which is in charge. Mayor Waters and Mrs. Waters have the honor of being the only invited guests and both will attend.

From the time the dancing starts at 8.30 until it ends at 3 o'clock on the morning of the new year, every moment will be full of pleasure, with music, vaudeville, banquet, and a special electrical feature to mark the passing of the old year and the arrival of the new.

CAN USE 1927 AUTO MARKERS TODAY

In common with thousands in the state, Norwich automobile owners will drive out today (Friday) with the 1927 markers on their cars, this being allowed under the new ruling of the state motor vehicle department. Those planning to remain out until Saturday morning, January 1st should remember to place the 1927 markers on their cars today as the police have been given strict orders to make arrests of all owners driving cars with the old 1926 markers after midnight tonight.

As usual Norwich has its quota of people who have not yet secured their new license plates and these people will be forced to leave their machines at home or run the risk of being arrested and fined for violation of the law.

Sleighride For Nurses.
